Married.
 Miss Effie Macy was married to Moses Votaw, cashier of the Chehalis Valley Bank, at the Votaw residence in Newberg on Saturday evening, September 18, 1897, Rev. A. T. Ware officiating. The Graphic extends congratulations.

A Fatal Accident.
 Word was received here by telephone on Tuesday from Middleton, giving the particulars of a fatal accident which occurred in the family of T. M. Baker of Middleton, a brother to Mrs. Noah Heatter of Newberg. Three or four small children were playing in the yard while an older brother, some fourteen years of age, was also near by handling a shotgun. In some way the gun was discharged and the load of shot struck a little fellow about four years of age in the head, killing him instantly. This is only another instance to remind parents that they can't be too careful about letting boys have guns to play with, especially when there are other children around.

The College Opens.
 Pacific College opened for the year on Tuesday morning with the larger number of the old students back again and many new ones in attendance. A number of visitors were present to witness the opening and listen to the short but splendid speech by President Newlin. The other professors as well as some of the visitors made some remarks after which the students took up the work for the term just as though they had been at it all summer.

NOTES.
 Charlie Surface, of Blalock, Gilliam county, is in school.
 Douglas Taylor is a new student in the preparatory department.
 As soon as all our athletes are in football will begin in earnest.
 Miss Clara Vaughan is in college again after a years absence.
 College has opened with great enthusiasm for a hard and successful year's work.
 Miss Clara Hodson, late of Indiana, is an addition to the Juniors. She will be librarian this year.
 Mr. and Mrs. Marion Cook who have been out of school for two years are again in attendance.
 The Christian associations of the college are enthusiastically organizing their work for the coming year.
 Leon Kenworthy, fresh from the big wheat fields of Eastern Washington is in his accustomed place again.
 Prof. Francis K. Jones one of our new professors will have charge of our college athletics to a great extent.
 Fred Jackson and Maurice Townsend of Indiana are members of the Junior and Sophomore classes respectively.
 The attendance at present is about 60 but many more will be in school in a few days, after fruit drying and the rush of farm work is over.
 G. T. Tolson, class of '97 is associated with the faculty this year and is going to make a very popular and able instructor. He will be our boy professor.
 The students are glad to know that city water is to be piped in at once to supply the college building and boarding hall with pure mountain water.
 Three bright independent brothers are in school from The Dalles, named Reinhardt. The oldest is 15 years of age and the younger boys 13 years old are twins.
 The Misses Edith McCrea and Rosa Metcalf, and Marvin Blair and Roy Heater, all of whom attended the public school last year, are in the preparatory department.
 All three of the Kirk boys, Rollin, Carrol and Arthur are now in school, with two years of work between each of them, in the order mentioned beginning with the Senior.
 The Senior class of this year is doomed to a state of celibacy, as six beardless youths make up the class. They can't imagine what they have done to be treated in this manner but fate is against them and nothing is left but to put on a satisfied expression, with the exception of an occasional envious glance at the Junior row of seats.

Letter From F. A. Elliott.
 Mrs. F. A. Elliott received a letter from Frank last Monday from which she has very kindly allowed some extracts to be taken. He writes from Lake Lindenman Sept. 8, as follows: We have arrived at this place and hope to sail in a few days. After waiting for several days on Dr. Littlefield to get his pack train ready to bring us over we feared that we were waiting on something very uncertain and likely an impossibility so we quit Skagway and came over the Dyea trail. Sold the mules for $350 and hired Indians to pack our stuff to the summit and from there Lon and I have tugged it most of the way, packing from 75 to 100 pounds and all bad weather.
 We left Dyea Friday Aug. 27, reached Sheep Camp that evening and as and as the Indians didn't get along we had to go without our blankets. Went to the hotel, paid 75 cents for bread, bacon and rice and rustled for that. Set up by a cold stove or lay on the bare floor all night, one biscuit, coffee and bacon for breakfast. Well we were glad to get to shoulder our packs and leave there. Reached the summit at about noon Saturday and it was cold and rainy. From there to Crater Lake we packed over snow and very mean to walk over. That evening we fell in with a California man who had a tent and no grub so as we were in just the opposite condition we camped together. (We had a large tarpaulin stolen from us at Skagway.) Here there was no wood so we had to do quick work and cook with what few boxes we had left. For fire to warm by we crawled into the blankets. Had some snow. Finished packing down to the lake and got ferried across about a mile and a half Sunday, where we had another camp without wood, and by the way we lost our can of matches and all our tea by having them get mixed with some one else's goods, crossing the lake. I bought ten pounds of tea today however and we have been getting a few matches along where we could so we will get along all O. K.

 On Monday I took some nails, pitch and oakum over to Mr. Powman and found him all right but down in the mouth because we hadn't got through yet. He had a great big scow built for us to go down the river in but had a chance to sell it so he will probably build another. There are three lakes between here and the summit, all of which we ferried, and from the last one we hired the most of our packing done a distance of two miles. We wore all our old shoes out and had begun pretty well on our feet so we thought we would not have time to carry to here. I have been drying out our fruit, clothing, bacon and other things, as we have only had one day since reaching the summit without rain or snow, or both.
 Yesterday was a nice day and today is also.
 A man came in this morning with Seattle papers and sold them at $1 each. I waited until in the afternoon and got one for 50 cents. I have not seen an Oregon paper since leaving there. Lon saw an Oregonian once.
 The days are getting quite a little shorter but we still have lots of daylight.
 There are about 100 boats under way of construction here now and some 10 or 12 leave every day and it is about the same on Lake Bennett, six miles farther down, so you can imagine something of the number of people that are on the road to the Yukon. We frequently see women packing 50 pounds on their backs and men carry from 50 to 200 pounds. There is a continual string of people on the trail from daylight until dark, and my! at the prices they get for packing.
 We paid 23 cents per pound to the summit and now they have raised the price.
 There are men making as high as $30 per day and no doubt for the time it will beat the Klondyke.
 If we should not get down the river we will build some boats on Lake Bennett this winter but we are hopeful of getting down. Mr. Bowman was offered $300 for a boat he had made in less than two weeks, and it is likely he sold it and is building another for us. We could not expect such prices in the spring though for people will have more time and will build their own boats rather than pay such prices. Lon and I have come to our appetites. I have not had enough to eat for a week now, simply because my capacity is insufficient.
 F. A. ELLIOTT.
