"The only strife between our public men should be to see who can get in and secure the construction of The Dalles portage railway first."—Capital Journal.

Instead of them seemed satisfied to get in, and stop at that.

Buo. McQUEAY, of the Athena Press, has considerably improved the appearance of his paper recently, and now he has taken a partner, Mr. Geo. Martin and we predict that the Press will boom in the near future.

It is stated that a new cure for consumption has been discovered which is being tested in Indiana and Ohio. The treatment is simple, being a diet of dog flesh. A number of cases have been reported whose consumptions have been greatly benefited by the treatment and some cures effected. Miss Lizzie Jones, a prominent young lady of Indianapolis, being one of the number. Whether to be effectual the dog must be a high bred spaniel, a common cur, a messy poodle or the traditional "yaller dog" breed, we are not yet advised. Some of our Indiana friends will please inform us.

OREGON politics has generally been considered rather tame when compared with the way political campaigns are conducted in Indiana and other Mississippi valley states, but from the way the Medford Mail is starting in it looks like the latest methods of warfare were to be adopted in the southern part of this state at least. In speaking of a supposed candidate for the office of county judge, of Jackson county, the Mail says: "He would create poor expenses in his line that he might reap the benefits; yes, and he would steal the pennies of dead paupers eyes, if perchance, some kindly soul attended to this last sad rite." This being the opening of the campaign, the editor of the Mail will no doubt prove himself to be an old time mud singer from Posey county, as the fight continues.

AN ALASKA CRIME.

The Killing of Charles H. Edwards. Many in this community, and in the Friends' church in particular, are familiar with the name of Charles H. Edwards as associated with Friends' mission in Alaska during the last three years. Readers of the Christian Worker, Friends' Review and The Student, published in Philadelphia as well as various daily and weekly papers in Oregon, Kansas and Iowa have often enjoyed his well written and instructive letters descriptive of Alaska and its people and the ups and downs of missionary and educational work among them. As he was a grand old one of our friend Mary Lindley, with whom he at one time lived—and no one will mourn his death more than she—he has many friends in this community, and his death is a great loss to the cause of missions in Alaska, by allowing the teachers appointed by the mission board to draw government salaries. It was to such a position Charles Edwards went nearly three years ago under the direction of Kansas Yearly Meeting of Friends. But his work was by no means confined to teaching. On the Sabbath he had one service for the natives and one for the white miners, some of whom were of whom worked in the great Treadwell gold mine on Dryden Island. He also conducted the Sunday schools, and in the intervals found time to go down among the union quarries and supply their tables with good wholesome literature kindly sent him for the purpose by eastern friends.

Notwithstanding the fact that very good salaries are paid the board often find great difficulty in getting teachers for some of the schools which are remote from white settlements and often for months, are wholly cut off from any communication with the outside world. For this reason the government has sought to aid the different churches which have established missions in Alaska, by allowing the teachers appointed by the mission board to draw government salaries. It was to such a position Charles Edwards went nearly three years ago under the direction of Kansas Yearly Meeting of Friends. But his work was by no means confined to teaching. On the Sabbath he had one service for the natives and one for the white miners, some of whom were of whom worked in the great Treadwell gold mine on Dryden Island. He also conducted the Sunday schools, and in the intervals found time to go down among the union quarries and supply their tables with good wholesome literature kindly sent him for the purpose by eastern friends.

Kindly permit me a few words through the columns of your paper, to express my surprise in the growth of your thriving little berg. After an absence of something like two years, I wander back to Newberg and find the place so changed that except for a few old land marks I would scarcely have known the place. The streets of course are named, but I do not know which is which, however will say that along the thoroughfare leading from the depot to Morris, Miles & Co's old store, I find instead of stumps and fir saplings, a dozen or more large business houses and half or more of which are handsome substantial bricks that would do credit to any town in the county. I did not have the time to call in at many of the new buildings, however a peep in at J. T. Smiths, Morris, Miles & Co., J. D. Carter and Moore & Co., etc., was enough to convince me that business must be exceedingly good to justify such a decided improvement. The buildings were neat and nice and clean and stocked with good new salable goods, all fresh as can be found in Portland, no rusty, old fashioned goods in view. In the new bank building I saw the name of J. B. Mott, if I remember right, and in the second story the GRAPHIC caught my notice, but lack of time would not permit me to call. I also espied several well stocked furniture stores, shops of all kinds, etc. New side walks greeted me on all sides. From the depot, a distance of something like two miles to the Willamette river, can be found good side walks. Numerous nicely painted new cottages seemed to have sprung, mushroom like, into existence, while the yards of many of them are filled with choice flowers, rendering their appearance as spring like as three months hence.

At 9 a. m. instead of 1 p. m., there were several school bells calling the rising generation to seats of knowledge, indeed there were so many little strangers wending their feet school-ward, that I was more than once almost forced to admit that I was the stranger instead of they, and instead of two years absence it seemed more like ten.

My attention was called to four or five new churches, and ever and ever so many magnificent residences and if Newberg is not to be a city of more than ordinary importance, why are sensible moneyed men investing their money so lavishly? Somewhat deep in thought on this subject I turned around and asked of one of Newberg's heaviest and oldest business men, "sir, does this great change, this new brick building, these many modern improvements, does business in this place, justify all this? Do you realize enough more in your business to pay for such a decided change as this in a town so near Portland?"

"Why yes," he replied "quickly and cheerfully," "we move ahead only as our business demands and we are now in this new brick, which stands clear of debts of any kind and the money in the building has been realized from the business, which is ten per cent better than in the old buildings. Yes, Newberg is moving right along and I do not think any unjustifiable money is laid out in improvements, and no rash steps have been taken. Most of us are men of experience and good pretty well what we are doing." It hardly seemed reasonable, but one can scarcely doubt ones own eyes. The change is here.

Armory Hall is another handsome brick structure, the ground floor of which is occupied by J. D. Carter for general merchandising, where he employs three good clerks besides himself, which speaks for itself. Mr. Carter is a good business man of rare qualities, as his business career of the last 5 years will show. He is wide awake to the interests of the public as well as himself, is generous to a fault and a good financier.

A few minutes talk with Mr. C. B. Friswell, S. P. Co's station agent, convinced me that business at that place was unusually good for this time of the year. Mr. Friswell is a genial agent, well liked by all his patrons, as well as the S. P. Co.

Another letter dated Nov. 14, contains the following:

"God be praised! I have letters once more. Letters from home, letters from friends, letters from live white people, throbbing with life, pulsating with enthusiasm, replete with satisfying intelligence. After being eleven weeks in this place, a canoe came from Wrangle bringing a good sized bundle of mail. I am not ashamed to say it brought tears to my eyes, yes, a good boyish boo-hoo, but they were tears of gladness.

The Indians are beginning to come in now. I had ten children in school yesterday. They seem so anxious to learn English. I have been used to the utmost indifference in regard to schools, among the natives and this eagerness is an agreeable surprise to me. I know the novelty of the thing, there never having been a school among them, partly accounts for it, but I see back of all the novelty a spark of true interest which I shall exercise my wits to fan into a blaze. I have mastered the Thlenget language sufficiently well to translate a little Bible and short sentences. These Indians have never been contaminated by the whites. I am sure missionary work will be far more fruitful among them and other isolated tribes than with those in contact with the trading, money grasping liquor drinking whites."

In, possibly, the last letter he ever wrote, under date of Dec. 23rd, he says: "School is progressing finely. I have a fund piled up. My house is so small I am forced to divide them into three sections. I have the Kindergarten in the morning, the school proper in the afternoon, and a school at night where we do nothing but talk English. I have school on Saturday because these homes are so miserable that the children ought to be elsewhere as much as possible. I give them to understand that I expect them on Sabbath just the same as every day. I am doing the Saturday work, night work and Sabbath work on my own responsibility. I am supporting my interest at my own expense. The Lord is blessing me and I believe, the work."

The next word concerning him was that he died at Sitka, Jan. 19th, from a pistol shot received at the hands of Malcolm Campbell some days before. The account of the killing is very meager and coming from the man who did it, it is very unreliable. The government prohibits the importation of liquor into Alaska, and the law is easily evaded and large quantities are smuggled in. It seems that Campbell and a companion came up to Kake Island and were selling liquor to the Indians when Edwards undertook to stop them and was shot by Campbell, the ball taking effect in the head and rendering him unconscious. They took him aboard their boat and after being on several days with the wounded man comatose passed to the rough winter weather of that region, they reached medical aid but too late to save his life. They gave themselves up, were tried on their own evidence and set at liberty.

It is not probable that anything like a true account of the way in which he met his death can ever be obtained.—Dr. W. V. Coffin in Whittier (Cal.) Register.

County Exchanges.

Strange to say that Judge Boise has received his second sight, and that he can now recognize men, provided they are voters, across quite a wide street.—Ledger.

State Superintendent McElroy has decided the case of Smith et al. vs. L. H. Baker, county superintendent, regarding the division of the joint school district 33-44, on the line between Yamhill and Polk counties. McElroy sustains the judgment of Baker.—Reporter.

Sheriff Warren conveyed Maggio Orton, insane, to Salem on Saturday. She is about 25 years of age and was a resident of Moore's valley. She had been considered harmless until recently, when she showed strong tendency to do bodily harm to the children living in the family.—Reporter.

One night recently some fellow on horseback with his skin full of nasty rotgut whisky attempted to ride across the railroad bridge. The evidences are there in the shape of calc-marks on the ties for thirty or forty feet from the north end, then signs of a struggle and flounder and a fall to the foot-bridge ten or twelve feet below, traceable by blood and hair shed by the poor animal in its desperate plunges. That is all that is known about the affair. No one has seen the horse and no one knows who was the rider, but there are surmises that don't miss the mark as bad as he did his calculations.—Reporter.

It may not be generally known, but the fact exists all the same, that certain parties claim to have found lead and silver bearing quartz, in the hill near LaFayette. One party brought some quartz to the Ledger office last Tuesday that may be of some value. We examined it and from its appearance we were inclined to the opinion that the rich metal containing therein, will make it of inestimable value to macadamizing. Another party claims to have found quite an extensive lead of silver bearing quartz. And having forgotten to carry it in one night some dishonest person carried it off. We expect to hear more of this matter in a few days.—Ledger.
