The skill and a zone of intense heat. docility of the little animals are truly wonderful, and would, even in dogs, be considered a proof of great intelligence. The cats are concealed in two small wooden houses or kennels, which stand opposite each other with a row of fifty chairs between them.

The performance begins by rainer tapping on the roof of one of the houses. Immediately a cat comes out of the door, and, after being stroked and patted by its master, leaps to the top of the first chair and then goes lightly and gracefully from one chair to the next, stepping only on the backs. until it reaches the other house, into which it retires.
