FRIDAY, APRIL 22, 1892.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Newberg, Oregon.

THE Ledger must have a new editor, judging from the get up of last issue.

WHEN legislators adjourn a session in order to attend a prize fight, as was done in Ohio last week, it is time to call a halt.

A CERTAIN Portland paper, announcing the fusion of the citizens and democratic tickets uses this suggestive heading: "They have A-greed."

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW will deliver the oration at the laying of the corner stone of the Grant monument in New York—if he don't die before they get around to it.

OREGON has developed such talent in the show business that Tacoma has selected A. S. Whiting, of Portland, as manager of the Tacoma exposition this year.

THE discovery of such a body of water as the Columbia river, as fine as any in the world, was certainly glory enough for one man. Captain Gray must have died contented so far as glory goes to make contentment.

TOGETHER with the news that a Japanese syndicate has been formed to start a brewery in Chicago, comes a protest from the American missionaries in Japan against the opening of the Columbian exposition on Sunday.

AT THE Democratic convention held in Portland last Tuesday, R. M. Veatch of Lane county was nominated for congressman for the first district, and J. H. Slater of Union county for the second district. Geo. H. Chamberlain of Linn county was nominated for Attorney-General.

THE saloon keepers at Portland are to be congratulated. The new Crowley saloon ordinance provides for the closing of all saloons between the hours of one and five o'clock a. m. This will give the saloon keepers four hours out of twenty-four in which to take a much needed rest.

B. FAY MILLS having left the state to begin a revival series at Tacoma, the Portland Dispatch gives him a black eye by stating that Portland has a half dozen preachers who are away yonder smarter than the revivalist and under the same circumstances could do better work. The outside world would be more easily convinced of the Dispatch's assertions if all the Portland preachers put together could show as great a work in two years as did B. Fay Mills in two weeks.

THAT hobby of a certain class that the sale of liquors should be given over to the government to be run as post offices now are, by appointees, is getting its just deserts from every corner of the country, and from some of the best men. It is an evasion, a subterfuge, a compromise, that shows its character on its very face. If the selling of liquor is right, license it, or better still, make it free. If it is wrong, there seems to be no other way than to put it down. We fail to see any middle ground.

THE influence of the women of our land is all right, and always right, as are their petitions and their prayers, but unless sustained by just laws justly executed by just men, their influence must come far short of attaining the highest ideal. Prohibitory law is as essential in dealing with the liquor question as in dealing with theft and murder. Moral suasion is good, but the prohibitory law in Iowa and Kansas during the past ten years has saved more drunkards than moral suasion could have done in a century. What it did in those states it can do in Oregon or any other state.

THE trouble in Wyoming between stock men and cattle thieves turns out to be a last desperate effort on the part of the great cattle syndicates to prevent settlers from fencing their domain. Pinkerton men have been sent out by the stock men, but latest reports indicate that they already have ample proof that they are not wanted in that section. In all the history of this country when the sturdy pioneer has made up his mind to carve a home from the forest or the plain, he has surmounted every obstacle till his object has been attained, and some of them have tackled worse things than dude cattlemen or Pinkertons. Trust the home builders to come out all right.

THE counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino, San Diego, Orange, Santa Barbara and Ventura, comprising the Southern California World's Fair association will appropriate $77,500 for making an exhibit. From the indications at present it appears that all Oregon with her wonderful resources will not appropriate anything like the above amount. Shame to such penurious mossbackism.

WE acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to attend the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Columbia river by Captain Robert Gray of the ship Columbia from Boston, Mass., May 11, 1792 to be held at Astoria, Oregon, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 10, 11, 12, 1892. The people of Astoria are making arrangements for a grand time on this occasion and the prospects are that a very large number of people will attend the celebration. We hope to be able to attend.

IN THE year 1879 there were manufactured in the United States 238,276,817 cigarettes. In 1891 2,877,799,440 were made; enough to furnish two cigarettes to each inhabitant of the world. Most of these deadly things are consumed at home, and the practice has grown so great in this country that it is receiving attention from the pulpit, the press and even the legislatures. It is becoming the curse of our country. We know young men and boys in Newberg whose toes peep often through their shoes, and the south side of their pantaloons are often in sad need of repair, but who ignoring these things spend their money and consume their brains in this burning of incense to the filthiest god worshipped by human beings today. It isn't any wonder that the W. C. T. U. is circulating petitions all over the country asking congress to pass a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of the nasty, deadly things.

A PORTLAND shoemaker who was in Newberg some time ago, when he found that there were no saloons here said that he "never knew of a town that amounted to anything that didn't have a saloon." Let's see: There isn't a town in Oregon that has made better growth during the past year than Newberg. There isn't another town of its size in Oregon that has as few cases in the courts. There isn't another town in Oregon of a thousand inhabitants that hasn't a lawyer. There isn't a town in Oregon that offers better educational facilities. It would be hard to find another town of its size with eight church organizations and seven church buildings. Without fear of successful contradiction we say that there isn't another town in Oregon of its size that has a greater per cent of upright, moral, law-abiding citizens. And yet, because it has no saloon it amounts to nothing in the eyes of some people. Let us look at some of the towns that "amount to something." There are three of them within a radius of twenty miles of Newberg that have furnished murder cases for the courts during the past year, all on account of whisky, either one of which will foot up in costs to the taxpayer more than Newberg ever cost Yamhill county since it was a town. Add to this the drunken, vile, degraded class of men and women that flock to such places, and no decent man can fail to see why the better class of people in Newberg prefer to "amount to nothing."

THE COURT HOUSE.

We were quite surprised while reading the grand jury's report in the Telephone-Register, of the 7th inst. They first say that having examined the various county offices, they find that all are run in a neat and business like manner. Then after recommending that metalic cases be purchased for the clerk's office, and a table for the use of the county surveyor, they recommended that the floor in the east corridor of the jail be repaired and that the jail be lined with steel plates, and that the grating over the windows be replaced with chilled steel, (not the same kind of steal that entered so largely into the whole structure, but chilled steel.) They then recommend that a competent man be employed to examine and repair the roof of the court house, (not the same kind of a competent man that superintended the building of it) as we find it in a leaking condition.

Now let us look at this matter just a little. Will any sane man have the temerity to claim that the court house was honestly built according to contract? And who will deny but what the tax payers of Yamhill county have been grossly deceived and defrauded. McMinnville's victory is a hollow one, and her gain of the county seat is greviously offset by her loss of the through traffic from San Francisco to Portland. Their star of prosperity like the star of all sham greatness, is growing dim. And the early decay of the new court house is prophetic, for they say "that birds of evil omen come home to roost." She has been the central power, and like the citizens of Jerusalem of old that "killed the prophets and stoned them which were sent to them," so has McMinnville knifed either Democrat or Republican that was inimical to their machinations. She may have soared too high, and like vaulting ambition o'erleaping itself, she may be the victim of an Icarian fall. Some of her citizens dream dreams, others see visions, and at one time like drowning men grasping at straw, the utopian motor line floats in view, but like the shifting rainbow, vanishes at their near approach. At another time they grow frantic over having the Yamhill river made navigable to the city of McMinnville. Binger Hermann has been here, and probably has given them hopes of governmental aid, but this is election year and he is a candidate. There is a herb that grows in the garden, and some folks call it rue, when fishes fly and swallows die, this promise will prove true.—Ledger.

STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The meeting of the State Horticultural society at Grants Pass was a success. There were delegates present from many parts of the state. The great interest that prevailed throughout the meetings might very properly be termed enthusiasm. The citizens of Grants Pass and vicinity filled their part of the program nobly and the large opera house was well filled at nearly every session. The address of welcome by Prof. Henry L. Benson was pointed and interesting and well delivered. The response by President Cardwell was delivered in his usual easy good humored manner.

The addresses and papers will all be printed in the Rural Northwest, a semi-monthly paper printed at Portland. The editor was present at the meeting and took a full account of them, so I will not give notes from the papers.

The discussions on the different topics were full and showed a marked degree of intelligence, and original thought. The subject of adopting a native flower for a state emblem was freely discussed and finally given to a committee to consider and report to the July meeting. In discussing the subject, Science of Fruit Evaporation, Mr. Carson said that fruit packed in tight boxes immediately after drying would not mold and he recommended it. He also said that commission men recommended shipping fruit in sacks so they can reprocess and pack them and get the profit. Also that fruit packed in boxes would sell for enough more to pay for the boxes and sacks too. The subject of boxing fruit occupied considerable time and a committee was appointed to investigate the subject and take steps toward adopting a uniform size in the state.

A trip out to Mr. Carson's place to see his orchard, nursery and evaporator, was a pleasant one. His evaporator is different from any used around here and bids fair to being the best kind in use when completed. The trip from first to last was a pleasant one, with the exception of having to travel both ways in the night so we did not get to see much of the country between here and there. The next meeting will be the second Tuesday in July at Hood River where a steamboat excursion will likely be run from Portland and a full attendance from this point is desired.

One thing I omitted to say is, all counties interested in horticulture are requested to organize a county society to be auxiliary to the state society and report and send delegates to the quarterly meeting of the state society.

E. C. ARMSTRONG.

FRUIT PESTS.

G. I. Sargent, secretary of the State Horticultural Society, who is in this vicinity examining orchards, has furnished us the following for publication which is well worthy the attention of our readers:

"There are still some old badly infected orchards which have not been taken care of and which should receive prompt attention from the owners or the work done by those endeavoring to stamp out the pests and raise fruit profitably, will be thrown away. Some young orchards have woolly and green aphis in, but the owners do not know the pests or do not realize the danger menacing them and should be induced to join your society. Many of the orchardists deserve much credit for the way in which they have taken hold of the matter. Mr. Cooper and others have gone to work to stamp out the pests and a visit to their respective places is all that is necessary to convince one that they have done most effective work. All should join in hearty co-operation and aid them in this matter instead of raising pests for them to fight, by clearing their places up. A united effort now will place this valley in a prosperous condition, while neglect of a few will set aside all the good work already accomplished, and fill the valley with pests of every description."

Summer wash for San Jose Scale, Red Spider, Aphis, etc:

Whale oil soap (80 per cent)	20 lbs.
Sulphur	3 lbs.
Caustic Soda (98 per cent)	1 lb.
Commercial Potash	1 lb.
Water	100 gal.

Place the sulphur, caustic soda and potash together in about two gallons of water and boil for at least half an hour, or until thoroughly dissolved. Dissolve the soap in the water by boiling, mix the two and boil for a short time. Use at about 130° F. in vessel. For effective work against bad cases of scale or aphis use the following kerosene emulsion in addition to the above wash,

Kerosene	1 gal.
Whale oil soap	¼ lb.
Water	½ gal.

Dissolve the soap in water and when boiling hot add the kerosene, churn the mixture for 5 or ten minutes or until it forms an emulsion. When the emulsion is perfect it will be of a creamy nature. Pour the emulsion into the hundred gallon solution as prepared above.
