

Ninth Victory For Post Quintet Won Decisively

Supply Topples As B-56 Captures Overtime Contest

Supply Company dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten Wednesday night, losing one of the thriller-dillers of Rec Hall history to Co. B, 56 Bn., in two overtime periods, 28-27. The game was nip and tuck all the way, and Klinkowitz of Supply converted a free throw with one second to go to tie the count at 24-24.

The first three minute overtime was scoreless, neither team getting a decent shot at the bucket. B-56's Basset potted a long in the second overtime but the league's top scorer, Lipe of Supply, knotted the count once again with a layin. With 30 seconds left, Pizzi of B-56 sank the winning basket. However, Supply's roly-poly Klinkowitz had another chance to tie it up as he was fouled in the act of shooting just before the last whistle. Klinkowitz made the first one but the second hit the front rim and kicked away.

UNDERSTAND?

If the young lady is too well clothed to suit your fancy, please don't think we're becoming Hays-office-ish—it's just that she has a winsome smile, the picture has good composition and we're particularly fond of the lower portion of the photograph. The gal is Connie Haines of NBC's Abbot and Costello program, if that makes any difference.
