N. C. Maris drove over to the county seat on business last Tuesday.

Mrs. Case has been having a large barn built on her farm on the mountain.

The lengthy shadow of Dan Gilbert was cast on our streets last Saturday.

Hugh Heacock has a good binder and is ready to cut grain at the usual rates.

Paul May and Thomas Duncan both have good milk cows they desire to sell.

Our band boy's deserve credit for the class of music furnished on the fourth.

Prof. G. N. Hartley preached at Friends church in Portland last Sunday.

Christenson Bros. sold a new Dearing Binder this week that went up the valley.

The Parish boy's cleared over forty dollars at the celebration with their swing.

The cool damp weather is very fine on late grain and a splendid crop is insured.

That rough hole still remains on First street but don't tell the road supervisor.

Mr. Gustin out east of town had an old fashioned barn raising last Wednesday.

Cy Lamb and Jim Rees are at work on the school house in the Hoskins district.

Various buildings about town were decorated Tuesday with Robinsons circus bails.

W. P. Heacock has been at Salem lately putting up some houses for J. F. Searls.

David Martin and family departed for the sea coast July 3rd, to be gone several days.

Prof. Morrison has commenced the erection of a neat cottage on Winoski street.

Mr. Haskell has bought a horse and buggy and now rides into town in place of walking.

Mr. G. W. Wyman and family visited the family of Mr. Larkin in the country last Sunday.

Considerable hay has already been made, while some are waiting for more settled weather.

A large drove of very fine mutton sheep passed through town last Tuesday for the Portland market.

Presbyterian Sunday school at 10 o'clock, services at 11 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

W. P. Reynolds who is running the ferry at Dayton was in town a day or two this week.

Look out for a call for a meeting to take steps to prepare for the Fair to come off this fall.

Elizabeth Miles has a prospect of visiting her aged mother at San Jose California in a short time.

Don't fail to read the notice of the Academy excursion to the Capital of Oregon on Saturday July 19th.

M. M. Edwards returned from Sand Lake last week and reports everything lovely on the beach.

Miss Florence Brown who has been visiting relatives here for a few weeks returned to Salem last Saturday.

Prof. Morrison says the outlook for a full school at the opening of the fall term of the Academy is very promising.

J. H. Rees drove up to Salem last Saturday and returned Sunday, this being his first visit to the Capital of Oregon.

Probably the first piece of grain harvested in this vicinity was a field of rye cut on the farm of the writer last Wednesday.

Prunes will be as good as cash this year. The dryer men want them and shippers are also making inquiry for them already.

A stray pony was sold from the pound by the city marshal last week M. M. Edwards being the lucky man who made the last bid of $12.50.

Parties who attended the celebration at La Fayette in the forenoon and then came to ours report that we had much the larger crowd.

The P. & W. V. excursion only caught about a half dozen passengers on the fourth from Newberg. Our people preferred to celebrate at home.

Dr. Carman wishes to state that the Treasurer's report will be published next week showing the expenditures made for the celebration on the Fourth.

Howard Williams came up from Portland to celebrate and smile on his old friends, and we can safely say they are always glad to see him come.

Miss Maggie Inglis opened her Kindergarten school at the Academy last week. The enrollment of little tots has increased until she has a very nice little school.

Buy two tickets for the excursion to Salem and take your wife or your sister or some other fellow sister and enjoy a steamboat ride on the beautiful Willamette.

Andrew Pickett started his binder last Wednesday. Grain is ripening slowly this cool weather and it will probably be a week or ten days before much wheat is harvested.

We had a very orderly crowd here on the fourth. The fact is we hardly ever have any other kind at Newberg on a public day, be it said to the credit of the place.

Mr. Paxson who has been working at Smocks came up home to attend the celebration. He brought his brother and his family who are just out from New Mexico.

We understand that the stock company that owns the Winoski warehouse on the river, is thinking of moving the building up to the railroad in time for this seasons crop.

Clarence and Walter Edwards visited at the Capital city last week and took in the great blowout on the fourth. They report a crowd of immense proportions and a glorious time.

At the entertainment last Friday night Mrs. Hartley gave the old familiar poem of Edgar A. Poe "The Raven," in the most easy, graceful manner that we have ever heard it rendered.

Hans Christenson has rented his farm up the valley and is building a residence on the twenty-acre piece of land he bought of San Hess. G. C. Christenson is doing the carpenter work.

Jas. Jones who has been carpentering for some time at Winlock Washington at Vincent & Spaulding's saw mill returned last week and has been shaking hands around town for several days.

Paul May has traded his farm in Iowa to Mr. Waltha for the fruit dryer on the Winoski street. Will May and Mr. Hodgson will run the dryer this season. They were out buying prunes during the week.

Harrison Gordon who spent last summer here writes from Waynesville Ohio that he would like very much to be back with us and feast on fruit. They will have none to speak of in that country.

Moses Votaw cashier of the Bank, and Maris & Colcord managers of the Board of Immigration, are rejoicing over the erection of an awning that has been put up to shade the front door and windows of their building.

M. M. Edwards and his son Jap started for the coast yesterday taking Sam. Holston and A. M. Hoskins and their families.

Mr. Edwards will harvest a crop of hay on his ranch while the others take in the sights.

Mr. Paxson and his brother lately from New Mexico went to the Land Office at Oregon City last Monday to examine the records with a view of visiting the country over on the coast in a few days to look for government land.

Hon. J. C. Nelson who has been in rather poor health for some time was in town Monday. He is much improved in health and has a trip to the coast in contemplation thinking this will straighten him out all right.

Irvin Carter who umpired the ball game on the fourth lives at Butteville and was a student here last winter at the Academy. He thinks he will be back again the coming year. He was a good student and all will be glad to have him return.

Some Bargains

May be had this coming week over our regular prices as there are certain lines of goods we will close now to make room for fall trade. Close buyers will take notice. MORRIS, MILES & CO.

People who have not been accustomed to Oregon seasons began to say a few weeks ago that gardens would do no good this season but the same parties wear a hand smile now as they tell of their big potatoes and other fine garden stuff.

J. T. Smith has sold a half interest in his general merchandise store to Milton Hampton. Business will be continued at the old stand where the new firm will be glad to wait on all old customers as well as many new ones, and do them good.

Some miscraent cut a part of the ropes to the Advent tent last Sunday night. This was a very small piece of business to say the least and it is to be hoped that the guilty parties may be found and made to suffer the full penalties of the law.

Rev. W. L. Beaumont will address the Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday afternoon. His subject will be the use of the Bible in forming Christian Character. An earnest invitation is extended to all young men of Newberg and vicinity to be present.

Chas. Haworth has traded a part of his land between town and the river for a stock farm over north of Clehalem mountain. We understand the party he traded with whose name is Whitmore, will commence to build on his property here at once.

No one style of Corset can please every lady for they are not all the same figure. We present a line of Corsets to you from which you may be fitted and your form really improved or we will refund your money. We are sole agents for this make and carry about twenty styles in all sizes. MORRIS, MILES & CO.

Since Monday morning Next Bolton has been the happiest man in town, and this is the song he sings:

Blow your trumpet inside out,
And cry aloud for joy;
For I'm the happy father
Of a bounding baby boy.

The Cammings boys are doing a land office business with their well boring machine. They have bored several wells already this season and now have forty wells engaged ahead. They are getting a drill and will soon be ready to go through rock if necessary.

Old Charley the faithful cart horse at the tile factory is getting to be an expert at climbing down stair steps to get into the pit. Travelers along the road stop to see the performance and the boy's are talking of making a charge for the exhibition.

The Whittier (Cal.) Painter states that Perry C. Hadley has moved to the vicinity of Santa Ana to take charge of a stock ranch. David J. Wood has sold his property in town and has moved to an alfalfa rancho in the valley and J. C. Hatt is superintending a fruit dryer.

Residents of the surrounding country have learned to expect a quiet orderly crowd at Newberg on a public day, and this is the reason so many people like to bring their families to spend the day with us. A good reputation is just as necessary for the prosperity of a town, as it is for an individual.

For The Ladies.

We have secured the agency for this city for the sale of the most popular corset now on the market. This is the make of the largest Corset Factory in the United States and their styles are in the lead over all other kinds where ever introduced.

We have the sole contract of these goods and will display them in all styles that may be required by the different forms of the wearers and can satisfy the most fastidious tastes.

It will be a pleasure to show these goods to all intending purchasers. MORRIS, MILES & CO.

Charley Vaughan who works in the car shops at Dundee says they are giving the cars a complete over-hauling. They find the timbers in nearly all the cars weak, and many of them rotten so they are hardly strong enough to hold a brake.

It is really a wonder that more lives have not been lost on the road when the condition of the rolling stock is considered.

Abie Bond from Grand River, Indian Territory is visiting his cousin Wm. Holston north of town. Mr. Bond has spent a great deal of time during his life traveling over the country distributing religious tracts. Several years ago he made the trip across the plains on foot and traveled up and down the Willamette valley giving out his literature as he went. He is now on his way to Vancouver's Island on a similar mission.

Notice to Contractors.

On and after Tuesday July 15th, 1890 plans and specifications for a two-story brick bank building 2x32 feet may be seen at the Bank of Newberg. The time for letting the contract will be stated later.

Photographer at the Beach.

Samuel Holston the picture man started for Big Nescutera with his family yesterday. He has his camera with him and anybody who wants to be "took" will find him located at Big Nescutera by the sounding sea with his instrument loaded ready for large or small game. They will be gone two weeks or more.

Newberg Fair.

There will be a meeting held at the fair grounds on Wednesday July 10th, at 4 p. m. to elect officers and make other arrangements for holding the annual fair. Let everybody who feel an interest in the success of the fair turn out and make an enthusiastic meeting.

E. H. Woodward, A. W. Rees, Pres. Secy.

Blaine vs Gladstone.

Blaine's famous reply to Gladstone has just been issued in pamphlet form. This is one of the ablest presentations of the benefits of Protection yet published, and should be widely read. Send for a copy to the American Protective Tariff League, 23 West Twenty-third Street, New York, enclosing a two-cent stamp.

A New Brick.

The Directors of the Bank of Newberg have fully decided, as will be seen by their notice to contractors and builders in another place, to build a handsome brick bank building 48 by 52 feet, two stories high, on the northwest corner of First and Meridian street. The plan of the building will be able to give next week. Good substantial brick buildings are what we need and everybody will be glad to see the good work commence.

Steamboat Excursion to Salem.

The steamer "Orient" has been chartered for an excursion to Salem on Saturday, July 19th 1890. The steamer will leave Butteville at 4:30 a. m. and Newberg at 6 a. m. sharp, and will arrive at the Capital City at 11 a. m. and leave at 5:30 p. m. giving six hours and a half to view the Capital of Oregon and the public buildings. Refreshments will be furnished on board the boat at reasonable rates. Those desiring to take their own lunch can do so. This excursion will be run for the benefit of Friends Pacific Academy and the proceeds will go to this institution. Tickets will be on sale at the Bank of Newberg during the week. Only a limited number will be sold and those desiring a pleasant trip on the beautiful Willamette had better apply early. Tickets for the round trip, $1.00. Children 6 to 12 years, .50.

Jesse Edwards, Manager.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

"For God and Home and Native Land."

W. C. T. U. meeting next Saturday at 3 o'clock p. m.

Dispatches from Iowa declare that the 'original package' decision is already bearing fruit in that state. At Des Moines two 'package' houses, are already in operation, while Sioux City has eight or ten just opened. Beer is kept on tap and whisky sold over the bar precisely the same as in licensed saloons. Liquor dealers everywhere, given an inch are taking an ell.

The prize of $50 offered by Mrs. Geo. S. Hunt, of Portland, Maine, for the best essay by a college undergraduate on the 'Relation of Temperance to Political Economy' is arousing considerable interest on this subject among college men. Professor Ely, of Johns Hopkins university, has consented to act as judge of the essays, which were to be in his hands by the 1st. of June.

In Nebraska corn sells for less than it costs to raise it, and beef and pork are scarcely worth raising because there are not enough consumers. Destroy the liquor traffic, use the money that is spent for whisky to purchase flour, meal, beef, pork, woolen clothing, etc., and the products of the farms from this improved demand alone would increase in value from fifty to a hundred per cent.—W. F. Eastman, editor Western Farmer.

Kansas is not dead yet, though it has prohibition. It also has a school for every 185 persons, a Sunday school for every 420, only five criminals for every 10,000, and reports an increase of wealth per capita of 40 per cent. Massachusetts, under the 'restrictive' policy of license, has one school for every 600, one Sunday school for every 1230, and twenty criminals for every 10,000 of the population, with an increase of wealth per capita of only five per cent.

Lady Henry Somerset, of East Norwiche, England, who is mentioned as the probable successor of Margaret Bright Lucas as president of the British Women's Temperance association, is a loyal wife, a devoted mother and an active worker in the World's W. C. T. U. Although a lady of wealth and rank, keeping thirty or forty servants, she devotes her great social influence as well as her unusual intellectual abilities, to the furtherance of the temperance reform, and her voice is often heard in public advocacy of the principles she believes in.

Miss Frances E. Willard gives her views on marriage as follows: "My theory of marriage in its relation to society would give this postulate: Husband and wife are one, and that one—husband and wife. I believe they will never come to the heights of purity, of power and peace for which they were designed in heaven until this better law prevails. One undivided half of the world for wife and husband equally; co-education to unite them on the plane of mind; equal property rights to make her God's own free woman, not coerced into marriage for the sake of support nor a bond-slave after she is married. A woman left free to go her honorable and self-respecting way as a maiden in perpetuo rather than marry a man whose deterioration through the alcohol and nicotine habits is a deadly menace to herself and the descendants that such a marriage has invoked. These are the outlooks of the future that shall make the marriage system, never a failure after it became monogamous, an assured, a permanent, a paradisaical success.

The foreign settlement of Shanghai China, initiated by British treaty is locally called the 'model settlement' and is regarded as presenting to the Chinese government and people almost perfect illustration of western Christian civilization. This 'model settlement' covering a space no larger than an English country town, contains one thousand and sixty licensed opium shops, several of which will accommodate from five hundred to a thousand persons. Adjacent to the opium shops are dens of moral infamy as many, in number as the opium shops. The female inmates of these dens, including little girls not more than fifteen years old, are registered by the municipality. For the security of other wicked men, the municipal council of the 'model settlement' causes a photograph of each registered girl to be attached to her card. The card is signed by a municipal doctor and is a practical license to sin. In the Chinese city of Shanghai, which is of course beyond the limits and power of the British municipality, not one such den of infamy is publicly known. Chinese law is severe upon keepers and owners of such houses. The owners are liable to from eighty to one hundred blows with the bamboo and to banishment for two or three years, with forfeiture of the house. A keeper's punishment is different in kind but equally deterrent. A recent strong protest against this terrible state of affairs, made by a few Christian men of the foreign settlement, was met with indifferent silence on the part of the council. They deprecated discussion.

ELLA HIGGINSON has the following very sensible article in last weeks West Shore. Every young man and young woman should read it.

Young women are not so eager to exchange an independent maidenhood for marriage as they used to be. They are inclined to look, not so much at what a man has, but at what he is. Instead of being asked for an estimate of his worldly goods, his yearly income, his ideas as to what a wife's regular allowance should be, and all those ceteras that used to weigh so heavily with practical parents and marriageable daughters, the young man who goes a-wooing to-day is liable to be taken up short with such questions: "What are your habits?" "What are your morals?" "Where do you pass your leisure hours?" "Do you gamble?" "Do you drink?" "Do you frequent saloons?"—and unless the answers are satisfactory, thank God! our young women are gathering sufficient sense and independence to earn their own living and pass young men of loose morals by, no matter how heavy their pocket books may be, or how many ancestors they may have trailing like ghosts down the dead years behind them, or how many honorables their relatives may have bought and tacked to their names. To be honest and independent! My dear girl, there is nothing in the whole world like it. Gold, honor, fame, beauty—all fade to insignificance beside the woman who stands up proudly before the world, secure in her own convictions as to what is right and what is wrong, and says firmly, but with infinite gentleness, to the man who loves her, and whom, perhaps, she already loves: "No; I will not sink to your level. I will do all in my power to lift you to mine, and, if you rise, you will never regret it, for those who dwell in this high, pure atmosphere have exquisite pleasures that those who grovel upon the earth never know. Think upon it, and take your choice; leave your past life and you may have my love, strong, pure, deathless, as only the love of a woman who does not yield lightly to being; cling to your past life, or to anything which will shrink before my clear eyes, and you may never so much as lay your lips upon the hem of my gown." The eddies—those rarest and purest of snow flowers—never look downward, but always upward; and it is only gathered once in a while by one who climbs to it.

Do not judge too harshly a man's past life. So much depends upon circumstances, influences, companions. But judge him sternly after he once professes to love you. Make no allowance for him then, or the day will come when you will regret it in heartaches and passionate tears. If he does not love you well enough, to give up bad habits for your sake, I ask you—I beg you—for your own happiness and for the happiness of the women who must come after you and who may follow in your footsteps, do not trust him, do not make allowances for his shortcomings, do not marry him! If we are to avoid divorces, we must elevate, and make, more difficult, marriage; if we would elevate marriage, we must improve the morals and the habits of the men. This is a work that lies in women's hands alone. Do not sink to any man's level, but lift him up to yours; if you can not do this, let him go, though it cause you suffering to do it. Better it were to suffer now than to feel your heart crumble away, bit by bit, through all the future years. Stand upright—alone if need be—with a hand and a will ready for any work and any fate strong in your own independence and in your own convictions of right and wrong. I believe there is no fate happier or higher than that of a woman who is married to a man who is worthy of her; but let her find out before—and not after—marriage whether he is or is not.
