Call at Mrs. Hoskins' green house on River Street, for pot plants.

Hans Christenson is building a residence in the west end of town.

Noah Healer has been laying off from carpentering, nursing a sore finger.

4in. crown and bed moulding 1 ct. per running foot at Depot lumber yard.

Clark McCorkle, of Marion county, was in town on business during the week.

Several wagon loads of nice finishing lumber are arriving in town daily now.

Cabbage plants for sale at my place east of the park. E. W. WEESNER.

Miss Mary Cook, who has been teaching music at Marion, is at home this week.

Miss Emma Daskins, who is teaching near Gaston, has been home during the week.

R. E. Hoskins has gone to Snookville to work in the brick yard this summer. He left Tuesday.

The Gromans who purchased land in Wynook addition, have put up a house and moved into it.

A. C. Atkinson and family started Tuesday morning for a few weeks visit to eastern Washington.

Grant Wiley has purchased a couple of lots in central addition and will build a house thereon soon.

Mr. Clemenson is improving his property near the railroad, preparatory to building his new residence.

J. Leonard Myers, the barber, is building a commodious shop on Main street. Verily Newberg grows.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have decided to hold their meetings in the Y. M. C. A. rooms hereafter.

Rustic, V. rustic, or double V. rustic, as cheap as the cheapest for first class work, at Mitchell & Clark's.

A gentleman named Smith, was here last Sunday from Portland, visiting his brother-in-law Elisha Smith.

Frank Mills is building a rustic bridge to connect his residence with first street at the east end of the bridge.

Phil Bruner, having sold his property here, bade farewell to Newberg and started Tuesday for eastern Oregon.

Several head of stock have found their way into the city inclosure lately.

Amos Nelson, of West Chehalis, was delivering hogs in town Wednesday.

The Misses Holston, of Albina, have been here for several days visiting their many friends in town and community.

W. C. Kruger is fencing his lots adjoining central addition, and contemplating building a dwelling on them this summer.

Heston & Biermann have bought Frank Mills' team, and are fitting up a well angled to be run with a horse, instead of by hand.

James Vestal is fencing the lots purchased from Solomon Haworth, and will go into the chicken business quite extensively.

Mr. Winder, a brother-in-law of Frank Mills, moved here last week from Puyallup, Washington. He will work at carpentering.

Miss Elma Brown came down from Salem last week, to see her sister Florence, who is sick at the residence of her uncle, J. H. Rees.

Several of the ladies of our town, are arranging to attend the Pacific coast conference of the W. C. T. U. at Portland next week.

Rev. Edward Eadson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of La Fayette, will preach at this place next Sunday at the usual hour.

Frank Elliott left Monday for his season's work in the forests of Oregon. He will work with Mr. Britt, the surveyor, again this summer.

If you want any extra copies of next week's issue of the GRAPHIC to send to friends in the east, send in your orders as early as possible.

Frank Hobson, Lee Stanley and Warren and Walter Robertson are surveying the Reed farm near Dundee, for Reed & Hobson, of Portland.

Miss Ella Olds, an old student of the F. P. A., came up from McMinnville last week, and has been visiting among her many friends in Newberg.

Mrs. Mount went to Portland Wednesday, to lay in a new stock of goods for their hardware store. Trade has been good with them this spring.

Rev. F. A. Powell will preach the annual G. A. R. memorial sermon at the Evangelical church, next Sunday evening, May 24th at 2 o'clock p. m.

Miss Daisy Traubold, a former student of the academy, came up Wednesday to visit friends and be present at the commencement exercises this week.

Messrs. Hanson and Davis, of Sioux City, Iowa, who bought sixty acres from Jesse Hobson, are busily engaged making extensive improvements thereon.

Mr. Kincaid, of Portland, who bought the Lusher place, arrived here on the train Tuesday with his household goods, and has taken possession of his purchase.

Members of the Baptist church, are out with a subscription list to raise money to build their new church, and we understand they are meeting with good success.

The fine weather we are having now will soon cause people to begin to overhaul their tents and camp equipage preparatory to an outing in the mountains or along the beach.

Sash weights at Portland prices at the Lumber Yard near depot.

Milt Nicholson, in order to keep up with the procession, is having his house repainted.

Both livery firms in town have been fitting up their stables with better horses and new carriages, which indicates that business in their line is improving. Glad to see it.

There may now be found some of the best daily, weekly and monthly periodicals on the reading table at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. It is a pleasant place to spend a leisure hour.

Parties living on Dayton Prairie were delivering hogs here Wednesday, for a Portland Chinaman, who received about a hundred head on that day. He paid $4.25 per hundred.

Mr. Storey, our new tinsmith, says he has cause to feel elated at the prospect for work in his line, as he already has work engaged ahead to keep him busy for the next month.

Mr. Bruner has sold his lots and house, just west of the school house, to Mr. Webster, who will remodel and finish the house and make other improvements about the premises.

The road from Schilling's down the mountain is to be opened this week, and will prove of great benefit to the people up that way who have to go out of their way now to get to town.

We are informed that Charley Vaughan, who lives west of town, has been quite sick for some time with something like nervous prostration, and is taking treatment from a Portland physician.

California strawberries sold in Portland for fifteen cents per quart last week, while forty cents per quart was paid for an invoice from Hood River, Oregon. That's the difference in the berries.

Mr. Cummings, the carpenter, is transforming the barn on the Halley property on River street into a workshop, and informs us that he is ready to take contracts. He will, no doubt, find plenty to do.

Tico & Tibodo are prepared to do all kinds of work in their line, such as painting, gilding, calculating, paper hanging and decorating. They also guarantee all work first-class or no pay. Give them a trial.

Dr. Ross C. Houghton and W. C. Avery, of the Newberg Orchard Association, were in town Monday. They inform us that they will spare no expense necessary to make their orchards the finest in the valley.

Stone for foundations for buildings seems to be taking the place of brick. Good hard burned brick suitable for foundations are hard to get and a foundation of stone is a thing that once in, is eternal.

We would suggest that it would be a good plan to have a showing of roses at the next horticultural meeting in connection with the exhibit of strawberries and cherries. What is more beautiful than a collection of nice roses?

Wm. Bond informs us that he is thinking of building a residence on his property in town this summer or fall. Mr. Bond has very desirable property being high and slightly and we will be glad to see a fine house going up on it.

Mr. O'Brien, of West Chehalis, was in town Tuesday. He informed us that as he came here to do all his trading he had changed his mail to this point. Most of the people of the upper end of the valley are doing the same.

The sons of veterans will give an entertainment and maple sugar supper at Armory Hall on the evening of the 27th. Pure maple sugar and no fake. It was sent to A. P. Oliver by his father direct from Vermont. Take your best girl and have a sweet time.

Those of our people who wish to take a look at snow-capped Mt. Jefferson have only to cross the canyon east of town and follow the road east until opposite E. W. Weesner's house, where a splendid view may be had through an opening to the southeast. It is a fine sight.

Oregon evergreen blackberries are getting for themselves a name away from home, as evidenced by the fact that J. I. Knight received an order for a hundred plants last week from a friend in southern California. California is a great fruit state, but she has to come to Oregon to get good prunes and berries.

Dr. Clark, who is a veteran drummer from away back, is drilling a company of boys who are forming a drum corps. The boys received an installment of second hand drums from Portland Tuesday, and the evening practice reminds one of the beating up for volunteers during the war.

Enos Coppock arrived here from Ohio, the first of the week with his family, and is stopping with his brother-in-law, Ennor Hall. He controls the territory on the coast for a new style jump-seat carriage, and while this is his business here he says he is done with the east and expects to locate somewhere on the coast.

It is currently reported that a wealthy man who lives near Sacramento, California, has an agent in Oregon, who is visiting different points in the Willamette valley and offering $1,000 per acre for orchards of six year old prune trees in good condition. This may sound like a big story to people who have not been accustomed to high prices, but if prune orchards are worth this figure in California where expensive irrigation is necessary to produce a crop of marketable fruit, we see no reason why the same figure may not be paid for Oregon orchards when we consider that no irrigation is required and Oregon prunes are conceded by competent judges to be of better size and just as well flavored as the California prunes. California orchardists say that the French prune is about the only one that they can raise successfully while we can produce this variety just as well or better than they can, and the silver, Italian and other varieties equally as well as the French prune. The time is not far distant when the man who owns a thrifty growing prune orchard will have a bonanza.

Mr. Britt takes quite a force of men from Newberg this year. Besides Frank Elliott, who left Monday, Lon Hill, Charley Mendenhall and Clint Smith left Wednesday morning. We wish them all a prosperous and pleasant season's work.

Mr. Lawson brought a curiosity to town Tuesday, in the shape of a chicken just out of the shell that had four well developed legs, four wings and two tails. Had it lived it would no doubt have made a good campaign rooster as it could have served at least two political parties at the same time, being able to have one tail up while the other was down.

O. Winslow, who spent a few months here a year or two ago, but who is now living in Louisiana, sent word to Lin Parker a short time ago that if he raised a good rice crop this season he intended to return to Oregon, and if he failed to raise a good crop he was coming anyway. This looks like Mr. Winslow would become a resident of Newberg again. The boys will get back.

Prof. Hartley says that while all are at liberty to visit the park, he would be pleased if they would bear in mind that it is private property, and not break limbs from the trees or shrubbery, or disarrange anything about the park. As long as the Prof. has been at the expense of fixing up this beautiful place, which all may visit free, it would seem no more than right to respect his wishes in this regard.

Announcement.

All delegates expecting to attend the State Convention and Pacific Coast Conference of the W. C. T. U. will report themselves at the Tabernacle, on Morrison and Tenth streets, immediately on arrival in Portland, where a committee will be in waiting to assign homes.

Col. Bain, Kentucky's great orator, will speak in the Tabernacle in Portland, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the 27 and 28.

MARY E. K. EDWARDS, Co. Pres.

Owners of old infected orchards will do well to take the necessary steps to put them in proper shape as the inspector is liable to be around at any time, and he is clothed with the proper authority to compel those who are inclined to be indifferent in this matter to comply with the law on the subject. It is all right and proper that one man should not be allowed to keep an orchard in such a condition that it will breed pests to ruin the fruit of his neighbors orchard.

N. E. Britt came home Tuesday, to visit with his family before starting out on his annual surveying trip. He starts this week and his crew is made up of Frank Elliott, Charley Mendenhall, Clint Smith and Lon Hill of our town, and Charley Cavil, of Middleton, and one or two others from other points. Their first point is in the vicinity of Eugene. People out south will do well to look out for chicken roosts, melon patches and peach orchards from this date until the coming of the winter rains in the fall.

A lady writing from a certain point on Puget Sound, Washington, says a copy of the GRAPHIC had fallen into her hands, by which she saw that Newberg was a temperance town. She makes inquiry about different lines of business, saying they can't afford to stay where they are and raise a family under saloon influences. Again we say let the towns around us take the class that want to locate in saloon towns and we will take those who are looking for a town that gives encouragement to churches and schools in preference to the saloon.

Mr. Pinney's large mule team, feeling rather good last Monday morning, after a rest over Sunday, concluded it would be real amusing to scamper off up the road while attached to the wagon filled with farming implements and a seed drill hooked on behind. Mr. Pinney and young Mr. Stevens finally persuaded them that it was real naughty to act that way, after they had broken up a plow and demolished the drill. It seems that Kansas mules that have been accustomed to a good breeze every day, feel best to raise a little breeze of their own when they get out here where gentle zephyrs are so rare.

Next week's issue of the GRAPHIC will contain an article descriptive of Newberg and Chehalis valley, which we have prepared with a view of satisfying those who desire reliable information to send to friends in the east who are making inquiry about this country. In making statements we have confined ourselves to facts that can be easily substantiated and we believe that our readers will have no hesitancy in sending copies of the paper to their friends. Send in your orders early, as we will only print such a number as we have reason to believe will be wanted.

We received the card Monday, and this is the way it read—Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Wood request your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mattie, to Augustus H. Gregg, Thursday morning, May 21st, at seven o'clock. Whittier, California, 1891. Miss Wood has many schoolmates and friends here who will wish to wish her a pleasant and successful journey through life. We would have been real glad to be present on the occasion of the marriage and given such assistance as we could in the way of devoting the nice cake and "chicken fixings," but the intervening distance prevented.

The attendance at the funeral of Dr. D. W. Lyle last Friday was one of the largest ever seen in this place. The Evangelical church was filled with people even before those who had assembled at the house arrived, and it was necessary to repair to the Friends' church, where the funeral services were held, conducted by Rev. Howard, of the M. E. church. Upon leaving the church the remains were taken charge of by Kilpatrick post, and interred with the ceremonies of the order. The doctor was 55 years of age, having celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday the Saturday before his death. We are informed that his death resulted from consumption, from which he had suffered for a number of years, instead of heart disease, as was announced last week. He leaves a wife, and four daughters to mourn his loss, to whom the entire community extend sincere sympathy.

Notice is hereby given that the school tax in Dist. No. 29, Yamhill county, Ore., is now due, and unless paid by June 2, 1891, will be deemed delinquent and turned over to the county clerk for collection. By order of School Board. N. C. CHRISTENSON, Dist. Clerk.

Closing Exercises.

The closing exercises of a school are always looked forward to with a great deal of interest by teachers, students, parents and others interested. In the small district school it is the thoughts of the "last day" that makes the little fellow's heart go p-t-a-p-t, while the older student who attends the academy or college, shrugs his shoulders as he thinks of the audience he must face when he arises to deliver his first oration at commencement exercises. While the attendance at the academy has not been large during the spring term, the interest among the students in their studies has been well maintained to the close. The attendance during the year has been something more than a hundred, and a more studious, well behaved set of students have never attended the academy here.

Prof. Morrison, who retires from the principality of the school with this term, was given a very pleasant surprise on Friday evening of last week, by the students. Those in attendance this term, reinforced by others in town who had attended school during the fall and winter terms, headed by Prof. and Mrs. Hartley, in the quiet of the evening marched to the residence of Elizabeth Miles and took Prof. and Mrs. Morrison by storm. The young ladies went loaded down with nice cakes, while the young men furnished the ice cream, and the evening was passed pleasantly, partaking of the refreshments and engaging in conversation, singing and playing games. Those who attended, report a very pleasant time.

During the past term two literary societies have been kept up. The Whittier Literary Society was re-organized by the young men and strengthened in many respects, while the young ladies organized the Willard Literary Band, and in the short time they have had to work, have built up a lively society. On Wednesday evening a large company gathered in Friends' church to listen to the literary entertainment given by the young ladies, the program of which we published last week. A beautiful picture of Miss Francis Willard hung on the wall, surrounded by the words, "Willard Literary Band," the letters being tastefully arranged. The stage was ornamented with nice plants and bouquets of flowers tastefully arranged, which gave a cheerful appearance to the room. The program, which was a good one, was carried out to the letter. The thought expressed in the original productions, was in each instance excellent, but some of the speakers were a little lacking in that force which goes to make up good delivery. The Indian club exercises were well rendered, and heartily cheered by the audience. The Willard Literary Band did themselves credit in this their first public entertainment, and we look for good results from their work in the future, as they become a strong factor in connection with the school. Examinations are in progress as we go to press, and the graduating exercises are yet to take place, and we will have more to say next week.

WORSE THAN LEPROSY.

Is catarrh, and there is but one preparation that does cure that disease, and that is the California Positive and Negative Electric Lintment. Sold by C. F. Moore & Co. It also cures rheumatism, rheumatoid, headache, sprains, burns, and all pain. Try it and tell your neighbors where to get it.

ONLY ONE IN THE U. S.

Out of 137 cough syrups manufactured in the U. S., but one has been found to be entirely free from opiates and that is the California Positive and Negative Electric Cough Cure, which is the best on earth for coughs, colds, croup, etc. Sold by C. F. Moore & Co.

EXCITEMENT.

Runs high at C. F. Moore & Co's drug store over System Builder, as everybody is using it for catarrh of the stomach, dyspepsia, constipation and impure blood and to build up the system. It certainly possesses wonderful merit when all speak so well of it.

It was Carlyle who said that "the Epic poem of the future shall not begin like that of Virgil, 'Arms and a man I sing,' but 'Tools and a man I sing'—only that man shall be a woman, too; and her own quick, deft, and skillful hands shall be her bread-winner. No words more cogent have been spoken on the industrial disenfranchisement of women than by Edward Bellamy, who said that when he felt the touch of his little girl's hand upon his cheek the exclamation of Luther, 'This is a hard world for girls,' came to his lips, and he set about advocating social conditions that would make it less difficult and dangerous. While I do not accept all the theories set forth in Edward Bellamy's 'Looking Backward,' I agree with his ideas concerning the industrial emancipation of woman. In his 'Woman in the Year 2000' he shows the supreme importance to society of industrial independence among women, and says that she will not marry except for love, and if she does not marry at all, will be under no pecuniary or social disadvantage. Hear him: 'Would you gain a realization of the position of the 'old maid' in the year 2000? If so, look at the lonely bachelor of today, the hero of romance, the cynosure of the drawing room and of the promenade. Even as that bright being, like him self-poised, serenely innocent, free as air will the 'old maid' of 2000 be. It is altogether probable, by the way, that the term 'old maid' will by that time have fallen into disuse. But while the unmarried woman of the year 2000, whether young or old, will enjoy the dignity and independence of the bachelor of today, the insolent property at present enjoyed by the latter, will have passed into salutory, if not, eclipse. No longer profliting by the effect of the pressure of economic necessity upon women, to make him indispensable, but dependent exclusively upon his intrinsic attractions, instead of being able to assume the fastidious airs of a sultan surrounded by languishing beauties, he will be fortunate if he can secure by his merits the smiles of one. In the year 2000 no man, whether lover or husband, may hope to win the favor of maid or wife save by desert.' Surely desert is a vast improvement upon desertion as the divorce courts illustrate the latter in these unpoetic days!

Look at the situation as pictured by another student of the labor movement: 'Rich idlers amusing themselves at Newport and Tuxedo; poor workers burying themselves in coal mines. Young men and women riding across country after a bag that smells like a fox; old men and women picking decayed food out of garbage cans. Lap dogs driving through Central Park to take the air; children stripping tobacco stems in garrets.'

"This laying hands on another To coin his labor and sweat, Man goes in pawn to his brother For eternal years of debt."

"The average of 13,152 persons, without home or family, sleeping nightly in police station-houses and pestilential dormitories within the city of New York, affords more momentous subjects for discussion than revision of creeds or enrichments of liturgies."

General Booth, in "Darkest England" declares that London has over thirty thousand absolutely poor, who sleep out of doors the year round and whose only difference of grade is that some have a newspaper between them and the damp paving-stones, while most have not. There are in Great Britain, he says, a hundred thousand prostitutes and half a million drunkards, and one person in every five in London dies in the work-house, the hospital, or the lunatic asylum. Jacob Riis, in his new book entitled "How the Other Half Lives," portrays the life of "the submerged tenth" in New York city after a fashion that makes us wonder if our Siberian exile petitions ought not to be duplicated to the governor of the proud Empire State of our own land.
