RESTAURANT HOGS.

How One of Them Spolled a Fair Lady's and a Reporter's Appetite.

Speaking of restaurants, how they hold the mirror up to the nature of one's breeding! Let a man be lifted never so high by the most skillful and artistic of tailors, he will find his level at the table. The failure of our restaurant keepers to provide a number small tables for two compels the coubling, and frequently the quadrupling up process, so that one has an excellent though ofttimes uncomfortable opportunity of studying his dining neighbor. I sat in such a position last night. Being in haste to reach the theater, my lady and I entered the first restaurant we came to-and it is called a good one-for supper. THE LADY REMEMBERED.

Instructive Session of the Pumpkin Hollow Ladies' Literary Club

In a town not far from Detroit the ladies have organized a "Literary she gets her twenty dollars from me, Clab." There are eight members in the society, and by way of diversity they give a "high tea" to eight favor-Ite gentlemen once a fortnight.

The other night "Robert Elsmere" was brought up for discussion. No supposes he was, for she never heard one had read the book, but each indifom him after that battle, and she vidual had seen fragmentary reviews and all felt armed for the discussion. "Let me see," ventured Miss Wise, "who is the author of "Robert Els
