Some Gold Ore.

Five thousand dollars' worth of gold quartz in one showcase is one of the features of the Oregon Mining exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. Visitors do not often get a chance to see such a valuable collection of rock in one place, and the display attracts a great deal of attention from exposition crowds.

The quartz, though appearing to be but little more than yellow stone, runs over seventy-five per cent gold, and is worth in the neighborhood of $15 an ounce. It is all taken from the North Pole mine in Baker county, and has been arranged for display by Fred R. Mellis of Baker City, who has charge of the Oregon mining section.

Some of the rough lumps of stone have been cut in two, and surfaces polished, and it can then be seen how nearly solid gold the quartz is. It is very heavy, and there are large pieces as big as a man's head whose values run up in the hundreds of dollars.

Change in Registration.

The provisions of the direct primary law passed last election will require that the registration books of the county be again opened for a month, being from September 20th to October 20th. No doubt attempts will be made under the local option law to close nearly all the counties in the state to the sale of liquor, and a general campaign on that question will be made all over the state. The presidential election will be held this year on November 8th.

That Daily Mail.

The Portland mail now comes from the north. The change was made June 4th. The Oregonian of the 5th arrived here the morning of the 8th. The change makes a gain of 36 hours. Edwin Mays and the Oregonian have interested themselves in the matter and Mr. Mays writes Dr. Witham that he thinks it will result in a daily mail from Prineville to Silver Lake—Chewaucan Post.
