NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS:
E. H. WOODWARD AND ORM. C. EMERY.

FRIDAY, APRIL 21, 1893.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Newberg, Oregon.

There seems to be good reasons for thinking that the Oregon Pacific will be extended east through eastern Oregon to Boise, Idaho, within the coming year.

The Popgun is a reasonably fair sort of a country paper, but it treats itself to a little too much self-whitewash in its comments about the letting of the county printing.

A circular letter has been issued by the laboring men of San Francisco warning laborers against going to that city for work, stating that there are already thousands there who are unable to find anything to do.

Notwithstanding Oregon was unable to have a building of her own at the World's Fair, it is said that her exhibits are of the very finest and are bound to command the attention of the thousands who will visit the fair.

The jetty at the mouth of the Columbia is practically completed. The results obtained have already exceeded the expectations of the projectors, making the Columbia bar a thing no longer to be dreaded even by the largest vessels afloat.

The Salem Journal gives space in its columns to a woman's advertisement for a husband. One of two things is certain: it is either an intended joke or some poor fellow will later on find to his sorrow that he has tied himself to an undesirable burden for life.

The nickel mines near Riddle have been sold to an English syndicate for $10,000,000. Talk about a gold basis when that amount of English yellow metal is exchanged for a nickel mine. We believe a nickel basis about that size would be good enough for us.

Squirrels are becoming such a nuisance in eastern Oregon that they are as much dreaded by the farmers as a drouth. Gilliam county has made an appropriation to furnish strychnine free to farmers in different parts of the county with instructions how to prepare and use it.

If there is any truth in the Salem Independent's statements of state printer Baker's recent drunk, that gentleman should be laid on the shelf by the people of Oregon at the next election. No biped with such quadrupedal tendencies is worthy of the trust and confidence of civilized people.

Two Oregon City boys, who had been led, by a recruiting officer to think that the pathway of the average patent soldier was strewn with roses, found so many thorns mixed in that they went away one day, forgetting to make the customary announcement to the proper authorities. They are now lying in a California prison charged with desertion.

The Tillamook Headlight last week published an article exposing some of the timber land steals and swindles, every word of which was doubtless true. This leads us to think that it will be some time before the Headlight has such a snap in the way of land notices as it has had the past winter. The next gnat will probably go to some other mill.

One of the shoddy pay-in-advance chits near the world's fair grounds at Chicago, fell down of its own weight one day last week. If this is a fair sample of the mannikers provided for this special occasion we would advise Oregonians who just can't stay away, to go out into the suburbs a little way, say out about Elgin or Joliet, and rent a small patch of open ground and camp out.

The McMinnville papers are both straining themselves very badly over the actions of the county court, it seems to us. While there may possibly have been actions of a debatable character taken place, the people of the county will want to be informed of something more grave than the purchase of a thousand envelopes or the very common custom of commissioners allowing their own salaries before they believe the county court officials to be the criminals they are represented to be.

The Reporter, in speaking of a saloon row at McMinnville a few days ago says of the twenty or thirty young fellows of the town who painted things a brilliant carmine on that particular occasion, "It looks very much as though the boys had not been educated right." Candidly, Bro. Barnhart, don't you think it would be a step in the right direction if the ediitors of the McMinnville papers were a trifle more "Miss Nancyish," about the saloon business? Wouldn't it have a tendency to educate the boys right? Saloon rows are the direct result of saloons; saloons are the result of an uneducated public opinion. Why not aid in changing public opinion? An ounce of prevention is worth a hundred pounds of cure.

Galen Wilson tells that of two peach trees of the same variety standing two rods apart he put two bushels of ashes about one and none around the other. On the last named the leaves were light colored, the fruit small and nearly all dropped off, while on the one that had the ashes the foliage was dark green and glossy and the fruit larger than ever before, so that it was necessary to prop up the branches. He got two bushels of peaches for his two bushels of ashes, which was not a bad trade for him.

ONE WAY TO GET GOOD ROADS.

Each year, within the United States, there are convicted for various offenses against the public peace about 600,000 male prisoners of mature age. These criminals are commonly confined in the State prisons and common jails, and during the term of their punishment are largely sustained and clothed at the public expense. This expense alone entails an enormous tax, in which property in all localities must share the burden, and a most serious question has for many years been discussed touching the manner in which these convicts can be employed without competing with the skilled labor of our free citizens. No solution has yet been reached which seems to meet the case. Labor organizations have repeatedly demanded that these convicts be made to earn their own sustenance by the performance of public work, and notably that of constructing and maintaining the public roads. Such labor has been utilized in other countries to the great advantage of the public, and it offers such an apparent double advantage in the reduction of the public tax and the solution of the convict labor question that it is well worthy of a thorough trial. But besides the regularly convicted criminals there is an immense vagrant population, comprised mostly of able-bodied men, drifting about from one part of the country to another, and commonly called "tramps." They have largely increased in numbers during the last few years, and have become one of the social problems of the day. It is not unlikely that if all the tramps in a given town were compelled by law to do a little work now and then upon the public roads, and thus pay tribute to the public that clothes and feeds them, the growth of this species of lazy vagrancy would be considerably checked.—American Farmer.

AN ENGINEERING FEAT

In swinging the span of the bridge across the Columbia River at Rock Island, the Great Northern engineers accomplished a feat that is regarded as a triumph of skill. At the particular point where the crossing is made the river is very deep and at the same time a strong current is met with. So exceptional is the situation on account of these two conditions that it was deemed impossible to erect a false work for stretching the big span, 416 feet between arches. It was finally decided to attempt to carry the bridge out from each pier a distance of two hundred and eight feet, something never before attempted by engineers in this country, and probably nowhere else. A system of ties and counter balances was built up and the bridge beams were gradually extended until they were successfully brought together across the span.—Pacific Builder.

COST AND CONSTRUCTION OF THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

The cost of the work has been variously estimated; the latest I have seen, and I believe it to be the highest, is $87,000,000. The company engaged in its construction proposes to raise in some way $100,000,000—an excess of $13,000,000 above the estimated cost—to pay interest till the canal is in operation, and to provide for contingencies that may arise. The sum is not large if the patronage the canal shall receive proves to be anything like what is predicted and seems probable. There are difficulties of views as to how the canal shall be constructed and controlled when in operation. As it will prove most advantageous to our own commerce, and as under public control excessive profits will not be made on the money invested, there is a prevailing sentiment that the Government should build it, and manage it after it is built; that it be free to American shipping, and a tax imposed on foreign patrons only to an extent that is necessary to pay the expense of management and repair and a reasonable income on the cost of construction.—Richard H. McDonald, Jr., in May Californian.

POULTRY.

Plenty of dust is a good insecticide for hens.

See that nests do not become infested with vermin.

Give the boys and girls a chance to raise chickens.

Turkeys are tender until the feathers are well started.

Who knows the value of a hen as an insect destroyer?

White fowls always have a lively look in the poultry yard.

There is no better absorbent for the poultry house than plaster.

Brooder-hatched chickens are apt to suffer for want of heat.

Thicken the buttermilk with meal. It makes splendid feed.

When there are no bugs and insects for fowls, feed a little meal.

Clatter of the guineas scares away hawks and saves the chicks.

All mud and no dust or gravel makes lousy and unhealthy chickens.

Feed the chickens early. It is the bird's nature to rise and eat early.

Chopped clover in bags is one of the new feeds in market for poultry.

Don't overtax the hen by making her hatch two clutches in succession.

Hens like milk, either sweet or sour, and it contains material for egg production.

Kerosene oil rightly applied to the hen's body will tend the mites to their long home.

Over fatness is one of the reasons that are given for hens laying soft shelled eggs.

many young chicks. The water chills them to an extent from which they seldom recover.

Look out for lice! they soon kill chicks. If you find them use a few drops of melted lard, greasing the heads only; greasing the bodies will often kill the chicks. Examine the chicks' heads at night; you may then see lice you could not find by daylight. Eternal vigilance will pay.

Keep the chicks busy and they will be thrifty. Crumbled stale bread is always good for them. Don't let them get their feathers damp. Bran, if cooked, makes a good food, as it consists largely of phosphates, the best bone-forming element. Skim milk is a valuable food.

During warm weather it is not necessary to use hay or straw in the nest boxes; such materials only render hens unprofitable and give lice a chance to breed. Dry earth, kept loose in the nest box, answers well at this season and will be found better and cleaner than anything else.—Orange County Farmer.

Eggs from the best egg-producing breeds pay a higher price for what is grown on the farm than the farmer can get by selling it, or feeding to any other farm stock. It is skill in feeding that is to mark the successful farmer of the future, and it is reasonable to believe that he will feed more to his poultry than to any other farm stock.—American Farmer.

PHYSIOGNOMY.

Coarse hair always indicates coarse organization.

Very full cheeks indicate great digestive powers.

A projecting under lip shows malignity and avarice.

A small mouth, with nose and nostril also small, shows indolence and cowardice.

A long, thick chin is commonly found only in persons of low mental organization.

A round, bullet head shows obstinacy, often combined with many petty meannesses.

A mouth that, when viewed in profile, turns up in a curve when smiling is a sign of frivolity.

A small head does not necessarily mean little wit, the old adage to the contrary notwithstanding.

A forehead rounded at the upper temples indicates large imagination, mirthfulness and good nature.

When the under part of the face, from the nose downward, is less than a third of the whole face, the indication is of stupidity.

Prominent, arched eyebrows show great powers of perception in regard to form and color. All great painters had such brows.

Finely arched foreheads are often seen on stupid persons. The deficiency is generally apparent in the scantiness of the eyebrows.

Strongly projecting foreheads, which, in the upper part retreat to a marked degree, associated with a longer under face, are certain indications of folly.

Men of marked ability in any line have usually one deep, perpendicular wrinkle in the middle of the forehead, with one or two parallel to it on each side.

Whenever, in laughing, three parallel curves are formed in the cheeks round the corners of the mouth, the indication is of silliness and stupidity.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

It is probably true that to appreciate fine art the critic must be an expert, but it is unquestionable that we recognize the masterpiece without the technical knowledge of a critic. A very enterprising firm is giving everybody who sends them a photograph a life-size crayon portrait, including frame, free of charge. Coming as it does from a most reliable source, our readers should have all the information at our command. The work is the finest that can be produced in the country, and it is a truthful picture to nature which appeals alike to the critical judge of fine art and layman. What can be more valuable in any home than a large portrait of a dear father or mother elegantly framed. This grand work of art heretofore has been beyond the reach of most of us, and in view of a chance of this nature, it will not be out of place to suggest you should write for full particulars. The well known Pacific Publishing Co., San Francisco, Cal., are the sole manufacturers, and desire bright and reliable correspondents in every town in the United States and Canada. Write for particulars and read their advertisement in another column.

AMERICA AT THE FIRST WORLD'S FAIR.

According to Punch, America was very poorly represented. "America continues to represent itself at the Crystal Palace as a large place that is—to adopt an American word—very sparsely occupied; there being plenty of room, which is illustrative of the one, and there being a poor supply of the other. America in the great exhibition wants an addition to its inhabitants, and we have a plan for putting an end to the aspect of desolation and barrenness for which the United States—as shown in Hyde Park, are conspicuous. As visitors are now flocking in from abroad and from the country, we propose that America should be allowed to utilize its empty space by letting out lodgings. Why should half a dozen families be crowded into one house when there is a quantity of room in the Crystal Palace itself which might be profitably occupied? By packing up the American articles a little closer, by displaying Colt's revolvers over the soap, and piling up the Cincinnati pickles on the top of the Virginia honey, we shall concentrate all the treasures of American art and manufacture into a very few square feet, and beds may be made up to accommodate several hundred. We would propose, therefore, that the Yankee commissioners be empowered to advertise America as affording accommodation to those who wish to spend a week in the exhibition; and they might describe it as eligibly situated within a few minutes' walk of Austria, Russia, France and Switzerland, commanding an excellent view of the Greek Slave, and immediately opposite the largest looking glass in the world, by which the process of shaving may be greatly facilitated. By an arrangement with the commissioners, whose duties must be light, breakfast could, no doubt, be provided for the lodgers before starting on their rounds; and the sign of the Spread Eagle would be an appropriate one to adopt for the hotel department of the speculation."—May Bigelow Edmonds in April Californian.
