NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1894.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Newberg, Oregon.

FRANCE has a liquor seller to every twenty voters.

WHEN the devil can't go to church himself he always sends a hypocrite.—Rain's Horn.

MONDAY tells the tale. Somebody will be left. In fact owing to the blanket ballot there will be several of him.

GRAVEL the hillsides on the public roads. Oregon is now too old a country to longer put up with jolly cross laying.

The ten ton cheese exhibited at the World's Fair by Canada was recently cut and eaten in London. What stomachs the Londoners must have!

A FAILURE of crops from dry weather or from any other cause was never known in the Willamette valley. A pretty good showing for a period covering nearly fifty years.

CAMPAIGN talk is cheap and the supply of campaign yarns is always equal to the demand, but who has ever heard a word spoken against A. E. McKern, candidate for county clerk. His election is conceded already.

The ignorance many people display on election day is inexcusable to say the least. It is the business of every voter to post himself on the questions at issue in every election and the man who does not do this ought not to be allowed to vote.

AT the inter-state oratorical contest held at Indianapolis recently, Charles Wishart, representing a Presbyterian college at Monmouth, Illinois, took first prize and L. F. Dimmitt representing De Pauw, the M. E. college of Indiana was awarded second prize.

IN NEW YORK the law makes it a misdemeanor to feed English sparrows or to put up bird houses to shelter them. Such an offense is punishable by a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment not to exceed one year. Although the law was passed in 1886 there has never been a prosecution under it.

PROF. P. A. GETZ of Monmouth, has received the appointment to the president's chair in the Normal school at Ellensburg, Washington. Our neighbors on the other side of the Columbia have been drawing on Oregon for some of our best college men in the past two or three years.

The Toledo Blade says with reference to the Indian question:
 The United States government has been shamefully lax in keeping its pledges with the five tribes of the Indian territory. Not one pledge has been kept in full by us, while demanding that the Indians live up to the strictest letter of the law. It is to be wondered at that there are Indian outlaws?

If you are not sure you know how to prepare the blanket ballot for voting get a trial ballot before hand and take it home, and by the help of your wife fix it up the way you want it to go into the box. Many people are more or less ignorant respecting the way in which such things are done, but some know how to keep from exposing their ignorance in public better than others. We make no charge for the above suggestion.

CONGRESSMAN HAYES, of the second Iowa district has lodged a complaint with the Washington board of health to the effect that the crowing roosters, in the neighborhood of his lodging place at the national capital deprives him of needed rest and are therefore a nuisance. Let the Washington authorities place a dozen roosters in every backyard where a congressman lodges and let the crows crow themselves hoarse or until congress adjourns in disgust and the country will be better off. If the Washington roosters can solve the problem they will help us out of a bad job.

The fiftieth anniversary of the golden jubilee of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in Exeter Hall, one of London's most imposing public edifices. The convention will open June 2 and continue in session one week. Over 1,000 delegates beside 4,000 visitors will participate. The American delegation of over 100 will be headed by John W. Wainwright, Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler and other men of prominence. George Williams the man who fifty years ago founded the first Young Men's Christian Association will be present as an honored delegate. He is now the wealthy head of the house in which he clerked at the time when he began his work of organizing in a little room in London with a few of his fellow clerks.

DURING the 57 years Queen Victoria has been on the British throne the people have given her under the name of civil list expenditures, $110,275,000. In addition to this $48,076,765 has been expended for the maintenance of seventeen royal residences, stables and the like. The total direct expenditures of the Queen alone is $154,951,765 or over $1,800,000 per annum. There is at this date an annual expenditure in addition for other members of the royal family of $1,300,000. It is generally considered inconvenient to be poor but it would be a big undertaking to spend so much money in a year as is mentioned in the Queen's expenditures.

It is not very generally known that on election day there will appear at the bottom of the ballots two lines reading thus: For stock running at large—Yes. For stock running at large—No. Here is an opportunity for the people to settle this much talked of question as to whether it is right and proper for stock to run at large in the public highway. If the majority of the voters in the county vote "yes," stock will continue to graze on the roadsides as of old, and if the majority vote "no," those of us who have cows running out, bothering our neighbors, will be compelled to keep them in the pasture or back yard. Make up your mind how you want to vote, and which ever way it goes, let'er go. As on all other questions let the majority rule.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago the idea prevailed very generally throughout the country that while for the winter term of school it was best to employ for teacher a man who could wallop the obstreperous big boys when necessary, for the summer school any bit of a girl who might apply was supposed to "know enough" to teach little children. In most places people have outgrown the idea that but little learning and experience in the world is required to teach in primary work in our public schools and are demanding that the best talent shall be employed to start the little folks on the road toward an education. The teacher who has spent the time and money required to fit herself properly for primary work and who has the necessary natural qualifications to make a successful teacher, is worth just as much in a graded school as those who may be called to teach in the more advanced grades. Economy is all right but it is economy to employ a poorly qualified teacher for primary work at any price? The man who builds a house is supposed to put in a solid foundation the first thing he does. Are we using common sense if we use poor material in putting in the foundation for the education of our children?

NORWAY.

A Lecture by Rev. Elwood Scott on the Land of the Midnight Sun.
 Rev. Elwood Scott spoke at Friends church on last Sunday night on his travels in Norway, giving a very interesting account of that far off country, the habits and customs of the people, as he saw them while there a few years ago on a journey preaching the gospel. He found the whole country mountains, rough and rocky with very little tillable land anywhere in a body. Little spots here and there are cultivated among the rocks and on the mountain sides.

They have very little cold weather along the coast as the Gulf Stream tempers the atmosphere. Fruits do splendidly, especially cherries and strawberries. Never saw trees so full of fruit anywhere except in Oregon.

In the far north of Norway the sun never sets for a period of eighty days, hence it is termed the land of the midnight sun.
 Barley, oats and rye do fairly well but breadstuffs to the amount of 200 pounds per capita is shipped into that country on a basis of 2,000,000 inhabitants. Potatoes are an excellent crop. Sheep do well, goats do better and cattle moderately well. The people raise and manufacture nearly everything they use, from the little shawl to the straw hat and wooden shoes. But little money is in circulation among the people, so little in fact that they hardly know the value of it. They are happy, well contented, well behaved people. In the greater part of the country they travel entirely by water. The mountains come down abruptly to the sea and the people live mostly near the water's edge. Whenever the mountains run back gradually making a little cove of level land, you will almost invariably find a little village, without roads, without horses and without any means of travel except by water. The little farming done is in patches far back on the mountainous slopes. From these patches wires are run down to the villages and the hay and other stuff raised is bundled up and put on the wire when it slides down to the owners home. Hay is cut twice a year but it never cures on the ground. Lines are stretched and the green grass is hung out to dry the same as the washwoman hangs out her clothes in this country.

Owing to the hills and mountains all over the whole country, causing rapids and water falls, there is not a navigable inland stream in all Norway. Travel along the coast by water is exceedingly cheap. You can go a long distance for only a few cents. The Norwegians are the most peaceable people in the world. A company of young fellows who went to Norway eight years ago armed themselves with revolvers and knives for self protection, but the natives laughed at them for their foolishness and they soon left their arms at a hotel and went on their way unarmed. The natives look and act like Americans. The fact is the Norwegians discovered America long before Columbus was born. Wherever roads have been built by the government, conveyances are run to accommodate travel and these are the greatest inducements for women. The women do the driving in that country as women do the milking in the United States. Sensible and lady-like they are too. Farming, fishing and milking are the principal occupations of the people. Most of the mills are little things driven by water wheels of the most primitive kind. This is not much different from that country. The liquor business is under government control and the seller receives a certain per cent of his sales and turns the rest into the public treasury. It is the least thing to prohibit. A liquor seller only sells one kind of drink. If he sells beer it is beer alone, if wine it is wine alone and if whiskey, he is not allowed to keep anything else. Liqueurs and cordons are quite common. This is accounted for by the common custom of inter-marrying which is not to be wondered at when we see the little neighborhoods of people here and there shut in from the rest of the world by mountains heights where they scarcely know any other people except their relatives.

The people were anxious to hear the gospel wherever we went. I came back to America with a great longing to return to my country than ever before, realizing that it is the best country the sun shines upon.

The White Ribbon Convention.
 The Twelfth Annual Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in Salem May 19th to 23rd with 102 voting delegates in attendance. The State Executive met Saturday evening. On Sunday the pulpits of several of Salem's churches were filled by white ribbon speakers. Monday morning at 8:30 the convention met, as is the custom of all these gatherings for devotions, led by the State Evangelist, Mrs. Amelia Mead, who chose for her subject, The Promise of God. Any one who does not know whence this body of women derives its power, would do well to visit them in their devotional meeting.

At 9 o'clock the business session of the convention was called to order by Mrs. Anna R. Riggs, President. The roll call of officers showed twenty-one of the general officers and superintendents present. Mary E. Allen was appointed to assist the recording secretary. Rev. Sutton of Seattle was introduced, and made a stirring speech in which he urged the convention to stand for Fairly. We see no difference between libertarians in a state official in Kentucky, and libertarians in Oregon. The minutes of the executive in the interim of convention were read and approved. The seating of delegations in alphabetical order was carried out.

Reporters were appointed for the news papers all over the state.
 Mrs. L. A. Dougherty, of Annapolis, was introduced and received with the Chautauque salute. She had ridden a road seventy-five miles by carriage to the nearest railroad station so that she might attend the convention. The usual committees were appointed, the county presidents constituting the committee on Plan of Work. Pending the report of the committee on credentials, Reverends Lee of Philomath and Hook of Salem were presented, and responded with short speeches, telling the convention that a temperance sermon is preached once every month in every church in Salem. Mrs. Mead led the devotions from 11 to 12 m. after which the convention adjourned to the basement of the church, where the ladies of the M. E. church served lunch. The afternoon devotion was led by Mrs. Ronniss, of Lafayette. Her subject was "Hourly Promises." The music was in charge of Mrs. Annan, Portland. The business meeting was called to order at 2 p. m. and minutes of forenoon session read. Reverends Lee of Philomath and Grant of Salem, were presented and spoke briefly. Rev. Lee said that when the lords of creation concluded to give women the ballot then goodbye to whisky, goodbye to Coxey's army, goodbye to hard times, etc. The report of the corresponding secretary showed a marked progress notwithstanding financial depression. Ten new unions reported. Several unions report saloons kept out of their localities by remonstrances. LaGrande reports a Loyal Temperance League of 23 members—so the children are coming to the fore.

Number of unions reporting, 65; active membership, 78; L. R. B. honorary members, 92; Y's, 153; L. T. L., 825; schools of method, 12; lectures given, 372. Seven unions have prohibition by law; five keep saloons out by persistent effort, eleven unions have headquarters; 200 copies of the national organ, the Union Signal, 21 Democrat contests held during the year. The treasurer's report showed a little balance on hand.
 At the evening session Mrs. Alice of Salem welcomed the convention in behalf of the W. C. T. U. giving a forcible illustration depicting the honors of the liquor traffic, and the power of the movement for the rescue of women. The South Salem M. E. church welcomed the convention in behalf of the church. The response was given by Mrs. Amos of Portland. A solo and chorus, title, Pity the Boy, followed by the singing of the national anthem. Mrs. Riggs gave her annual address, which was the best we have heard from her in the eight years she has served in this capacity. She would add to the society, agriculture, politics, organization, constitution. In fifteen states the department of homes for homeless children has been taken up.
 Thirty-five departments of work are carried on by the women of Oregon. The fact that great fraternal bodies are abstaining from saloons men is a straw not insignificant. The speaker made forcible points on the need of equal rights for man and woman. The choir then sang the World's W. C. T. U. song, "Around the World are Bands of Ribbon White." Mrs. Harford pronounced the benediction and the convention adjourned until morning.

Tuesday morning devotion was led by Mrs. Reese of Roseburg. The county presidents reported for their respective counties, encouraging reports they were. Rev. Messick brought fraternal greetings from the ministerial association. He declared himself for prohibition and said that if men proved themselves too cowardly to do their duty, God would raise up a woman for a leader who would "take us on to victory." The superintendent's reports were called for, and showed activity along the various lines. Afternoon devotions led by Mrs. Ronniss of Portland. A Mother's meeting was then held, led by Mrs. Haworth of Newberg, State superintendent of this work. The report of superintendents was resumed occupying the remainder of the afternoon.

Mrs. L. I. was given one hour to present her work, and was listened to with much interest, she being a most enthusiastic leader of the children. The summary is: 26 legions with a membership of 1,400. Mrs. Scott of LaGrande was introduced as superintendent of the banner L. T. L. of Oregon, with 223 members, and 44 gradules. A beautiful banner was presented this legion which had seen the largest number of graduates taking a regular course of temperance study. This banner was presented by Mrs. Narcissa White Kinney, of Astoria, in a forcible speech, and was responded to by Mrs. Scott in a very pleasing manner. A full house greeted the contestants in the evening, for the gold medal. These contestants having already won silver medals in their respective localities. All acquitted themselves creditably, the judges announcing that the marks were close and the decision difficult. Miss Lena Parker of Forest Grove was awarded the medal. Mrs. Riggs retains her position as president of the convention. Mrs. Lister of Astoria was introduced, and made a ten minutes speech to the delight of the audience. The male quartette rendered excellent music.

The election of officers was first on the program Wednesday morning, and as this is the only opportunity the women have, at present, of voting, they spent two and one-half hours, very pleasantly, in this way. This election was conducted in a most business like way. The roll was called, and voting members numbering 102 were seated in a body. The first ballot was an informal one for president, and resulted in the nomination of Madeline Kinney and Riggs. The formal ballot showed a majority for Mrs. Narcissa White Kinney of Astoria, who was declared president of the White Ribbon Host the coming year. Mrs. Riggs has served the Union loyally for eight long years but we believe that no matter how well a general marshal's his forces, a change of leader lends new inspiration to the work. Mrs. Riggs retains her position as president of the Refuge Home in Portland, and is also one of the editors of our state organ, the "White Ribbon," quite enough for one woman to manage.

Mrs. Kinney is well known to Oregon people, she being a Pennsylvania lady of culture, a former National Organizer for the W. C. T. U., and now is successor to the late Mary Allen West, national superintendent of School of Methods. Mrs. Kinney is a woman of fine physique and can command the attention of an audience because of her logical reasoning and her oratorical powers, and we predict an up-coming year, W. C. T. U. under her leadership. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Riggs for her faithful, efficient services for eight years past.
 Mrs. Helen B. Harford, of Newberg, was re-elected recording secretary; Mrs. Susie Foster, University Park, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. J. Shane, Portland, treasurer; Mrs. Minnie Thomas, Corvallis, secretary of the Y's, and Mrs. Ada Underwood, McMinnville, secretary of the T. L. The afternoon was very crowded with work, indeed this was the busiest convention all through we ever attended in the state, showing that the work is not done merely by giving these plans, three minutes to talk on franchise. This lady proposes organizing the state into franchise clubs, independent of the W. C. T. U.

The new president was conducted to the platform by the retiring president greeted by the Chautauque salute and made a beautiful speech. Mrs. Riggs offered prayer, after which regular business was transacted by giving these plans. Mrs. Amos of Portland and Mrs. Addison were elected delegates to the national convention to be held in Cleveland, Ohio. The Plan of Work committee reported, but was not able to give these plans. The Resolution committee also reported, after which Mrs. Townsend of Newberg held a "Model Union" to the pleasure of the audience. The president pronounced this a model union indeed. Yet it was no farce but was concluded just as is the Newberg Union at its regular meetings. The convention voted to go to Roseburg next May.
 It was left with the executive committee to attend to all unfinished business. The Y's work was reported at the evening session, and Mrs. Tatum of Albany gave a talk on Kindergarten methods. This was interesting, no doubt, but too long for a tired out convention, to listen to with patience. We held the day when program committees shall learn to cut down their program to one hour in the evening.

The "Temperance Badge" was well rendered by the quartette, and received a hearty applause. The chorus is as follows:
 We believe in prohibition,
 In the street or in the church,
 And only at the ballot box.
 We leave the law to the legislature.
 The benediction was pronounced and the convention adjourned.
 The floral decorations were very tasteful all through the convention; the national banner was suspended above the rostrum, in the center of which was a shield bearing the monogram, W. C. T. U., and a significant bow of white and yellow ribbon.
 Miss Willard's picture occupied a prominent position in front of the desk, and is an inspiration always. The people of the Capital City were quite hospitable and considering the number of conventions they have had this spring entertained the delegates in a royal way.
