One of the finest works of art that has recently commanded our attention is the set of Art Plagues and calendar issued this year by the Malt-Nutrine Department of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, St. Louis, Mo. Our patrons can secure sets of this beautiful work by sending twenty-five cents to the above address.

A school meet n held on March 11th, decided against bonding this school district. The schoolhouse was located upon its present grounds upon the understanding that the land would be deeded to the school district. This has never been done, and school electors wish the school located on district grounds before settling any other matter. Bonding was proposed by parties who have never looked on the school in other light than as a means of booming a certain project, and the well-wishers of the school turned down the bonding proposition by a vote of better than two to one. Riley, West and Schlecht acted as judges.

There is good sense in the following, which we clip from an exchange: "How old should a person be to get married? Well, that depends. The subject is not one for sentiment alone, nor should it be one entirely practical. There is a golden combination, and circumstances must play an important part. This laying down rules won't work always. Some young people might possibly be doing the proper thing to unite at 21 and 22, but as the world wags somewhere around 25 is better. Then know what is what, be situated well enough financially to support a wife and look twice before you leap. Don't be a clam nor a fox."
