Saving in Food Effected Here

The food conservation program, after two weeks operation, has shown satisfactory results, according to Lt. Thomas P. Kruzic, of the food inspection division.

Designed to eliminate waste of food in Army mess halls, the idea behind the program does not mean curtailment of rations, but reduction of food wastage caused by soldiers who judge their eating capacity with their eyes, rather than their stomachs, the officer indicated.

"The Army isn't trying to cut down on food," said the food inspection officer; "it's just that waste is being eliminated. We serve half slices of bread in our messes; already bread scraps are rare in garbage cans because those who only want a half a slice, don't have the unused portion to throw away," Lt. Kruzic said.

The conservation includes the use of posters, silent reminders that uneaten food on a plate is wasted food, and the daily tabulation of wastage in each mess hall. Computed on similar programs conducted by the War Department, 20 pounds of gar-

Service Company Will Vie For Marksmanship Awards

Members of Service Company will have an added incentive to score "bulls" when they fire for record on the rifle range tomorrow. Capt. Fred Hohenhorst, company commander, has announced he will award a prize of $10 for the highest score, $5 for second, $3 for third and $2 for fourth. One of the leading contenders dropped out of the running this week when Sgt. Claire Coburn of the Camp Abbot band left on furlough. Coburn turned in one of the most impressive scores in the company in preliminary firing.

bage is allowed per day for each 100 men. This garbage is only plate scraping, or "humanly edible waste," and figures presented to date, with few exceptions, show a close adherence to the established waste allowance, thus effecting a marked decrease in wastage in the past two weeks.

Assisting Lt. Kruzic in the conservation program is Lt. Ralph Loewy, formerly assigned to the salvage division.

FROM YOUR CHAPLAIN DON'T LET DOWN

The news from abroad has been encouraging in the extreme. It is likely, if it continues, that many men now in training will not see service abroad. Nevertheless, there must be no let-down, no lessening of individual or group effort. We cannot afford, at this stage of the struggle, to relax in our war effort.

The Israelites who fled from Egypt under the capable leadership of Moses believed that the moment they crossed the Red Sea they would be saved. There was great rejoicing when the waters parted and they crossed over to dry land; but that was only the beginning, that was one phase along the road to liberation. Many bitter and disillusioning experiences awaited them before they attained the status of free men.

Today, the allied nations are in the position of the Israelites of old. There remains a formidable enemy beyond the frontiers of Italy, a desperate and resourceful foe fighting now to delay the day of reckoning. This is surely not the time to celebrate or to waver in our determination. Rather, it is the psychological moment to press forward with all our heart, and strength and might. The good news of Italy's unconditional surrender must spur us on to the final victory—to victory and peace.

New Dayroom Furnishings Set

Furnishings and draperies provided by the Masonic Lodge and the Order of the Eastern Star for a dayroom here are ready to be placed in the room as soon as floors are sanded and painted, the Camp and Hospital Committee has announced. The council has assumed the responsibility for sanding and painting floors in all day rooms.

The new room will be the third to be furnished by a Bend organization, the Knights of Columbus and the Elks Lodge having already sponsored complete day rooms.

Ben Hamilton, chairman of the council, announced that $10 has been received from the Bend Study Club and that the Bend Civic League has agreed to equip a kitchen at the Station Hospital. League members received a list of materials needed and are collecting them, he said.

The committee decided to order 200 yards of monk's cloth to provide draperies for day rooms and hospital sun rooms from committee treasury funds.

Jewish Holidays To Be Observed

Camp Abbot will be the center of Jewish religious activities for Abbotmen and maneuverers of the faith with the observance of the Jewish High Holy Days, Rosh ha Shonah (Jewish New Year) and Yom Kippur (The Day of Atonement). Under the direction of Norman H. Goldberg, Jewish chaplain on the post, a series of services has been arranged to celebrate the church holidays.

The New Year observation will begin at sundown Wednesday, September 28, and will continue until sundown Friday, October 1, with services at 7:30 p. m. on Wednesday and 10:00 a. m. on Thursday and Friday. The Day of Atonement will be observed by fasting and prayer with services scheduled for 7:30 p. b. on October 8 and 10:00 a. m. on October 9.

Special dispensation has been made by Col. Besson, post commander, for Jewish men who are here on maneuvers to attend the services in view of the fact that Chaplain Goldberg is the only chaplain of the faith in this area. Attendance at any and all services will be granted if it does not interfere with training schedules or maneuver problems.

Sgt. Morris Stavsky and T/5 Ellis Berger are assisting Chaplain Goldberg in arrangements for the services which will be held in the Post Chapel.

CAPT. JOLLY TO NEW POST

Capt. Ab Jolly, assistant commandant, Headquarters Group, SCU 1973, ERTC, has been transferred to Berkeley, Cal., for duty with the ASTP Unit at the University of California. Capt. Jolly was one of the first officers to arrive at Camp Abbot. He was the first provost marshal and later commanded Supply company of headquarters group. He has a long period of service and for 17 years was a member of the 45th Infantry Division, the unit which won high honors in Sicily.

MISNOMER

Denver, Col. (CNS)—Pvt. Melvin Forgets-Nothing, a Blackfoot Indian, hasn't a very good memory despite his name. When asked why he showed up late for his induction here, he explained that he forgot.

Army Seeks Men For Ski Patrol

Soldiers with an outdoor background and an interest in mountaineering are offered unusual opportunities these days by the Army Ground Forces. This Command is seeking volunteers for the 10th Division, now being formed at the Mountain Training Center, Camp Hale, Colo., according to the current Army & Navy Journal.

Types of previous experience that can be turned to good account in the mountain troops are mountaineering, forestry, rock-climbing, hunting, guide work and skiing. Soldiers who feel they possess the proper qualifications should write to the National Ski Patrol System, 415 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. This organization is co-operating closely with the Army Ground Forces in finding the right soldiers for important jobs offered in the mountain troops. After the soldier writes the System, that organization sends him a form to fill out and return. On the basis of information furnished, a board of experts then decides if he is qualified for the mountain troops.

"Smoky" Returns Home to Wacs—All Is Forgiven

Like the Prodigal Son, "Smoky," the Wac company's dog mascot, has returned home—apparently to stay. The Abbot Engineer had scarcely "hit" the post two weeks ago with a story duly recording the news that "Smoky" had gone AWOL from the feminine soldiers and had attached himself to an engineer training battalion for quarters and rations, when he arrived at the Wac mess hall door.

He appeared rather dejected, in fact, presented an almost forlorn appearance, and from the way he attacked a dish of choice edibles set in front of him by kind hearted K.P.'s and cooks, was darned near starved. He cast a wary eye for a time until he felt assured that women do "forget and forgive."

"Smoky's" appetite, and his outspoken friendliness indicated a desire to settle down and "make a dog of himself."

His AWOL mark probably will be erased from the Wac records and he will be restored to his rank of honorary mess sergeant without further ado.

Maneuver Troops Double Work of Laundry Here

If your laundry hasn't been coming back quite as soon as you expected it, here are the reasons why:

1. The volume of laundry handed at Camp Abbot has been more than doubled since the arrival of maneuver troops in this area.

2. The laundry is operating with only two thirds of the personnel allotted it.

Despite these difficulties, the plant is offering five-day to six-day service. Lt. Howard I. Pulver, post laundry officer, pointed out. The unit is operating at near-capacity, even though only 100 of the 153 workers allotted it are employed there.

In addition to the enlisted personnel of Camp Abbot, the laundry's list of patrons includes maneuver troops, 400 to 600 officers, Redmond and Madras Air Bases, the station hospital and eight to 10 field hospitals.

Soldiers of the post and Redmond and Madras Air Bases are given priority, Lieutenant Pulver said. To prevent excessive volume, maneuver troops are permitted to send only 12 pieces per week.

Red Cross Loans $6,568 on Post

Loans totaling $6,568.52 were made to 121 Camp Abbot soldiers by the Field Office of the American Red Cross in handling 492 cases during August, Frank Dunning, field director, reported this week. The office also made outright grants totaling $1,024 to 28 soldiers who, due to allotment commitments, are unable to repay the organization.

The Red Cross office at the Station Hospital handled 106 cases for soldier-patients during the month. Of this number, two were loans totaling $75.

Cases handled by the field office here for maneuver troops of the IV Corps totaled 1,069. Loans of $7,932 were made to 105 men and grants totaling $420 to eight.

Newest 4Fs in baseball are Joe Schultz, St. Louis Browns catcher, and Rufe Gentry, ace pitcher for the Buffalo Bisons in the International League. No reason was given for their rejection.
