GETTING READY

For Passenger Traffic on Klamath Lake R. R.

R. W. Marple, proprietor of the Mammoth Stables, received a letter from Mr. Lindley, Sunday, requesting him to have conveyances sufficient for the transportation of large numbers of passengers ready to make connection between Klamath Falls and the temporary termfnus of the railroad at Pokegama, commencing on May 1.

It is probable that naptha launches will be put on Klamath river between Klamath Falls and Keno, thus affording passengers something in the way of novelty in the mode of transportation from a point on the Southern Pacific railroad into this practically new country which is being so rapidly developed and where the welcome light of prosperity shines brighter every day. Passengers may travel 30 miles on the new scenic Klamath railway, 18 miles by stage to Keno, thence up the Klamath river by boat, to Klamath Falls.—[Express.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

Perfect Health
BY THE USE OF
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Mrs. H. A. Alsbrook, of Austin, Lonoke Co., Ark., writes: "After five months of great suffering with female weakness I write this for the benefit of other sufferers from the same affliction. I doctored with our family physician without any good result, so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines—which I did, with wonderful results. I am completely cured. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BLY ITEMS.

W. W. Smith, the merchant of Bly, has bought I. C. Mitchell, his fine ranch on Sprague river and will do some substantial improvements on the ranch and go into the stock business. This is a fine property in a good location and plenty of water for all purposes.

There is quite an excitement in this part of the country over timber and there are a great many timber men coming here from every quarter to try and get a claim before it is all gone. There is quite a boom in land here and it is being bought up rapidly, that is state and school land

The Ditch companies on both sides of the valley will soon commence to repair and clean out their ditches in order to have an abundant supply of water to irrigate with this summer.

There are several residents of this valley, who wish to dispose of their ranches and stock. Any one wishing to invest would do well to investigate this matter.

Amos Lundy has sold his stock and rented his ranch to Lewis Pankey, who by the way, is quite a prosperous stockman.

Miss Cora Finley went to Klamath Falls last week to learn the art of photography under the instruction of Miss Maud Baldwin.

W. A. Walker's family has returned home from Klamath Falls where the boys have been attending school this winter.

Snow is melting fast in the mountains and the consequences are high water in the valley.

Mr. Boyd, one of our solid stockmen, has returned from a business trip to St. Paul.

J. A. Parker has been laid up for the last two months with rheumatism.

Winter is over and stock are turned out without any loss.

Bly, April 9, 1903.

STATEMENT.

By Federal Labor Union Committee.

Editor Valley Record:

We notice in a recent issue of your paper that an Informal meeting of the city council of Ashland is called to meet at the city hall on Friday evening, April 17th, 1903 for the purpose of discussing business with the Federal Labor Union.

As this statement is misleading, we the undersigned committee of Federal Labor Union, No. 9977, desire to state through your columns that we appeared before the city council at their regular meeting, April 7th, and presented to that body a business matter intrusted to us as we were instructed to do by the Union.

After considerable discussion the mayor demanded certain information that we were unprepared to give at that time.

The Mayor, Hon. D. B. Provost, then proposed to call a special meeting of the council for the purpose of giving our committee an opportunity to furnish the required information, and to further consider the matter presented by us, which we accepted.

It appears that after our committee had withdrawn from the council room the mayor changed his mind and announced to the council that the special meeting would be a public, Informal meeting, and caused it to be so announced in the city papers.

In view of the fact that the city council can only transact business when in formal session, our committee called upon the mayor after the announcement in the papers of an informal meeting, and requested him to change the announcement which he refused to do.

We desire to present to the council the information demanded of us, and to get an official answer from the city council as to whether that body will grant the request of the Labor Union or not.

This is clearly a business matter between the Labor Union and the city council, and can only be settled at a Formal meeting of the council, therefore we ask that the meeting to be held on the 17th be a formal meeting of the council, as agreed upon between the mayor and the committee, and the business in question legally disposed of.

Then, if the mayor still desires a public discussion of the matters in question we will meet him then, or at any other time or place that he may see fit to name.

What we want is a final settlement of this business.

REAMES NOMINATED.

For Congress on First Ballot.

District Attorney A. E. Reames was nominated for congress on the first ballot at the democratic congressional convention at Albany Saturday.

The following were the delegates from the counties of this judicial district:

Jackson, 9—J. H. Beeman, J. D. Olwell, C. L. Reames, E. A. Sherwin, H. L McWilliams, Bert Whitman, D. H. Miller, A. J. Perry, George R. Hamersley by J. H. Beeman proxy.

Josephine, 4—J. W. Howard, J. D. Stevens, H. L. Wilson, W. J. Wimer.

Klamath, 2—George T. Baldwin, C. T. Silvers by G. T. Baldwin proxy.

Lake 2—F. M. Duke by J. K. Weatherford proxy; W. J. Moore by J. K. Weatherford proxy.

In the appointment of a congressional campaign committee the following were chosen from southern Oregon:

Jackson, J. A. Whitman.
Josephine, W. J. Wimer.
Klamath, Geo. T. Baldwin.
Lake, W. J. Moore.

The following platform was unanimously adopted.

We are unalterably opposed to the present trust dictation of our financial tariff legislation, especially as exemplified by the Aldrich and Fowler bills now pending before congress, and declare such control harmful to good government.

There is an overwhelming demand from a vast majority of the people for revision of the tariff along rational lines. We repudiate the absurd proposition of continuing high protection on products of the gigantic trusts, now grown to plethoric wealth under governmental favors.

We demand favorable action in lieu of mere promises in securing federal improvements of our rivers and harbors.

We demand the passage of effective laws controlling the trusts, and sincere efforts to enforce them.

Public lands belong of right to the people, and any attempt to alienate said lands contrary to law should to condemned at the bar of public opinion, we therefore favor an honest administration of the land department, as well as all other departments.

The administration of Governor Chamberlain is justly receiving the commendation of the people, irrespective of party, and the record of the democratic party in the recent legislature reflects honor upon the party, and will redound to the welfare of the state. We commend their earnest endeavor to curtail public expenditures in the interest of the taxpayers.

Ben Hendricks in "Ole Olson."

The popular dialect comedian, Ben Hendricks, is again presenting that best and most entertaining of Swedish plays, "Ole Olson" and will don the garb of the nonchalant and resourceful immigrant "Ole" at the opera house next Friday night.

Mr. Hendricks is universally recognized as the best exponent of Swedish characters on the American stage, a fact that is amply proven by the attempts of every manager of Swedish plays to secure his services. He rightfully considers however, that in "Ole Olson" this particular nationality is most truthfully drawn and presented and that it gives the best opportunity of presenting the wholesome, honest and incorruptible Swedish American type as he really exists. Several changes have been made in the dramatic story and these features have tended to strengthen the play. A number of special features add to its enjoyable qualities too,—notable the original Swedish Ladies Quartette.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP

Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to be not only of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." THE MARRIAGE OF WI-NE-MAH.

The Heroine of the Modoc Indian War and Her Husband Now Stooped With Age.

The story of Wi-ne-mah's trial for her life has already been told in the Daily Journal, as well as the story of her part at the massacre of Gen. Canby and his staff in the lava beds, in which she saved Meacham's life. But the story of her marriage to Riddle, the white miner, is no less interesting. Aged and stooped she and her husband now live on the Klamath Indian reservation, the object of interest to all who have heard their story.

It was back in the days when the great mining rush was made to Yreka, Cal. Riddle, then a handsome young miner, had found his way across the continent and to Yreka and owned a cabin of his own and was doing placer mining. One day an old Indian chief rode up to Riddle's cabin, followed by a young Indian girl, who was also mounted. In those days slavery was common among many of the Indian tribes, and when Riddle was summoned to the door of his cabin by the old Indian, he was startled by the statement of the Indian, who said: "Me sell you this girl; how much you give?"

Wi-ne-mah, who was considered a beauty in those days, was just verging on womanhood, and when the miner refused the proposition flatly, he saw a look of disappointment pass over the maiden's countenance.

"The old fool!" thought Riddle "he would barter that girl like she was so much plunder," and then he remembered the disappointed look on the girl's face, but another face came up in his mind and he shook his head firmly.

The old Indian had ridden away followed by his child, and he, too, was disappointed, for he expected to realize something from the sale that day. They traveled about the mining camp from cabin to cabin, but found no purchaser. A gay-colored blanket, a few yards of calico, or a few trinkets would have purchased this beautiful girl.

A week or more passed. Again the Indian, accompanied by the girl, appeared at Riddle's cabin. The proposition of sale was again made in the same cool manner. This time the girl looked appealingly to the miner. He caught her eye and felt a blush come over his face, and again the promise he made another back in Kentucky pressed itself in his mind. He shook his head hesitatingly this time and the two rode away more disappointed than before. The Indian was about to dispair of disposing of his property, and the girl, knowing that she would be sacrificed to some one, preferred the handsome young Kentuckian. Riddle had engaged himself to marry a young woman of his own race before leaving Kentucky, and had promised to return and redeem the pledge as soon as he should make his fortune in California.

The Indian and his daughter returned for the third time. Whether it was from the Indian's anxiety to consummate a sale, wholly, or under the persuasion of his daughter is not known, but anyway several days passed before Riddle heard of them again It was about 10 days after the last call when Wi-ne-mah entered Riddle's cabin bringing with her what little effects she had, giving him to understand that she had come to be his slave without cost He knew not where she lived and could not drive her out into the world. She was a beautiful type of her race and as innocent as a child.

She immediately took up the housework and prepared his meals always ready for him upon his arrival. She was quick in learning the civilized manner of living and also learned to speak his tongue. He, too, learned her language. Day by day the Kentucky beauty faded from Riddle's memory. He came to love Wi-ne-mah To prove this love he led her to the altar and married her under the custom of those early days.

Early history is filled with the great work performed by this Indian woman. It was she who warned Gen. Canby against the conference with the Indians in the lava beds; it was she who was tried for her life by the tribe for high treason in giving out this information; it was she who went along as interpreter on that fatal occasion, knowing that the men would be assassinated, and probably herself, having informed them of the fact. But they heeded her not, and lost their lives as a result. Her husband, who accompanied her on this occasion, barely escaped with his life, depending upon Wi-ne-mah's wonderful intelligence to take care of herself. When Capt. Jack fired the first shot into Gen. Canby's breast and the other assassins began to fire upon their victims, Riddle mounted a horse in the confusion and rode for his life. The white people charged Riddle with cowardice in thus abandonding his wife to the mercy of the assassins, but she took his part and commended him for the act.

When the massacre began the men were all standing. Wi-ne-mah, expecting it, had crouched low on the ground and thus escaped the shots. Then when Reames' Prospects.

A. E. Reames, the democratic candidate for congress from the first district, captured the daughter of the late Congressman Tongue for his wife. Now it will remain to be seen if he is able to secure the seat in congress that was occupied by his honored father-in-law. A nomination at the hands of the Eugene instead of the Albany convention would stand the young man in better stead in his quest.—Salem Statesman, Rep.

The latter proposition may be true in a general way. However, the Statesman will find that the son-in-law of the late Congressman Tongue is endowed with a great deal of the latter's enterprise and ability and when the polls are closed and the votes are counted there may be such a condition of affairs as the election of Mr. Reames in spite of of the place where he was nominated.
