NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS:
E. H. WOODWARD & OREM. C. EMERY.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1902.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Newberg, Oregon.

Salem is fast coming to the front. Sensational suicides and mysterious murders will soon give any town a reputation.

The new Lane county jail is said to be "comfortable for the prisoners and safe for the officers." It is evidently built after the plan of the state penitentiary.

The latest announcement of the leading "reform" journal of the northwest, The Harbinger, that "reform" has had for a long time.

W. F. MERTIN, a traveling "boy preacher" evangelist from Woodland, California, committed suicide at Albany last week because one Schibred, a Roseburg preacher had warned Oregon people to beware of him.

There are many so-called preventative methods being published whereby the colicin moth may be kept from getting in his work by boring the apples and pears full of holes, but we want to see a man who has successfully tried just one of them.

Portland policemen arrest men for ill-treating animals, and rightly, too, but this week we noticed the driver of the patrol wagon whipping a lame horse over the harness straps as mercilessly as many another man who has had to pay a fine for so doing.

We call the attention of our readers to the fact that there will be a general election held in this country of ours some time along in November for the purpose of choosing a president for the next four years. Such matters of importance ought not to be entirely overlooked by the people.

Portland pugilists defy the laws of the city and state, and give weekly exhibitions of their brutal skill, which they sustain by falsehood and perjury when brought into court. The time is not far distant at the present rate, when Portland will become public prize fights as shamelessly as does New Orleans.

PANGO PANGO is ours at last. The negotiations which have been pending for the past two years between the United States and the Saramon islands, by which the harbor of Pango Pango would be ceded to this government for a coaling station, have at last been satisfactorily concluded and the harbor is ours. It is a long way from home but we had to have it.

DR. MAHANA'S single track railroad is to be given a trial, and the company is so sanguine of success that they will not take the time to experiment further with the engine, but will build a road in the near future, using the single rail. They now have two prospects in view. One is a road from Portland to Mt. Hood and the other from Salem to Dallas.

CATTLE men all over the country complain of low prices for beef and say there is simply nothing in raising cattle at the prices. Has anybody noticed a corresponding decline in the price of steaks at the shops? Year in and year out the old established price of ten to twelve and a half cents goes and the good house wife has to pay, while the farmer who raises the beef takes whatever the butcher is inclined to pay. Rather queer isn't it.

THERE is a class of people in this state, including the editor of the Oregonian, who persistently assert that prohibitory legislation does not have the desired effect, and point to an increased traffic in Kansas and Iowa as proof of their ridiculous assertions. The following from the Brewers Journal, which surely would not magnify the results of prohibition, is given to show how prohibitory law increases the drink traffic.

It says that for July the sale of malt liquor by the barrel in Kansas in 1886 was 17,842, in 1887 was 15,483, in 1888 was 15,255, in 1889 was 6,743, in 1890 was 1,593, in 1891 was 2,939, in 1892 was 1,650 barrels.

IT seems that the county seat people failed to turn out and give the execution of the eastern Old Fellows a warm welcome as was done by other towns. A. J. Apperson scores the citizens roundly in last week's Reporter and closes by saying:

One thing we lack, perhaps, is competent leadership in matters of public enterprise; another thing we are possibly deficient in willingness to follow or go shoulder to shoulder, each man doing his part. It has been too much the rule in McMinnville that if anyone attempted anything in the interest of the town, while a few responded the majority were indifferent, and a lot of nosebacks denounced him for trying to run the town. If we could import a few bosses, just for a little while, who would get all the croakers and kickers into line, and get the people to working for the good of the town, we should esteem ourselves more and have less occasion to find fault with others.

One of the meanest things that news gatherers stoop to nowadays is the practice of manufacturing news with absolute nothing as a foundation. In ordinary, every day life there would be ostracized their stories would be branded as downright lies, but there are some papers that are so anxious to excel in the publication of articles of a sensational or unusual character that there has come to be a real demand for anything in this line. The man who writes stories so utterly ridiculous that no one believes them, is not near as mean as the one who writes such squibs as appeared in the Oregonian and other papers recently regarding a white cap outrage at Arlington. The article referred to stated that a man had been whipped and warned to leave the community, and that a couple of barns belonging to a man who had befriended him, had been burned. It now transpires that there was absolutely no foundation for such a report. But the injury to the community thus lied about can hardly be estimated. Truth crushed to earth will rise again, but in such instances as this, innocent persons and often times respectable communities suffer untold injury before the final rising act takes place.

It seems settled that the popular observance of Columbus Day, Oct. 21, is likely to be the most general of any of the centennials through which we have passed. There is no doubt that the American people, as a whole, have become thoroughly interested in the significance of this 499th anniversary.

One strong reason for this wide interest is the public school leadership of the national celebration. As soon as this school leadership was proposed, the press of the country began to commend the idea; it was received favorably by superintendents of education, teachers and thoughtful citizens generally.

It came about that the idea proved acceptable to everybody. Then it was further promoted by the official recognition it received. The National Education Association adopted it, and appointed all the state superintendents a committee to carry it out; and a special committee with headquarters at the Youth's Companion office, Boston, to push the movement and to prepare a uniform official program for use in every locality.

Commander-in-chief Palmer, of the Grand Army, saw the opportunity the plan offered, and issued general orders that the G. A. R. posts in the country link themselves with the schools in a grand patriotic, unpartisan demonstration on Columbus Day, assisting the schools to raise and salute the flag, and escorting them in the review.

Congress finally recognized the movement by directing the president to proclaim Oct. 21st a holiday to be observed by suitable exercises in the schools. The proclamation recently issued by the president, gave emphatic accent to the school idea, and recommended that the people everywhere make it the centre of the local observances.

The official program, by making certain of the day's exercises uniform in all localities, will give the national observance an important unity. This program is promised for general publication through the press the first week in September. Its leading provisions are as follows:

The schools everywhere are to assemble at the usual hour on the morning of Oct. 21st. A detail of veterans is expected to arrive soon after, and all will repair to the yard. The exercises will begin with reading of the proclamation. Then the flag will be raised by the veterans, and saluted by all the pupils in a brief exercise, terminating in the song "My Country, 'tis of Thee." After divine acknowledgements, the Song of Columbus Day, an original hymn for the occasion and set to the old tune of "Lyons" will be sung by all. Following will be a declamation of the address for Columbus Day, and a reading of the Ode for Columbus Day, both original productions for the occasion.

Opportunity will then be given for whatever additional features local enterprise may provide; and the morning observance will end with short addresses by citizens, and national songs.

For the afternoon a Public School Review is suggested; or, if there is a civic parade, it is urged that the schools, escorted by the veterans, be made the prominent feature. In the mass meeting of citizens, with which many places will conclude the day, it is proposed that among the speeches ample recognition be given to the American system of free, universal education as a source of American progress and the hope of the future.

The date, the first of September, for the publication of this program is fortunate, for it falls at the opening of the term of the majority of the American schools; and teachers and pupils will be in the mood for an eager and spirited undertaking of the celebration.

October 21st is less than two months distant, but all of this time may be used to excellent advantage in preparing for celebration. In undertakings of this character unavoidable delays are apt to occur. The schools which begin immediately on the work which must be done to make the celebration a credit to themselves and their town, will escape the annoying situations likely to arise if everything is left until the eleventh hour.

THE NEWBERG FAIR.

The success of an agricultural fair depends entirely upon the weather. The elements were against Newberg this year and the heavy and almost continuous rain upon what would have been the two best days at the fair practically spoiled the fair.

It was very unfortunate that it should happen so, for the fair company had undergone large expense in grading and fencing the grounds, building stalls for stock, etc., and the prospects up to Thursday morning were very bright for a complete success.

The most attractive feature of the Newberg fair has always been the fruit exhibit. This was found under charge of Dr. A. Mills ably assisted by his wife. This was in striking contrast to the state fair where no one was to be found to talk to visitors about the fruit. The names of the different varieties of fruit were indicated by slips of paper, a detail which was much neglected at the state fair. The fact that this is an "off" year for fruit had its effect upon the showing of fruit at Newberg as well as elsewhere. The display of apples suffered most in comparison with former years and especially fell behind that made last year.

There was a fine display of all the varieties of prunes which are not out of season, and the specimens shown were the largest and handsomest that we have ever seen at any of the fairs visited this year. In point of merit the display of pears came next to that of prunes. A better display of grapes was made than at the state fair but it was not very large. While the showing of live stock was not large it was far ahead of that made last year, and included a good many pure bred animals of the leading breeds of cattle, horses, swine and sheep.

Taken all in all, the display made at the fair was a most creditable one for a local fair and the absence of many objectionable features which mar the enjoyment of visitors at most fairs was most highly to be commended. At the same time ample provision was made for the entertainment and amusement of visitors.

Since the above was written a letter has been received from Mr. E. C. Armstrong, of Newberg, who informs us that the fair was held over until Saturday and the program was well carried out. About a thousand persons braved the mud and attended Friday and listened to the band contest. Had the weather been propitious this Columbus day celebration furnishes a splendid opportunity for impressing lessons of courage, perseverance, self reliance and loyalty upon the youth and children of our country, and it is earnestly hoped and confidently expected that the teachers will enter into this work with as much earnest zeal and determination as usually prompts them on occasions like this and which is needed to insure its success. Let the teachers, patrons and pupils of each school determine to make their respective exercises the best, and will the teacher or some one whom he or she shall designate send me an account of the proceedings that I may be able to report to the state superintendent that Yamhill did her part to make it the red letter day of the year.

You will remember also that the state executive committee has determined that the educational interests of Oregon shall be represented at the Chicago exposition next year. Let us keep this constantly in mind and try to produce something during the coming winter that will be suitable for that exhibition. Instructions relating thereto may be found in the circulars which have been sent you.

Let us all unite in preparing an exhibit for Yamhill county that will be a source of pride to all her citizens who may witness it. J. B. SWELL, Co. Supt.

Attorneys from abroad having business in court this week were Judges Caples, Hurley and Stot of Portland, J. J. Daly and N. L. Butler of Dallas, Frank B. Jolly, Oregon City, E. E. Selpin, Tillamook, J. H. Flower, Dayton.—Reporter.

It is observed from the court docket that a long list of cases which have been carried over every term for the past two or three years is being settled and dismissed this term. The new judge seems to have considerable dispatch about him.—Reporter.

The state fair just missed the rains this week which are rapidly putting out the mountain fires in this part of Oregon.—Journal. According to the Corvallis Times if the rains had been a week earlier and put out the state fair it would have done a pretty good thing. While on the subject, it is an interesting fact that in order to see the resources of this glorious mountain show down up in a creditable manner one has to go to the Portland exposition.

OREGON'S SHOWING AT CHICAGO
NEXT YEAR
Remains in doubt, but there is no question about the PORTLAND INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION which opens September 21st and closes October 22nd, being the best Exposition ever held on the Pacific Coast. So far as Oregon is concerned it will be the forerunner of the Exposition at Chicago in 1893. The principal attractions are the magnificent American Band of Providence, E. I. An art collection valued at $350,000 and embracing some of the greatest pictures owned in the United States. Immense Horticultural and Agricultural exhibits, the result of the combined efforts of almost every county in the state. A mineral exhibit exceeding all former years. A Stock Department showing tremendous progress. To these are added a larger number of exhibits than ever before; including a magnificent electrical display under the combined Thomson-Houston and Edison Companies. All manufactures in full operation. Government models of Battle Ships. The wonderful Hall of Mystery. The marvelous "Little World," the product of a mechanical genius; all interspersed by novelties incident to the popular special days. Everything new and nothing dead. Greatly reduced rates on all transportation lines.
