No acid except that from the grape is used in the Royal Baking Powder. The Royal imparts that peculiar sweetness, flavor and delicacy noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, rolls, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

Absolutely Pure

Satisfaction After Five Years.

A Broadway car came bowling along toward the postoffice one afternoon recently when the slush and mud in the street were an inch or two deep. A well known federal officeholder stood on the down town crossing at Barclay street. He had a woman with him.

As the car approached he put up his hand authoritatively. The driver motioned that he would stop at the upper crossing, as the rules prescribed. The government official stamped his foot and pointed to the spot where he stood as much as to say: "You will stop right here."

He got fooled. The car whizzed by and stopped on the corner where the driver said it would. The federal officer waded through the mud, dragging the woman after him, and entered the car. The conductor gave the signal, and the yellow car went rolling on up town.

When he had gone a block or two, the driver stopped his whistling, glanced cautiously back into the car, and then said:

"That man played me dirt when I got me naturalishun pats five years ago. He made me wait for him for three hours, and I never forgot his face."

And then the driver resumed his whistling, which he kept up during the entire trip.—New York Herald.

Diamonds For Every Man.

"Do you know that when your shoes glisten with a polish they are really covered with diamonds?" asked a shoemaker the other day of one of his patrons. "This is true," he continued, "and I will show you why. Bonedust, which is the principal ingredient of shoelacking, is almost pure carbon. The diamond, you know, is the purest form of carbon. When this paste has been carried over your shoes, the friction of the polishing brush crystallizes the blacking and converts it into millions of infinitesimally small diamonds, and every man with a shine on his shoes may revel in the knowledge that he wears a cluster of diamonds on his feet."—Philadelphia Record.

"August Flower"

I had been troubled five months with Dyspepsia. I had a fullness after eating, and a heavy load in the pit of my stomach. Sometimes a deadly sickness would overtake me. I was working for Thomas McHenry, Druggist, Allegheny City, Pa., in whose employ I had been for seven years. I used August Flower for two weeks. I was relieved of all trouble. I can now eat things I dared not touch before. I have gained twenty pounds since my recovery. J. D. Cox, Allegheny, Pa.

JOHN BULL ON ITS WAY WEST.

The Triumphal Passage of an Old Engine Through New Jersey.

The first locomotive that ever drew a railroad train in America, the John Bull, left the Jersey City station of the Pennsylvania railroad at 10:16 Monday morning bound for Chicago. Behind it were two passenger coaches having on board a party of guests.

The crew that handled the train had been selected from the veterans of the service. It consisted of W. T. Bailey, who has been on the road since 1859; "Gigtop" Brakeman Jonas Hager, who was appointed in 1849; Rear Brakeman Thomas Gallagher, who first served in the same capacity in 1849; Fireman John W. Sanford, who began his railroad career in 1853; and Engineer A. E. Herbert, who held the same place on old John Bull early in the fifties.

The engine John Bull was brought to this country by Robert L. Stevens in 1825, and in 1853 it began to run regularly on the Camden and Amboy railroad. In the sixties the old engine was side tracked at Bordentown, N. J. It remained there until placed on exhibition at the centennial exposition at Philadelphia, after which it was returned to Bordentown, where it remained until 1883, when the Pennsylvania railroad company secured it and gave it to the United States to be placed on exhibition in the National museum at Washington.

One of the passenger coaches was a fine one built by a farmer near South Amboy, and the other was found several years ago covered with rubbish in a New Jersey lumber yard.

The queer train was an object of interest to thousands of people who lined the tracks from Jersey City to Philadelphia. In every town it passed through the houses were decorated with bunting and flags, and nearly every inhabitant was at the station.

Thousands of school children, to whom a holiday was given in order that they might see the train, were massed along the tracks in the different towns on the route, and the cheers of the shrill young voices could be plainly heard above the rumble of the train.

At Princeton about 300 students took possession of the train for about 15 minutes, making the old cars ring with their college cry. When the train was released by them, they covered the track so thickly with money to be mashed by the wheels for souvenirs that the engine could hardly move the train over it. This was kept up by the people all along the line.

From Jersey City to Trenton, the entire width of the state, the train ran more or less on coins. These coins ranged from pennies to $2.50 and $5 gold pieces. At Trenton the rails were covered with all sorts of coins for a distance of nearly 300 yards. As the train ran slowly along a crowd of men and boys followed it on a run, and reaped a good harvest by snatching up the more valuable coins before their owners could reach them. Three young Princeton students, who had three pretty maidens with them, only succeeded in finding two out of the six $5 gold pieces they had carefully laid on the rail near their feet. In half an hour battered pennies, nickels and 10-cent pieces were selling on the streets of Trenton at from 50 cents to $1 each.

Owing to various delays it was 6:55 p. m. when the train entered the Broad street station in Philadelphia, 1 hour and 15 minutes behind the schedule time.

The coming of John Bull and the two antique green cars which had attracted so much attention on the route had been announced in the evening papers, and by the time the train arrived in the station there were 10,000 men, women and children struggling to see it.

The entire time occupied by the run from Jersey City to Philadelphia was 7 hours and 35 minutes.—New York Sun.

A Description of Kipling.

One of Rudyard Kipling's Brattleboro neighbors describes him, with the fairness but the frankness of an indignant New England woman, in these plain terms: "When I read his scathing comments upon our American ways and words, I always think to myself, 'That's pretty well for a young man whose personal habits are so very far from pleasing or tidy.' But in conversation he does not offend in any such way as in print. He saves all that for the Anglicans, who want it. Really he is a genial and agreeable acquaintance, though at first sight one would set him down for well, I think a tramp is about as high in the social scale as Mr. Kipling's appearance would warrant one in placing him."—New York Times.

Mexican Emeralds.

Cortez obtained in Mexico five emeralds of wonderful size and beauty. One was cut like a rose; another in the shape of a horn; a third in that of a fish, with diamond eyes; a fourth like a bell, with a pearl for a clapper; the fifth was a cup, with a foot of gold and four little chains, each ended with a large pearl. He had also two emerald pears worth 300,000 crowns each.—St. Louis Republic.

Helping a Man Along.

Tramp—Beg your pardon, sir, but—

Affable Party—Oh, that's all right, certainly. Don't give it another thought. When you stopped me, I didn't know but you wanted a quarter or something of that sort, and you only wanted to beg my pardon! Granted freely! God bless you, my man!—Boston Transcript.

BARBAROUS BARBERS.

Strange Hair-dressing Customs Among the Tribes of Central Africa.

During the hot hours of midday, when all active labor is suspended in the village, the natives, urged by vanity and national pride, devote a great deal of time to the arrangement of their odd but elaborate toils. Hair-dressing is one of the principal obligations and constitutes one of the numerous domestic duties allotted to the "fair" sex. On a red mat spread out in some shady corner the woman sits down, and the man upon whom the operation is to be performed reclines at full length, resting his head in her lap.

She begins at once to unplug his hair and soon has it all raveled, and then, with a coarse wooden instrument resembling the head of a child's toy rake, she combs it thoroughly until it is clear of all entanglements and stands out all over the head in a thick, bushy mass six or seven inches deep. It is now generously greased with oil from the palm nut. The woman then parts it off into sections, and very soon the coarse bunch of hair, cleverly manipulated by her nimble fingers, is woven down closely to the head. They display a great deal of ingenuity in forming a variety of designs.

Sometimes series of little plaited strands, like rat tails, hang in fringe all around the head. Often solid plaits of hair about the size of a goat's horn are made to stand out from the head in different styles. Two of these will appear sprouting from the top of the head, or one will drop over the forehead and lie along the nose. A very popular fashion is to have a roll of hair along each side of the head, ending in two solid plaits, which curl over each cheek like sheep's horns. Both men and women have the hair treated in the same way.

The plaiting operation is also extended to the man's beard. The mustache is removed, and so are the eyebrows, with a razor, which is a small cheese cutter blade with a long, slender handle. This is used somewhat as we hold a pen, and the stubble hair is really chiseled off the face, no small amount of it being dragged out by the roots. Tribal custom compels its removal, and the African is so insensible to pain that the means employed do not inconvenience him in the least. Often when undergoing this treatment he falls asleep and never betrays any discomfort.—E. J. Glave in Harper's Young People.

Organs Lost by Disease.

It is a suggestive fact that "as soon as any organ or faculty falls into disuse it degenerates and is finally lost altogether." Through all the ages that man has had the power of speech this power has not been fixed in us in any degree whatever by heredity. It is regarded as definitely proved that if a child of civilized parents were brought up in a desert place and allowed no communication whatever with man it would, never make any attempt at speech.

Up to the last century it was not uncommon to find persons living in a wild state in the woods and forests of England, France, Germany and Russia, who were utterly incapable of speech, though they could make sounds in imitation of the cries of wild animals. Certain parasitic insects have so completely degenerated that they possess neither eyes, legs, heads, mouths, stomachs nor intestines.—Leisure Hour.

Pearl Colored Glass Beads.

Venice owes the accumulation of great wealth from a new industry to one of her natives named Joquin. It was in the year 1656 that he observed that the scales of a fish called the bleakfish possessed the property of giving a milky hue to water. After experimenting with it, he discovered that when beads were dipped into it and then dried they assumed the appearance of pearls. This covering, however, was easily worn away, and successive experiments led to the manufacture of hollow glass beads, all of which were separately, then, polished by revolving cylinders, and finally coated inside with the pearly liquid, the latter being protected with wax. This branch of industry is carried on in Venice to this day.

An English Duke Receives a Tip.

The English journals mention an amusing episode of a pilgrimage to Rome. Just after the last train which brought the pilgrims back to London had entered the Victoria station an old lady burdened with packages was with difficulty trying to find a carriage when a middle aged man, simply dressed, approached and offered his services.

Thinking she had to do with one of the employes, the good woman gave him her bundles, which the obliging man carried to the end of the station and then, hailing a cab, placed the old lady and her impedimenta within, and giving the driver the address she had indicated called to him to drive on. As the carriage was about to roll off the woman placed a few of twopenny in the hand of the man who had rendered her the service.

He was simply the Duke of Norfolk. The duke pocketed the twopenny, thinking the adventure very original. Moreover, it was the first time in his life that he had ever earned any money by his own labor.

Model City to Be Built.

"A City of the Future," such as Beldy dreamed of, will be shown at the World's fair of Paris, which is planned for the year 1900.

The Invention Nouvelles proposes a departure from the usual toy arrangement of miniature models, Eiffel towers, etc., and advocates the erection of a city on a site sufficiently large to illustrate practically all of the most prominent new inventions, as well as the fruits of modern electro technique. The cost of erecting this future model city is to be covered by renting out the houses, hotels, etc., as well as all the stores to the exhibitors. At the close of the exposition the entire site, with buildings, etc., will be utilized as the nucleus for a new quarter of the city of Paris.—Philadelphia Record.

Riding Home Without a Key.

The "Bright Young Man" must be set down as being full of resources as his much quoted sister, the "Bright Young Woman."

One of the former escorted one of the latter the other evening to a theater. He is a young law student with more brains than money at the present writing, and he frequently counts pennies in making an estimate of expenses. On the evening in question he did so with such scant margin that a call for a quarter to pay for checking umbrellas more than exhausted it.

A sly search of his pockets just before they went up on the elevated station to take the train home produced only one 5-cent piece. It would never do to proclaim his dilemma to his fair companion. He could neither beg nor borrow the other nickel at that time and place, and for a moment he was desperate.

Then he took a chance. As they were about to pass the ticket window he let the young woman precede him, and when he reached his hand through, saying, "Two, please," he left his solitary coin and his pocketknife in front of the ticket seller. That functionary glanced up quickly, took in the situation and without an instant's hesitation passed out the two bits of pasteboard.

Everybody was satisfied. The agent of a good knife for a trifling sum, the future barrier had escaped a mortification, and the young woman remained blissfully ignorant of the whole transaction, as it was desirable she should.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

New York Versus Chicago.

A funny outcropping of Chicago's ambition is the practice of the papers of all cities referring to this city as "New York, N. Y." It just tickles a Chicago man to pretend that no one would know which New York he meant unless the abbreviation of the state was given.—New York Tribune.

DANGEROUS PREPARATIONS.

ALLOCK'S PODOB PLASTER is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, and is absolutely harmless. It assists nature in her own efforts to heal and invigorate, and imparts strength to the whole system.

Many preparations contain strong chemical and mineral substances, which produce an injurious effect not only upon the skin, but upon the whole system, although at first they seem very beneficial on account of their power to numb and temporary effect upon the surface.

When purchasing a plaster do not only ask for ALLOCK'S, but make sure that you get it.

BRANDRETT'S PILLS are purely vegetable.

But it's more than that, too. It's the only guaranteed remedy for all the functional disturbances, painful, and chronic weakness of womanhood. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, nervousness, indigestion, inflammation, and kindred ailments, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

SWINGING AROUND THE CIRCLE

Of the diseases to which it is adapted with the best results, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a family medicine, comprehensive in its scope, has never been thrust upon public attention in the guise of a universal panacea for bodily ills.

This claim, daily advanced by the proprietors of the daily press by the proprietors of medicines far inferior to it as specifics, has in a thousand instances disgusted the public in advance by its absurdity, and the prospects of other remedies of superior quality have been handicapped by the pretensions of their worthless predecessors. But the American people know, because they have verified the fact by the most trying tests, that the Bitters possess the virtues of a real specific in cases of malarial and liver disorder, constipation, nervous, rheumatic, stomach and kidney trouble. What it does is done thoroughly, and mainly for this reason it is endorsed and recommended by hosts of respectable medical men.
