John Brown returned from his trip to Illinois and Indiana the first of the week, having come earlier than he expected on account of the sickness of his daughter Florence. He says there is great inquiry throughout the east regarding Oregon, so much in fact that he was kept very busy answering questions.

The excursion on next Friday will be run for the benefit of Pacific College, and every dollar of the proceeds will go to that institution. It is hoped that enough may be realized from the venture to pay for re-painting the college buildings. Let all the friends of the school go and have a pleasant day together sight-seeing.
L. Gregerson, of North Yamhill, was fined $25 last week for moving a band of sheep on the public highway without first receiving a proper certificate from the county inspector. The law which may appear strict in such cases was framed for the prevention of the spread of scab in sheep. All sheep owners ought to be alike interested in the matter and comply with the law.

Our old friend H. J. Haskell will be off for Ilwaco tomorrow, to arrange his side cottage for the season. Mr. Haskell is so fortunate as to own a neat cottage and some lots down at this popular seaside resort. Miss Nellie Barnum, of Portland, came up this week to stay with Mrs. Haskell while H. J. is away.

The two factions of the Evangelical association occupy a large space in the Ledger of last week in a wrangle over the La Fayette Seminary. The party in power elected the present faculty for next year and it remains to be seen what the other side will do. Such a condition of affairs can't be any advantage to the school and the brethren will act wisely if they call a halt.

A firm that has been advertising in all the papers of the county as well as others wrote us a short time ago that their ad. in the Graphic had brought them more inquiries than all the others put together. We are here to benefit those who patronize our advertising columns and we have good evidence that we are doing it. Parties trying to do business who fail to patronize this office have no grounds for kicking.

Mitchell & Clark, who met with a serious loss last Friday, in the breaking of their engine, are rustlers. In twenty hours after the break a new engine was on the road to replace the old one. They have it in place and are running now the same as ever. Their new engine is of larger capacity than the old one and will enable them to get out lumber with greater rapidity than before. Their calamity is your opportunity to do them good and get some good lumber for your self.

The Undine has a piano aboard which with the music of the Newberg band and the vocal music by the chorus class ought to satisfy those who are specially fond of music. A number of young ladies and gentlemen will declaim in a silver medal contest according to the Demorest rules. The entertainment aboard the steamer will be well worth the price of the trip to say nothing of the magnificent scenery made up of glittering water-falls and towering heights along the great Columbia river.

J. J. Woods by municipal notice informs the citizens of our town that all cesspools or other places that cause "a noisome or offensive smell" must receive attention by July 1st or prosecution will immediately follow. When any place gets so far gone as to be "noisome" to the olfactory organs, immediate attention is necessary, and every resident of the town ought to cheerfully comply with the requirements of the ordinance on the subject. The healthfulness of the town demands it.

Cantata.
Some of the ladies of the western part of town have arranged to give a musical treat to our people or Saturday evening, June 20, at Armory Hall. The Lecture.
The largest audience ever gathered to hear a lecture in our town, collected at Friends' church on last Wednesday evening to listen to the eloquent Kentuckian, Col. G. W. Bain in his lecture, "Drunk, the Enemy of Business, Labor and Home." The ladies of the W. C. T. U. who had charge of the details had spent the day or two previous in arranging the church, and the effect was all that could be desired. Appropriate mottoes, the stars and stripes and a profusion of roses and other sweet scented flowers, gave a very cheerful appearance to the stage and surroundings. The crowd began to collect an hour before the time for the lecture to begin, and when the hour of eight arrived, every available corner of the room was occupied and fully 750 people greeted the great orator when he entered the room. The speaker occupied about an hour and a quarter and yet the time seemed hardly half so long, the lecture being so well received. We will make no attempt to repeat what he said. It is enough to say that no such a lecture was ever before given in our town, and what he said was universally well received by the great audience.

At the close a collection was taken for the state W. C. T. U. amounting to $82.00 which is the largest amount that has been taken at any of Col. Bain's lectures throughout the state outside of Portland. The speaker expressed special pleasure at the greeting he received from our people and said that in his opinion Newberg had a great future in store.

Franchise Department.
A sure recipe to kill franchise.—First When appointed Superintendent of Locals, take this honor so meekly and be so exceedingly quiet that no one will suspect that you even believe in franchise. On no account report to your county superintendent, and if by chance she corners you at convention despite your avoiding her, tell her that you don't believe in petitions, have no knack of getting subscribers to papers, and think that the best way is to keep everything as quiet as possible; if nothing is said, no opposition is aroused.

Second—When appointed County Superintendent, be careful not to let the Superintendents know it, and if after multitudinous letters, she at last succeeds in finding you out and spends her time writing to you, do not answer.

Third—Say all the discouraging things possible, keep snubs and defeats in pickle for ready use; do not look aloof, remembering that what is right is eternal; that she who works for the "eternal verities" of which justice is one, allies herself to divine forces; but steer by the rocks, and seek every excuse for furling sails and resting on the oar.

Fourth—If it is not your nature to keep entirely passive, another effective way is to expend your energies on, not the work, but the people who are indifferent or opposed to the work. Say as many rasing things as possible in as aggravating a manner as you can. If they say unjust things of franchise, come down to their level and try to be a little more foolish and a little more unjust, hence, rise above annoyances and coddle in the thought that if you are right you are doing the Master's work; that if you do well your part, you have done enough, that results are not yours; but that it is the business of the good soldier to do and die, "knowing that under the "Great Captain" we never "do and die in vain."

Fifth—If sharp answers to foolish opposition does not finish your department try gossip. Tell Mrs. C. how narrow and bigoted Mrs. A. is, but on no account politely give her your reasons or your literature or treat her as if worth converting. Courtesy might appeal to her self-respect, and she who entirely misunderstands, might find you so sensible, generous and kind, that rather than part company, she might, perforce, become a franchiser.

Sixth—Take no franchise paper, buy no leaflets, expect the superintendent ahead of you to furnish them at her own expense. The result will be that falsehoods will thrive because you do not know enough to pin them.

Seventh—When your union appropriates money to departments, never mention yours; if some one else mentions it, remark; "I do not see that I could use any money to advantage just now." Never give a leaflet to any one, because the person may already believe, or may be opposed; if he believes what is the use of knowing anything on the subject, if not he might not read it.

Eighth—Never give any money yourself to franchise; give it everywhere else, money, time and strength, but for that wait "The Lord's good time."

Ninth—Never have any lecture on the subject, because you fear your people are not ready; never bring it into the social; don't imitate those energetic women who actually think they were elected to agitate and make sentiment.

Tenth—Never take your local editors a line on the subject, because that is the most effective way to reach the public. Eleventh—Be very sensitive, for fear you may not do as well as somebody else can do, or else never report what you have done, making a broken link in the chain. Result: A dead department.

MRS. SEVERANCE, California.
P. S. The same recipe is sure death to any other department, State or National.

A few weeks ago a lady missionary from Japan, called at the office of the Union Signal. She had never met the managers of the paper, had but a few hours to spend in Chicago and many calls upon her time, but she said, "I felt I must call and tell you how much we missionaries prize the Union Signal, and what a help the W. C. T. U. is in our work. I really believe it is doing more for the salvation of souls than any other agency, not even excepting the church."

The Oregon State W. C. T. U. now has a salaried president. At the recent State Convention, action was taken on this matter, and the local Unions throughout the State pledged to pay a specified sum toward the salary. Truly "The laborer is worthy of his hire."

Since the la gripe went its rounds, health is generally pretty good.

The pea crop bids quite fair; there are about 80 acres in this locality.

The youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, who came here recently from Iowa, was buried at Friends' cemetery Sabbath. He was a brother of Sam Gardner. Funeral services conducted by B. F. Hinshaw.

A son of Josiah Winslow arrived here Monday, from Louisiana, in very poor health. I understand he is a graduate of Earlham College. There is a prospect of him teaching here this winter.

R. St. Helen's have moved in their new house. They have the neatest house on River street.

Abner George is hauling logs for his new house and he intends to build quite a nice one. He bought one of those box houses, but he wants no box.
