BUT FARE YE WELL, AULD THISTLE BEN! Young Mr. Sawbones, first year in medical college; sees an editorial headed "The Dan-ger of Apathy"—"The incomprehensible ignorance of these editors!" he exclaims grandly; "they write about things of which they know absolutely nothing. Now, you take apathy in time and there isn't a dangerous feature in it: the veriest quack can handle it." Puts on his hat and goes out to look after a case of incipient inertia.

STILL HAE A' STAKE. A Boston broker lost a wallet containing $15,000 on the street and a newsboy found it and brought it to the owner. The man struggled with a terrible temptation to be mean and sordid for a moment, and then forgetting self and casting to the winds his greed of gain as he trampled the temptation under his feet, gave the honest boy permission to go on the Common and play every day. "We can trust you," sobbed the grateful man; "we know that you will keep off the grass." Oh, how often this opportunity to make others happy by a kind word, a gentle smile or some little act of kindness knocks at our doors and we heed it not, until it is too late. Oh, that more people were like the Boston man. (P. S.—They are.)

"WHEN HAME YE MAKE!" Where, oh, where has the young man gone who graduation clothes put on, some time along the last of May, and owned the whole wide world for a day? And where is the weet girl graduate, who chanted an essay dread with fate and started out with a giggling frown to turn this old world upside down! And where is last year's candidate, who had things fixed for this year's slate! Who carried around, as you'd believe, a couple of counties in his sleeve? And where s the scribe with a vaulting will who tried a ong felt want to fill, and courted shekels and renown with a minion paper in a bourgeois town? The lad has divided the world up fair, and holds but his own eight billionth share; the sweet girl grad, is a grand surprise, and onquers the world with well made pies; the andidate with the deathless "gall" is fixing himself for another fall; while the journalist with the haughty crest has gone the way of ast year's nest. So year by year and day by day the world runs on in the same old way;

the balloon that is biggest round about is the IT MAKS AN UNCO' LEEWAY. There is one thing Ignatius O'Donnelly might have done very easily, if he had thought of it—he might do it yet—prove that nounces two Uncle Toms-these, with the four meat hounds, would give an ingenious

REAL AND IMITATION BABIES. A Boston woman comes out in print to de-nounce "that lingual dish wash, popularly known as baby talk." Oh, well, that's to be expected in Beanville, where Joseph Cook is primary kindergarden teacher. We believe, firmly believe, that a baby who believe, regarded as a model child's nurse and that? is born with eye glasses and a theory should be called a babe at birth and addressed as sir or madam. Out upon your machine made babe! knew one long ago. His name was Henderson

He said to me; "Excuse me, sir, but could you kindly enlighten me as to the character of this strange looking craft toward which our steps are tending and, also, can you tell me to whom does it belong?" 1 clutched the little monster by the neck and held him under the dredge boat for an hour, I expected a scene with his mother, but she only said that "Henderson was very far advanced; his Uncle Dennison did not drown until he was 49." They didn't bury Hender-son. They pressed him between the pages of . Colto i's Atlas, and he flattened out and of that sort of children. I am glad I drowned him. DRUGS FOR THE NERVES.

An elegantly dressed woman of mid dle age, whose face bore traces of great beauty, entered one of the largest drug stores in Brooklyn, and walking quickly to the rear of the store, where one of the proprietors was busy mix-ing prescriptions, handed him a slip of paper. Before she had reached him the proprietor had seen her coming and, stopping his work, had reached almost mechanically for a large bot-tle which stood on a shelf behind him and which was filled with some white substance. As he took the slip of paper, which was evidently a prescription, he simply glanced at it and pro-ceeded to weigh out a certain portion of the contents of the bottle, which he wrapped up and handed to the lady. When she was gone an Eagle reporter, who had been standing by, asked the proprietor what it was he had given 'Bromide of potassium," was the laconic reply. 'What is it used for?" was then asked.

"You have no idea, young man," he continued, "how much we see of that and kindred hypnotics every day. It is simply awful. No one outside of this business and the medical professions of the number of this business and the medical profes-sion has any idea of the number of educated, well to do people who use bromide of potassium, bromide of so-dium and chloral every night to induce sleep. Morphine and opium are perhaps not used as much as they were, for the law is that none shall be sold by druggists unless on prescrip-tion. We have regular customers, though, for opium, who obtain pre-scriptions for the deadly drug in some way. One man comes here every second day for his regular allowance. He is a poor man, too, and I asked him the other night what he would do if he should finally find himself in a po-sition where he had no money to buy what to him is the staff of life. 'Do,' he exclaimed, with a look of despair, God only knows what I should do. Kill myself, I suppose.'

"How did that man get into the "He was severely injured and taken to the hospital. While there his se-vere paroxysms of pain were relieved by morphine. When he was discharged as convalescent at intervals he had recurring spells of this pain, and naturally he turned to the same drug for relief. It is quite impossible for him to break off the habit, for he cannot work unless he has his usual dose, and he is dependent upon his trade for a livelihood." "What is the latest fad in hyp-notics?"

"Solfonal, a product of petroleum. Before solfonal, antipyrine was all the rage, the latter also coming from petroleum. There is a peculiar fact about people who use nerve quieting drugs, and that is, the moment a new one is discovered, although it may have scarcely become known to phy-sicians, there is a call for it immedimight have done very easily, if he had thought of it—he might do it yet—prove that Harriet Beecher Stowe didn't write the "Uncle thing and when one discovers a new natives are very fond of it and drink it Tom's Cabin" that is presented on the stage ten times a week all through and between the solfonal is a very recent dissolfonal is a very recent distovery. In spite of the old saying about a fool's ability to ask questions, it remains true that a man needs to know something before he can safely make inquiries. Mr. Frith's recent autobiography contains an anecdote in point. Constable, our best landscape painter, is a merry fellow, and very rich.

"What, all this?"

"What, frame and all?" At last the gardener came to a frame that was hung against the wall with no picture in it. He gazed at it for a minute, and then, turning to Constable, he inquired in all simplicity, "You don't call this picture quite finished, do you, sir?"—Youth's Com-

Best Time for Exercise.

In order to be beneficial exercise should be taken when the system is sufficiently vigorous to be able to meet it, as is the case after a lapse of from two to four hours after a moderate meal. If exercise be delayed till some degree of exhaustion from the want of food has occurred, it speedily dissi-pates the strength which remains and mpairs digestion instead of promoting it. Early morning exercise has been favored, but it is as much to be reprobated as early mental or physical labor, because at that time vitality is at its lowest ebb, and it needs stimulation rather than further depletion; certainly none but the gentlest exer-cise should be taken until the exhausted system has been supplied with abundant nourishment.—New York Telegram.

It is a noteworthy circumstance that while the female population of Boston is much greater than the male pepulation, the statistics of marriage show that exactly as many women as men-to wit, 5,461-were married in the city last year |- Boston Transcript

SOUTH SEA CUSTOMS.

Wrecked Sailors Feasted by Royalty. Even at this late period in the Nine-teenth century, when the people are supposed to know something of almost every habitable spot upon the globe, they continually meet with something new in the habits and customs of races living in some remote part of the world. Members of the crew of the world. Members of the crew of the ship John Bryce, which was wrecked in the South Pacific, give a graphic account of the drinking of "kava" by the natives of the island upon which they landed after being in an open boat seven days. It was the island of Manus, located about 18 degrees south latitude and 176 degrees west longitude. There is only one white resident there—an Englishman.

dent there—an Englishman. After the arrival of the shipwrecked party King Malatua, who reigns over the little island, gave them a banquet, which is thus described by John Wilke, one of the crew:

His majesty issued an order to his subjects to bring in the material for the dinner, which they did. It was served in a large bamboo house at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, banana leaves being spread on the floor for a table cover. The king sat at the head with his chiefs on his right. Capt. Murphy was to occupy the seat to his left, but, as he was ill, the king's daughter took the seat. A crowd of natives were ranged around the walls of the house, while women and girls were singing and dancing on the outside for the amusement of the guests. The bill of fare consisted of raw fish, fish blood sauce, cocoanuts, cocoanut milk, fowls, roasted pig and sweet potatoes.

After the dinner two young girls were sent out to dig up some kava roots, and when they returned with the required quantity they were ushered into the banqueting hall. They washed the roots and then sat They washed the roots and then sat down in front of a large basin partly filled with water. Each maiden was provided with a sort of ladle, which was fastened under her chin by means of thongs passed over the head. A root was then taken by each young lady and the process of mastication commenced. commenced.

As they chewed the saliva ran out of each corner of their mouth and into the ladle prepared to receive it under their chin. As soon as it became full it was taken off and emptied into the basin. When the root was sufficiently chewed it also was spat into the basin. When all the reots had been treated in this manner the girls proceeded to rub the stuff they had chewed between their hands and wrung and squeezed the juice out of it, throwing the refuse

The liquid in the basin was then stirred up, cocoanuts shell cups were produced, and the decoction was handed to each of the guests by the ladies who had done the chewing. We were warned by the Englishman in an undertone that to refuse would give the company of th give offense, so each gallant tar par-took thereof with expressions and feel ings akin to that of the small boy who was forced to swallow a dose of salts. When we had finished our meal the native men and women sat down, the festival being continued until 11 o'clock. After eight days on the island we were taken to Apia, Somoa, and there we shipped for home.—San Francisco Chronicle

John S. Wise is a noted dog man-not a "Russian dog faced man," but a Nobody owning high bred dogs is quite satisfied with his possessions until they have the approval of Wise. A favorable decision at a bench show is not more satisfactory to dog owners then each a decision from M. Wise. than such a decision from Mr. Wise, and his work on dogs is a recognized authority. He talked glibly, and John smelt bunco and wondered whether there was any hayseed in his hair. Finally he said: "See here, I think I have seen you before, but I am not a judge and I never occupied any judicial position."

"Oh, I don't mean judge of law," was the reply. "Of course I know you are no judge of that. I mean judge of dogs."—Washington Post.

Reading the smart sayings of the smart children in your paper, of which I am a regular reader, I thought I might contribute a few of the smart sayings of our "Buckeye" youngsters of which I have personal knowledge. One of my friends teaches in one of the infant rooms. She asked the defi-nition of the word "tiger." They all yelled in chorus: "A wild beast." She then asked: "What is a tigress?" But one boy ventured to hold up his hand.
His answer was: "He looks like a tiger, but he's his wife," A few Sundays ago the word "mother-in-law" was in the Sunday school lesson. The infant class teacher asked if any one knew what the word meant. Little knew what the word meant. Little Frank at once answered: "Yes. A cross old woman." One of our neigh-bors was 71 years old Christmas day. He had sixty gentlemen friends to dinner. One of the party was speaking of it to a party of friends in my presence, when Little Nell, aged 7, said:
"Papa, he might have asked you; he was at our funeral," her little brother having secently been buried.—Buokeye Girl in Chicago Herald.
