NEWBERG'S CITY ELECTION.

The city election passed off quietly last Monday. Everybody was interested, but no undue excitement was manifested.

The following are the officers elected: F. A. Morris, mayor; J. T. Smith, re-warder; Samuel Hobson, treasurer; Levi Smith, street commissioner; A. T. Hawthorn, marshal; N. E. Britt, surveyor; H. C. Cooper, Jesse Hobson, R. Pettijohn, Noah Heater, B. C. Miles and N. C. Maris, councilmen.

The bill incorporating the town of Newberg was passed by the last legislature only a short time ago. This election marks the first step in the organization of the city government. Newberg can now take its place as the peer of any town in the state, as far as energy, enterprise, percentage of growth, and good government are concerned. The officers elected are all of them, good men and we may expect some wholesome ordinances to be enacted and enforced. There are no flies on Newberg; she means business and if the other towns in Yamhill county don't get a move on them we will soon have the pleasure of recording the fact that this is the largest town in the county, as our citizens are by far the most wide-awake, energetic, and enterprising.

The Whittier, California W. C. T. U. held a public entertainment Saturday evening, March 23. The only attraction being a splendid program of literary exercises consisting of orations, essays, declamations and songs, by members of the local Unions and Bands of Hope. No refreshments of any kind were served. A collection was taken up at the close, the amount received was $55.40.

Newberg is bound to grow and be a town of importance. The advertising columns of the GRAPHIC attest the fact that her business men are not moss-backs.—Herald.

Right you are. No town in Oregon has business men who are more wide awake, progressive and energetic than those of Newberg. And as a natural result this place is growing faster than any other town in the county. Last Tuesday twenty-eight immigrants arrived, and more come every day. Nearly all of whom decide to make their homes here.

Timonon the kindness of Mr. Wyman, who formerly lived in New Zealand, we were permitted to see a copy of the New Zealand Herald of Feb. 25th, one of the leading papers published in Auckland. It is especially interesting as it contains much news from Samoa. The editor strongly condemns England for complicity with Germany and warmly praises the United States for its action in the matter. In the course of one of its editorials it says:

It is quite apparent to us now, at least it is universally believed that England has basely bartered Samoa and other Pacific islands for the favor of Prince Bismarck, as that might be made to bear on British interests in the great European intrigue, and the duplicity with which America was treated by the two European conspirators, has come out in all the darker color, from the firm action taken by our great relations, of the Anglo-Saxon race, the American nation, in compelling Germany to recede from the position which she had incidentally taken in virtue of the unholy compact.

The Grand Army.
With nearly 400,000 veterans enrolled in the organization, standing shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart, the republic has its own Grand Army, whose valor and sacrifice it should never forget. Each year thins the ranks. Each month the old veterans are passing away. But as long as there remain any survivors of the splendid host who went forth to save the Union it will still be the Grand Army what ever its number.—Des Moines Register.

Learn a Trade.
The practical advantage to one who has learned a trade was exemplified the other day in the person of Patrick Gleason, mayor of Long Island City. The appropriation for the maintenance of the water department having run short, a number of the men have been unpaid for some time. The other day they simply said, if they didn't get their money, they would shut down the waterworks. Mayor Gleason, who has attained fame of late by his manful attack upon the fences and other obstructions of the Long Island Railroad, which he leveled single-handed with an ax, said that he didn't propose that Long Island City should be left without its water supply. He couldn't force the city officials to appropriate the money, but he hitled up his trotters, drove to the waterworks, and told the men on duty that if they wanted to leave they could leave, he could run the engine himself, with the assistance of one or two of his friends. As he is an old engineer, they all knew he could do what he said. Consequently there was no strike, Long Island City was not deprived of its water supply, and since then the salaries have been paid up. This is the kind of a mayor to have.—Capital Journal.

Free speech is literally become a nuisance when Mrs. Lucy Parsons, the anarchist widow, can address a crowd of men, urging that a revolution is necessary to destroy law and order. While it is shameful that she should be making such speeches and her proper place is inside of a jail, it is better policy to treat her utterances with contempt and let her speak rather than dignity her by arrest and trial. It is found that a little opposition raises a great fury among anarchists and gives them so nothing to clamor about, while indifference to their ravings, treating them as if they occasioned no fear or apprehension, disarms them and makes them far less harmful and dangerous.—Oregonian.

SOUTHERN OREGON RAILROAD.

To Open Up a Market for the Products of the Fertile Coquille Valley.

The Southern Oregon Company has engaged an engineer, and will commence immediately to survey, locate and secure rights of way for the railroad across the isthmus. Manager Loggie thoroughly recognizes the importance of the road, and it is owing to his representation that active work is being commenced. The building of this road will open a market for products of the fertile lands of the Coquille valley. There are thousands of acres of the richest lands in the world, in the Coquille valley, which have been allowed to remain idle, there being no market for the products. By connecting the bay and river with a railroad, run in connection with a line of steamers, which is the intention, quick transportation can be had and perishable products will be forwarded in good condition to their destination. The road will build up a big business and prove a paying investment. It will increase the value of lands and help more to develop the country than any other enterprise. It is sincerely to be hoped that no obstacle will be encountered in the securing of rights of way. A project of this kind ought to be encouraged, and every reasonable facility afforded for bringing it to a successful termination.—Coast Bay News.

Cost of Butter.
It costs one man more to produce butter than it costs another because the capacity of the cows is different. A cow that yields 150 pounds of butter a year is poor property, for she eats as much and costs in all respects nearly as much as the cow that turns off 300 pounds. A dairyman in New York has cows that average 332 pounds a year and he figures that his butter costs, for all expense items, 11 1/4 cents a pound. A neighbor may have cows of a low grade that yield 150 pounds of butter. He feels them and keeps them, and is out as much money on a cow as the 332 pound herd! If they both sell their butter at 35 cents, one will average $116.50 to the cow, and the other $52.50. If each had fifteen cows one herd will yield $1743.43, and the other $787.50. If one cost 12 cents to make the other costs at least 25 cents.

Ex-Senator H. Davis and family started on a Southern trip this morning. At Washington they expect to be joined by Mrs. Harrison, wife of the president, and her daughter, Mrs. McKee. They go to Charleston, Jacksonville and St. Augustine.

Lumber receipts at San Francisco, Cal., for February were 38,000,000 feet, an increase of 4,000,000 over the same month of 1882. The prospects for foreign trade this year are thought to be good; stocks in Australia are said to have run low, with prices well maintained. The demand for Pacific coast lumber is reported steadily increasing at Melbourne, Adelaide and Brisbane. Enlarged trade is looked for with both east and west points. There is a general commercial activity at Valparaiso, which indicates that building will show an increase, Buenos Ayres is expected to take more lumber this year than last.—Lumberman.

The short-sighted man, mentally and physically, can never be taught to see beyond his nose. Science may aid the one with spectacles, but the other's case is hopeless. He will tell you that because cities are not here now, they never will be. Such limited vision of the future is almost criminal were it not for the fact that just such men are the stepping stones for those who are not so afflicted, and who with confidence pass over them and secure the good things of the world in a locality that must from the mere force of locality in the course of a few years be as thickly populated as the less favored Atlantic seaboard. Let the near-sighted and the blind blink in their own obscurity. We are satisfied we know a good thing when we see it, and that is in plain sight right here.—Aberdeen Herald.

The captain of the American barkentine Constitution exhibited pluck of no common order, in Samoan waters. The vessel arrived in Apia harbor during the absence of the Nipsic, and a party from the German corvette Olga attempted to search her for contraband articles. The Constitution's commander, Captain Cally, who only had eight men on board, pluckily informed the Germans that his was an American vessel, and that if they attempted to board her they would be fired upon. Whether this frightened the Germans or not is not stated, but it is a fact that the American vessel was not searched.—Telegram.

Over a Burning Bridge.
A locomotive and fourteen cars of a Baltimore & Ohio freight train went through a burning bridge over Hart creek eight miles east of Wheeling, W. Va., April 1. The burning timbers from the bridge set fire to the cars and they were burned. The caboose did not leave the track and all of the crew escaped, although two unknown tramps, stealing a ride went down with the wreck and were burned to death. The engineer and fireman saved themselves by jumping.

The Baker city Blade gives very good advice to its citizens with respect to new comers who seek homes. It reminds them that the new comers who seek homes form a poor idea of lands or conveniences when they are treated as if they are strangers, who shall be plundered. If an old resident treats a home-seeker well, harnesses up his team and drives him around to where he can take land, an impression is created in favor of the country and the people. There was a time when our own people were glad to receive such attentions. If good people come here show them the best locations. Sell nothing to them at speculative prices and they will soon become neighbors and friends.—Ex.

John Edwards and wife arrived in Newberg this week, after a visit to relatives at Central Point, Oregon. They report a pleasant trip and are glad to get back to Newberg in good health.

Boys coming for castor oil should bring eight or ten more boys along with them to weigh their hats while the clerk is getting the oil.

When you got two kinds of medicine, be sure and rub the physic on your side and take the liniment in teaspoonful doses.—Des Moines Register.

John Catcheth On Well.
A San Francisco Chinaman who has been thrice sentenced to be hanged for murder and as many times relieved was last week granted a new trial. He says he has no fear of reaching the gallows so long as his money holds out. The moon-eyed celestial has caught the spirit of our American civilization.—Chicago Times.

Monroe Flouring Mills Burned

The Monroe flouring mills and grain warehouse, situated at Monroe, Benton county, were burned to the ground Tuesday morning. Just at midnight, Elmer Samuels, night watchman in the mill, stumbled and fell, breaking the lantern he carried. All efforts to extinguish the flames were futile. Only about 100 barrels of flour were saved.

The shed adjoining caught fire and the entire mass of wheat was burnt, amounting in value to some $7000, belonging to farmers, uninsured, and some 7000 bushels of wheat insured for $5000, sacks worth $1000, and $1500 worth of shorts, insured for $2000, belonging to Thomas Samuels, proprietor of a half interest in the mill. The building and machinery were only half insured, for $2000, by Thomas Samuels as his interest. The value of the mill and machinery was fully $8000.—Oregonian.

Queen of the Typewriter

A young woman in Washington who is at the head of a typewriting establishment says that since the new administration came into power her business has increased marvelously. The reason is that each applicant for office thinks he must have his paper typewritten. The young woman claims that each of her assistants has earned an average of $70 a week since March 4. She charges an increase over the usual rates to compensate for the bad spelling and writing, and has no difficulty in securing it.—Ex.

The rush of people to Oregon is unprecedented, and they find their way to all parts of Western and Eastern Oregon. Forty immigrants from Kansas arrived at Forest Grove one day last week, looking for homes in Washington county. The like is the case with all other towns both in Oregon and Washington, and the crowd of new comers increases as the spring opens. Many come with moderate means, intending to buy land. As a rule, values are appreciating, but not unduly so. It is reasonable to believe that those who come to locate now will find better bargains in land than those who come later. Now is the time to locate on farms in Oregon.—Oregonian.
