

NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, Editor & Publisher.

FRIDAY, APRIL 17, 1896.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Newberg, Oregon.

Don't worry about paying your taxes. Some eastern philosopher has figured out that the world is to come to an end on Saturday, April 18.

It is claimed that the Moore and Nicholson liquor laws of Indiana are responsible for a decrease in the number of saloons in that state amounting to 600.

At an election held in Woodburn recently only one vote was lacking to give women the right of suffrage. One little ballot is wanted, and wanted had sometimes.

Plainfield, Indiana, has a justice of the peace (Squire Eli Johnson) who is now 82 years old. He has held the office for 49 years, has married 400 couples and has never had a decision reversed.

With so many tickets in the field some voters may feel at a loss to know how to vote, but no one need feel alarmed at all for there will be plenty of fellows around on election day ready to give the necessary instructions.

Glasstone and Pope Leo XIII, arch-hard workers at 80, and Denmark is by no means disabled at 81. The theory that the brain can be easily overworked by men of good habits is not sustained in these conspicuous cases.

A bill has passed the house in the Iowa state legislature compelling fire insurance companies to state in their policies the exact amount they will pay to the injured in case of fire. A pretty good law for any state legislature to pass.

A copy of The Whittier, a monthly paper published at the state reform school, located at Whittier, California, has been received at this office. It is a neat little sheet published in the interest of that institution, and its tone is certainly well calculated to influence the boys and girls for good.

At the republican state convention held in Portland last week the following nominations were made: For Supreme Judge, R. S. Bean, renominated. Presidential electors, T. T. Geer, John F. Caples, S. M. Moran and E. L. Smith. Delegates to the National Convention, J. W. McClrum, Chas. Hilton, R. A. Booth and C. H. Dodd.

A town in Massachusetts has passed an ordinance prohibiting the use of the bass drum by the Salvation Army while marching through the streets. It is safe to say that should the biggest circus in the country visit that town with forty bass drums the mayor and town council would give the concern a warm welcome and the whole populace would turn out to see the procession.

Bishop Selwyn an English clergyman in speaking of the advisability of educating boys and girls in the same colleges says: "It is a terrible risk to throw into one common crucible the education of men and women. Women would be pulled down by contact with the rougher, coarser nature of men." The bishop had better visit America where this idea was exploded a generation ago.

In addition to the bills that are to come to the country on account of presidential campaigning during the year, Colonel Breckenridge announces that he will again run for congress in Kentucky. This announcement is a severe blow to people who were happy in the thought that the Colonel had been turned out on the noted blue grass pastures of his native state, to graze in oblivion during his natural life.

As an evidence of the faith that fruit growing in the valley will continue to be a profitable industry, it is said that a greater average has been planted this spring than during any former season. The varieties finding most favor are winter apples, (the red colored kinds preferred,) peaches and cherries. The success of the fruit industry in the vicinity of Milton, and the growing demand coming from the rapid increase of population in the Northwest, furnishes abundant inducement for the extensive planting of trees.—Milton Eagle.

The Favorite Home of the Rose.

No description can do justice to the marvelous luxuriance of Southern California's climbing roses. Climbing roses that bear from ten to twelve thousand blossoms at a time are a common sight everywhere; and in the older towns there are rows of shade trees, shaggy barked pepper trees, whose trunks and branches are their most prized ornaments clothed with Cloth of Gold, Devoniansia, La Marque, and Beauty of Glenswood roses. In some of the rose gardens in the Pomona and the San Gabriel valleys from a hundred and fifty to a hundred and seventy-five varieties of roses are in bloom during March and April, and the boundless wealth of color and perfume are like nothing else that the wide world can show. There are ten-year-old bushes in Pomona Valley that bear every year from twenty to thirty thousand blossoms; and there are not only such wondrous bushes, but veritable rose-trees growing twenty feet high, and having trunks six inches in diameter. Cottages and arbors disappear under the odorous masses of glowing color, of which not even a painting can perpetuate half its charm of form and light and shade are the despair of the photographer.

While countless other shrubs, bushes, vines, and plants are growing rampantly and blossoming with that wondrous luxuriance which the extraordinary fertility of the soil and favorable climatic conditions favors, it is yet the rose which predominates and seems to have claimed this region as its own. Turn where you will, in wild country places, or on traveled roads, the rose is everywhere. You see our choicest, rarest favorites of the greenhouse, Marechal Niel, Marie Van Houtens and Clare Carnots, climbing over cabin doors and dropping their heavy, flower-laden branches from the eaves of old barns. Fully a mile of thick hedges of Marechal Niel, Cherokee, and Jacqueminot roses border the roads into Los Angeles and about Pomona. Seeds germinate and cuttings root with a rapidity that amazes the Eastern florist. A cutting from a night-blooming cereus—the cereus triangularis—will blossom in a few months, and it grows as a giant vine, clambering to the roof and forming a pendent fringe over the eaves. Its glorious, creamy-white flowers are a foot long, and are produced in greater numbers from July to November. And this is only one other of California's flower miracles.—From "Flowers and Pages," in Demorest's Magazine for April.

There was a curious gathering at the Grange hall Wednesday afternoon. It was a conference of individuals more or less prominent in the democratic and populist parties and a few disgruntled republicans, and terminated in the organization of an alleged new party, to be known as the union bimetallic party. Among the moving spirits were noticed such individuals as E. J. Wood of sorts, chairman of the party, the popular organization, who also acted as chairman of the conference, J. A. Vanorsdel, secretary, T. W. Perry, H. G. Guild, C. C. Liden and P. M. Churchman of Sheridan, J. C. Cooper and Charles Grison of McMinnville, and O. C. Emery of Newberg.

It was decided to hold a county convention on the 18th of April, the primaries on the 19th, to nominate a county ticket. This is three days later than the time set for the populist convention and we understand it is the intention of the managers to head off the middle-of-the-road party and prevent any nominations being made. The democratic party having adjourned subject to the call of the chairman without making any nominations, skillful manipulation is relied upon to see that the old party of Jefferson and Andrew Jackson gets left in the mixup and is stampeded to the free silver standard.

The platform adopted, like all platforms, has some good features, but on the essential questions of finance and tariff it is little more than an indefinite fumble. The conference missed a glorious opportunity to distinguish itself for a good work, by coming out squarely and honestly on the silver standard and declaring for the silver standard in preference to the gold standard, instead of hypocritically gabbling about gold and silver as standard money along with free coinage. Every man intelligent enough to be a party leader knows that free coinage means change to the silver standard, but they dare not tell it out loud.—Reporter.

O. C. Transportation Co. Reorganized.

With the first of this month a change in the stockholders and management of the Oregon City Transportation Co. was made. As now constituted the new company is composed of Arthur W. Graham, Alden B. Graham and Newton Graham, with Arthur as president, Alden as manager, and Newton secretary. The entire stock is now owned by the Graham brothers, they having bought up the stock held by B. B. Mason, of Portland, and T. P. Randall of this city. Mr. A. B. Graham will have charge of the company's office in Portland, where he will look after the multitude of matters that will be under his charge. The dock in this city will be in charge of Capt. Graham, father of the boys. The officers on the company's boats will remain as they have been for some time, Capt. A. J. Spong being in command of the Altona with Capt. A. W. Graham as purser and pilot. The Ramona will be in command of Capt. Newton Graham. There will be no change in the time table of the boats, which include Sunday, leaving Portland, Taylor street dock, and Independence at 6:45 a. m.

The Altona and Ramona make their various landings along their route with almost the regularity of a railroad train. The service they give is admitted by all to be the best ever had on the Willamette. No other boats on the river have more courteous and obliging officers than have these boats, and their popularity with the traveling public and shippers is fully deserved. The Graham brothers have a host of friends in the city, as well as along the river, who wish them the best of success. As they are all three young men of more than average push their new venture cannot be otherwise than successful.—O. C. Enterprise.

THE C. E. CONVENTION.

THE REPRESENTATIVE YOUNG PEOPLE OF YAMHILL AT NEWBERG.

The Best County Endeavor Convention for Years—Large Delegations—Much Enthusiasm—Officers Elected—Other Business—Next Meeting at McMinnville in October.

The Yamhill county Christian Endeavorers met in their semi-annual convention at the Friends church last Friday evening. There were present about eighty delegates, representing the various C. E. societies of the county, representing its best young men and women, representing the brain and sinew of the coming generation. Although the weather was exceedingly bad the large auditorium of the church was comfortably filled at each session. The keynote of the convention was inscribed on a large banner in front of the speakers' stand; it was "Soul Winning, Yamhill for Christ."

The convention opened by singing "Showers of Blessings," after which the county president, Rev. E. E. Thompson, read from Eph. 6: 10-14; after which the address of welcome on behalf of the city, was delivered by Mayor O. C. Emery; on behalf of the churches by Rev. Jas. P. Price. Rev. Price gave a short review of the formation of the Christian Endeavor movement, stating that on the evening of Feb. 2, 1881, forty persons assembled in the parlors of Francis E. Clark, at Portland, Me., and organized the first Christian Endeavor society, that now the United Society had 2,634,000 members, scattered all over the world.

In the response, Miss Ina B. Cooper, of McMinnville, gave a great many good, practical thoughts for the delegates to think of during and after the convention. President Thompson made a strong plea for personal work in his address on "Soul Winning." President Newlin followed with a practical talk on the good to be gotten from the convention and urged all to get into the spirit of the work. After a few moments spent in getting acquainted the convention sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds" and adjourned until

SATURDAY MORNING.

The sunrise prayer meeting was led by Miss Mattie Fink, of McMinnville, and was attended by about 100 Endeavorers.

The morning service was led by Mr. Dodson, of McMinnville, after which the following committees were announced by the President:

Nominating: Mrs. Rogers, McMinnville; Ella Macy, Newberg; R. A. Stowe, Bellevue; Ella Scroggins, Sheridan; Mrs. Bordon, LaFayette.

Enrollment: Mrs. Margarette Elliott, Newberg; Rev. F. A. Billington, Carlton; Ina P. Cooper, McMinnville.

Resolutions: Rev. C. C. Poling, LaFayette; Edith Mills and Brad Dodson, McMinnville.

The treasurer reported no debts and no money; but several collections were taken during the convention to provide for a working fund.

Rev. James P. Price, in speaking of the relation of the Endeavor to the church said that it was one of binding and cementing; that when one of the pillars of the church dropped out, one of the Endeavorers should be ready to drop in and fill the position.

The Endeavorer at home should watch the reading matter of the younger children; be careful in every action and thought, and build up the home in every way possible, was the thought presented by Miss Blanche Derr, McMinnville.

The leading thought presented in the time devoted to the missionary work was to be practical—feed the hungry, clothe the naked; give a proportionate amount of your income to missions; be missionaries at all times wherever you are; if you can't be a foreign missionary, be a home mission, etc.

Rev. F. O. Krouse of Sheridan, made one of the strongest addresses of the convention on the subject of "The Source of Our Strength." He said the source was the Bible, but to get the strength we must read the books connected, not a short sketch and then jump to some other place; strength is that which means something or does something—knowledge is power, and to gain that power we must study the word of God. He advised the reading of the four gospels, omitting all except the teachings of Christ—the other being unimportant, in a sense. The praise service was led by Mr. Stowe of Bellevue, followed by a talk on "Good Citizenship" by Dr. J. W. Watts of LaFayette, who said:

A citizen is an inhabitant, citizenship is a little higher, good citizenship is a little higher, christian citizenship is a little higher. In one sense a man that pays taxes and works the roads is a good citizen, but that is not the highest type of good citizenship—the good citizen is the good citizen. Christian principles should be the foundation of all our laws—Christ is the way, the truth and the light. Christian citizenship has made in the last few years a great advance, there are now a half million Christian Endeavorers are pushing it with all their might. This movement is not merely to clean streets, but to clean the soul and the mind. We are only in our infancy as a nation, yet we lead the world in material prosperity and manufacturing; we own one-fifth of the entire globe and have $90,000,000,000 of wealth; over 70,000,000 people, and only 120 years old. Our principle is that all men are created equal—that they are equal in rights; that this government was not organized to obtain rights, but to secure what we already have. Our watchword should be outward and upward.

You may be a patriot and not be a christian, but if you are a christian you are a patriot. The principal spirit of our institutions is freedom. The power of government is in the hands of the people. Be wise, be free, and be at work. When the hearts of the people are fired for the right, nothing can stand before them. Davy Crockett once said: "Be sure you are right and then go ahead." It is a nature of christianity to make happy homes, happy homes make happy states and happy states make happy nations.

Good citizens should have a knowledge of our government, know our rulers, should attend the primaries, nominate our best men for office and then see that they are elected, so that our filthy politics may be purified. Every citizen is to be held responsible for the conduct of our government. It is righteousness that exalts a nation and sin drags down. Loyalty to right and loyalty to our God is good citizenship.

President Newlin said that we were apt to have a too narrow view of the matter, that good citizenship applied not only to the primaries and election day, but to every other day in the year; that the world needs mending and we must do our part in mending it. Do not throw away the ballot, one ballot might elect a member of the state legislature, one legislator elect a U. S. senator, and that senator might have the deciding voice in an important measure. The strife of conventions is not a thing of a moment, but of years. To nip it in the bud we must commence with the child—where it can be done. He closed by exhorting all Endeavorers to strike wherever sin raised its head.

At this point the committee on resolutions presented a resolution to the effect that there should be a County Junior Superintendent added to the list of officers, and suggested the name of Mrs. M. L. Bardon of LaFayette, which was unanimously adopted by the convention.

SUNDAY MORNING. Rev. C. C. Poling preached a strong sermon to the Endeavorers on the line of "Soul Winning." Urging that they make a more consecrated effort in home and foreign mission work—be specialists. He emphasized the fact that to live in Christ Christians must work.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

Was devoted to Junior work and was very interesting. Special stress was laid on the matter of gathering in all the young people and keeping them; if one gets away, go after him and bring him back—never let loose of a child when you once get it.

F. S. Harding, our efficient democratic postmaster, was chosen an alternate to the democratic National Convention. The present law requires the assessor to make a military list each year that shall bear the same of every citizen between the ages of 18 and 45 years, who is able bodied. From this list, in case of war, soldiers are selected. The 1895 list gives the military strength of Oregon to be 57,928 men.
