Post Urged to Beat Deadline In Bond Drive

The "Squander Bug" is that unpredictable urge which tells you to go ahead and throw your money away—that just buying one more thing won't add to inflation, or help create a shortage of goods. Don't listen to the "Squander Bug." He's all set to gobble up every dollar he can. He thrives on your extravagance. Starve him with War Bonds!

—Ninth Service Command Letter

As the Fourth War Loan Drive draws to a close, with Tuesday the last day cash purchases may count toward the total, personnel of Camp Abbot is urged to buy one more bond out of its latest pay check.

Since January 1, $78,000 worth of war bonds have been sold at this post. The aim is to reach $100,000, although no definite goal has been set. This means a concerted effort and despite the already fine showing, an even better one is demanded, officials point out.

Every civilian employee has made a class A allotment for war bonds of 10 per cent or over of their gross pay. Fifteen per cent of the military personnel have Class A allotments, with officers averaging 17 per cent of their base pay and enlisted men 9 per cent.

The Office of the Commanding General, Ninth Service Command, has just issued an appeal to "make the double goal." It reports a participation in the Command of 88.9 per cent, with only 1.1 per cent to go, and a sum amounting to 9.9 per cent of the payroll, a mere .1 per cent to go over the top. "We've been aiming for the goal for a year and a half. Now let's go over!"

CO-BRAS

Aside from being a decorative bit of art, this shows that even the lowly snake can get a "break" once in a while. With a subject such as this, we can begin to see the boa constrictor's point. Just who the reptile-clad young lady is we don't know. Someone swiped our picture and didn't bother to leave the underlines.

Abbot Face!

For some reason or other, many people have been disturbed by the fact that BOTH Pallas Athene heads on WAC officers' lapels face to the right. Their love of symmetry demands that they face each other.

And so, desiring to lay the disturbance low, we asked a WAC officer, and the answer should answer it for all time. The Greek goddess always looked ahead,

Abbot Art Show Draws GI Crowds

Large groups of aesthetically-inclined soldiers gathered in the library and on the balcony of the service club this week to view Camp Abbot's first Art Exhibit sponsored by the Library and arranged by Cpl. Angelo L. Caravaglia of Service Co.

As evidenced by comments and interest, the watercolors of Arne R. Jensen, Publications Branch, are most popular, especially the striking "Mass Murder," and the near-funny "Pots and Pans." Robert Addison of Service Company is exhibiting a striking collection of water color and ink sketches of cathedrals, and Gary Woo, recently transferred contributed a surprising water color.

In addition, Angelo Caravaglia presents his own ink sketches; Ted Lewy, now transferred, water colors; Helen Souhrada, cafeteria hostess, a charcoal sketch; Charles H. Suter, Supplemental Training Co. water colors and pencil sketches; Eugene Van de Graff, MP Co., oils; and Hubert Wallace, Hq. Det., 11th Gp., pencil and ink sketches.

which is to the right, because that was the direction of victory.

That's the way we're looking, too.

Gershwin Hit Is Concert Feature

Featuring Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" in its entirety, a concert of contemporary American music by members of the 362nd Army Band, led by WO C. S. Spalding, will be presented Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Service Club. Highlight of the "Rhapsody" will be the original piano solo played by Pfc. William Sumner, 12th Gp. HQ talented pianist.

Other selections on the program, which is open to officers as well as enlisted men, include a march, "Glory of the Trumpets" by Brockenshire; the "Youth Triumphant Overture" by Hadley; a medley of Irvin Berlin waltzes; Cole Porter's "Night and Day"; a march, "Bombasto" by Farrar; the "Volga Boatman" as arranged by Glenn Miller; and the First Movement of the "Second American Symphonette" by Morton Gould.

THIS IS BROTHERHOOD WEEK

By the President's proclamation this is Brotherhood Week. The National Conference of Christians and Jews is functioning successfully to help us all get along with each other. We do it here in America better than in most other countries. We could improve.

The Atlantic Charter says one of the four freedoms we are fighting for is Freedom of Religion. When you say "Freedom of Religion," you think of America.

Look around! Who is that man next to you? He was a total stranger before you both got into the army. Now he is as necessary to your success and safety as you are to his. What's his religion? Who cares? He's your buddy, isn't he? And you've found him a "right guy." Now, here's the test for all of us. These right guys are found all through the Army.

Come into the Chapels. What do you find? In the pew racks are Army and Navy Hymnals with Scripture and Hymns sections for Jews, Catholics, high and low Church Protestants—all in the same book.

Look at the altar, ready for any kind of service, regardless of faith. Look in the pulpits, often all three faiths are represented there. That's the Army for you. Side by side, all three faiths.

Now, on the home front it's happening too. Wasn't that first reported casualty in your home town a chap whose mother or wife received the sympathy of every faith in the town? Didn't the Priest visit the Protestant home, the Rabbi the Catholic home, and the Protestant preacher the Jewish home to offer sympathy? Of course they did.

What's this all about? It's Brotherhood Week, and all over the country they're extending hand and heart to each other as one American family. But intolerance still exists, of course, but it's decreasing.

Seth Parker says, "You go to your church and I'll go to mine, and we'll walk down the street together." "Together," that's the word now and in the days to come. "Together," that's America. "Together," that's the meaning of Brotherhood Week.
