

NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1897.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.

Governor Lord has appointed Squire Farrar of Salem to fill the vacancy on the state board of equalization occasioned by the death of S. D. Gibson. Mr. Farrar is said to be well qualified for the position.

Durrant's attorneys seem to have exhausted their efforts, finally, and it looks now like he would hang at an early date, but it is difficult to say just what a California court will do in this case. Later, Durrant has been sentenced to hang today.

The Telephone Register asserts that it is the only Yamhill county paper published and edited in its own building, but there is where it is mistaken. The Graphic has a new home of its own where it may be found doing business six days in the week.

A new born son appeared in the family of Ex-President Cleveland a few days ago. Grover believes in education and the rapidity with which his family has been increasing in numbers has probably had something to do with his locating within the shadow of Princeton College.

The San Francisco Chronicle says hemp raising promises to become quite an industry in California. The time was when they made use of an occasional piece of hemp on short notice in that state but late years it takes the courts a long time to reach a decision in a case where the use of hemp seems probable.

Conditions are changing. A New Albany, Indiana bank is closing up business because it has more money than it can loan to an advantage. A few short months ago banks were closing all over the country because they failed to show up with a sufficient amount of cash to satisfy their creditors; to say nothing about making loans.

A late decision of the supreme court makes it rather embarrassing for divorced persons who get in a great hurry to marry the second time. Under the new decision such unfortunate must wait six months after the divorce is granted before they can tie up again. A six months probation will give time for much needed reflection. One who has made a mistake of this kind once can afford to wait while before making the second attempt.

An unidentified exchange says that he criticized her pudding and didn't like her cake; he wished she would make biscuits like his mother used to make, she didn't wash the dishes, didn't mend his socks, as mother used to do. O well she wasn't perfect, but she tried to do her best until she thought the time had come to have a little rest; and so one day when he had growled and whined the whole day through, she turned him up and fanned his pants—as mother used to do.

Aaron Smith, editor of the Mount Pleasant (Texas) Times-Review, was born without arms twenty-nine years ago. In spite of this serious handicap he became a lawyer a few years ago and met with great success. Four years ago he purchased the Times-Review. "Under his editorial management," says the Boston Transcript, "it has become one of the best weekly papers in Texas, and Mr. Smith's editorials edited with his toes, or with a pen held in his teeth, or printed on a typewriter with a stick held in a similar manner, and widely quoted for their terse epigrammatic style, their rich humor, and their apt presentation of his views on subjects of current interest."

A wedding ceremony a little out of the ordinary was performed in one of the back districts of Polk county recently and the Oberver tries to shift it off onto Yamhill in the following notice made of it:

This is the way a justice of the peace in Yamhill county married a couple from the backwoods: "By the authority vested in me as an officer of the state of Oregon; by the virgin forests that spread about us in noble grandeur; by the howl of the fox hound and the coon dog; and by the morning glory whose clinging tendrils will shade your humble dwelling place; by the hair of the great black bear and the claws of the panther; by the quills of the hedgehog; by the juice of the blackberries whose sweetness fills your heart with joy; by the heavens and the earth and the things under the earth, in the presence of these witnesses, I pronounce you man and wife."

In the sale of the Union Pacific railroad the government will get the full amount of its lien. This is a great triumph for the McKinley administration. When the road was started a third of a century ago nobody supposed the government would get back in direct cash any of the money it put into the work. It was a great military as well as economic enterprise, and it was expected to pay the people, by uniting the Pacific coast with the Atlantic and in developing the west, many times for the money expenditure which the government made. This, of course, it has done. It will do more than this however, for the government is obtaining the full amount of its claim. The administration's desire has been to protect the people's interests in this matter to the greatest possible extent, and it has achieved a larger measure of success than anybody a month ago expected.—Globe Democrat.

The Scientific American in making comparison between the navies of Spain and the United States sums up as follows: From this brief review of the two navies it is evident that Spain is an antagonist who, in the present stage of naval affairs in the two countries, is by no means to be despised. Although she is second to the United States both in the number and power of her ships, her fleet would be effective for the class of warfare which she would probably elect to wage. It is not to be supposed for an instant that she would run the risk of a pitched battle where she would meet such mighty ships as the Massachusetts or the Iowa. Her policy would be to avoid the line of battle and content herself with depredations upon our seacoast cities and our commerce. The great speed of her 7,000 ton armored cruisers would enable them to elude our battleships, and the range and great weight of the 11 inch guns which they carry would prove terribly destructive in long range bombardment. If a war should prove to be protracted the delay would be in favor of the United States, as we should soon put in the water the five first-class battleships and the torpedo boats now under construction; and this would give us a powerful preponderance. As matters now stand, however, Spain would undoubtedly be able to maintain for some time a fierce and destructive naval war.

There are others besides Queen Victoria that can have jubilee. The gentleman surnamed "The Dandelion," otherwise known as Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, had one this year; the jubilee of his accession to the throne. To grace the occasion the Turkish newspapers appeared with handsomely illuminated front pages, devoted to praises of the sublime murderer, whom they called the "Shadow of God Upon Earth." Evidently they take a narrow, near-sighted view of the "Greatest of Rulers," not seeing him as they do in England, or as we do here, as witness the following effusions in his honor:

Thy majesty fills the horizon, O King of Kings of the age. Upon thy brilliant face glows the light of intellect. Thou, today, art the ornament of the throne of sovereignty. May God increase thy majesty and thy praise! By thy advent to the throne the hearts of thy servants were filled with light. By the blessing of thy appearance, the whole world found life. Like thee in irradiation of the light of equity, no king has ever come, in all the universe. The power of conquest flashes forth in thy shining face. The blows of thine anger fall like fiery bolts upon thine enemies. The degree of thy sublimity verily surpasses description, though hundreds of thousands of poets devote to it their pens. Live a thousand years, O King, near akin to glory and majesty. Live a thousand years, O Sultan of grace and justice.

The gain in revenue during the present month shows that the advance importations are being rapidly exhausted, and that the new law will soon be at work under normal conditions. Ever since the act went into operation the treasury receipts have been smaller than those of the corresponding time in 1896, but the gap is steadily narrowing, and at the present rate of shrinkage it promises to disappear in November. An increase in receipts as compared with twelve months earlier is then reasonably certain to take place. Every republican foresaw this falling off in revenue as a consequence of an in-rush of goods in the last four or five months of the Wilson act to take advantage of the low duties which would soon be abolished. Two or three months hence, it is safe to assume, the government's income will equal its outgo.—Globe Dem.

A man went into a Pennsylvania court recently with a suit against a railroad company for putting him off a train. He claimed that he took a seat upon the platform because he had only a short distance to go and it was not worth his while to ride inside. The conductor told him it was against the rules to ride outside upon the platform and he must either ride inside or be put off. He refused and was ejected from the train. The company contended it was its duty to prevent accidents, and it was therefore its duty to forbid passengers from riding on its platforms. The court held the rule to be a reasonable one and sustained the company.

Farmer Jones' Example. "I was only just a thinkin'," said Farmer Jones, one day.

"Aagin' a ride'n' to the city on my hay." "Torn't out for mebbe an' a 'sickin' in the road. Always gettin' a haw'n' fer fear to spill the load. Why can't we farmers have a road, like city folks you see, where all day rigs and things like that, can be kept as clean as a pin? An' no 'straw' out for mebbe, nor workin' your horse to death. Nar' haw'n' round about some place till the critter's found its treat. By gosh! says I, I'll fix my road, along my farm and see. If all the neighbors take the hint an' do the same as me. Well then I began a workin' and first it seemed like play. But I had my men a workin' till the cloasin' of the day. An' every day that I could spare was gaddin' that road. An' 'sixin' things so that a horse could easy go an' load. At first the job was flustered, but it didn't seem to pay. As the neighbors wuz only thinkin' an' a wonderin' what to say. But they kinder got astimmed of theirs an' began to take the hint. And so they began a workin' too, to make their roads like mine. At last the roads were all alike so you couldn't tell their likin'. An' I am powerful glad," said Jones, "that I began a thinkin'." —Globe Dem.

Doing is the great thing. For if, resolutely, people do what is right, in time they come to like doing it.

ELI PERKINS AND UNCLE REUBEN

The Old Man Returns from Europe and Marvels at Our Prosperity. My Uncle Reuben got home from Europe yesterday. Reuben was a free-trade democrat, and when Cleveland was turned down and McKinley was elected, he thought the country was going to ruin; so he fled to Europe to avoid the wreck. Reuben was a sad man when he walked mournfully down the gang plank of an English liner.

"Well, they did it, Eh," he said, sadly, as I clasped his honest hand. "Why, they 'fected McKinley, and went and built that Chinese wall and shut us off from the markets of the world, didn't they?" "Yes they did, Reuben," I said. "Poor England has been shut off, and unhappy Bradford isn't sending any more cloth to us now. Sheffield has about stopped sending cutlery, Nottingham's lace factory has quit sending us laces and grass is growing in the Welsh tin factories. The wall did it, Reuben."

"And our poor country is naked and suffering," mourned Reuben, "and Cleveland's $250,000,000 deficit is increasing and no gold is coming in, and we're still borrowing what gold we can get from England at 4 per cent, just as poor Cleveland did." Then Reuben had a chill.

"No Reuben," I said, "the tariff wall didn't stop gold. That came in free and they've sent us $250,000,000 in gold and the Treasury is clogged with it."

"What did they send us the gold for, Eh?"

"Why to buy iron, and pork, and wheat and cotton?"

"But with the wall up and the markets of the world closed where do we get our cloth, pottery and tin from now?"

"We have gone to making them again ourselves, Reuben. The old dead factories are starting up. We are sending iron to Scotland and tin to all Europe, and wages are going up and times are booming, and we are selling more corn and cotton now than ever, and this Chinese wall keeps us from buying things when we can make them at home, and that wall keeps all the wages here."

"But you don't say that with the wall up we are getting enough revenue to run the government?"

"Well, not quite enough Reuben; but when Cleveland broke down that wall they piled in a lot of stuff free. We are using that up now, you know. But when it is gone our dead mills will burn; the boys will have money to lust and the rich people will haul enough luxuries over the wall to make Cleveland's deficit revenue into a surplus. With the tariff doubled we won't have to ship only one half as much stuff as we did before."

"And McKinley's wall didn't kill our markets, Eh?"

"No."

"And we won't have to call in the greenbacks to stop the 'endless chain' business?"

"Why not?"

"And McKinley didn't wipe out a republic and put Grover's black Queen on the throne in Hawaii?"

"Why not?"

"And prosperity has come back?"

"Certainly it has."

Then Reuben sat down on a bale of Georgia cotton marked Manchester, put his elbows on his knees, pressed both hands on his forehead, and said to himself: "By gum!" ELI PERKINS.

A Better Way.

Modern medical science classifies certain kinds of disease as "preventable." While the physicians of a generation ago devoted themselves to contending with these diseases after they had developed, the physicians of today try to remove the conditions which occasion them. The result is a saving of human suffering and diminished death-rate.

So far as is possible to apply this principle of prevention to troubles between employers and the employed, the best results may be expected. It is a good thing when such troubles are settled by conference or arbitration, but it is a better thing when they are avoided altogether by wise precautions.

Labor was arise from a supposed antagonism between the interests of labor and capital. A wise policy of conciliation will seek to make those interests identical.

Sometimes this can be done by a plan of profit-sharing; though there is the objection to this plan that it gives labor a share of profits, but throws all risks and losses on capital. The Illinois Central Railroad Company has adopted a plan which is free from that objection. It allows its employees to buy its stock at par,—less than its market value,—and thus to acquire an interest in the welfare of the corporation. Two thousand shares are already thus owned, and partial payment has been made on sixteen hundred more.

Sometimes permanent arrangement can be made for friendly conference on any difficulties which may arise. This is the plan which has been followed of late years in the New York street department. There is a "Committee of Forty-one" in the department, elected by the men, and wholly made up of sweepers and drivers.

To this committee all complaints are first sent. If it cannot settle them, they are forwarded to a joint board of conference, made up of five members of the committee and five officers of the department, in which all are on an absolute equality and a sweeper or driver is always chairman. If this board cannot settle a case, it is sent to the commissioner, whose judgment is final.

Out of about three hundred cases arising in the first year, two-thirds were settled by the committee. The others were settled by the board of conference. Only one case was sent to the commissioner, and that was decided by him more favorably to the employe than the board of conference had deemed best.

Many a strike in private industry, wasteful alike to capital and labor, might have been prevented by so simple an arrangement as this.—Youth's Companion.

Matrimonial.

The following notice taken from a Portland paper explains itself. The marriage of Miss Willie Ball and George T. Hardwick, of Newberg, was solemnized by the Rev. E. J. Palmer in the parlors of the New Esmond hotel, Monday evening, November 3, at 7:30 o'clock. The bride was attired in a handsome silk gown and attended by Miss Laura Puzey, while Mr. Frank Lowe acted as best man. Only relatives and intimate friends were present. After congratulations all repaired to the dining room, where a bountiful lunch was served. Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick will spend a few days with friends down the Columbia river, after which they will make their residence in Newberg, Oregon.

Oil of Glanox

Is a pleasant, palatable preparation, entirely free from all oily taste, and may be administered internally or applied externally. It will remove all pain that "human flesh is heir to," if properly applied, and might be rightly termed "a panacea for all ills." Price 50 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

The "Old Tree," one of Lexington's famous landmarks, was lately noticed to be decaying, owing to its age. It is now over 150 years old, and was in a very good state of preservation until recent years. The old tree is situated in front of Buehman Tavern, whose walls are riddled with bullets from the battle in 1775. So it is supposed that there are also many more imbedded in the heart of the old tree.

Blood Will Tell.

The many different skin diseases such as ring worm, tetter, salt rheum, erysipelas, eczema, itching or an eruption of pimples, pustules, blotches, chaps or cracking open of the skin, scurf, are directly the cause of impure blood. Willson's Blood Purifier is acknowledged to be the best medicine known for any of these unsightly complaints. Price $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

A North Bath Milkman has, perhaps, the unique pasture of Maine. It is an island, and when the tide is high the cows have to swim for it. The Bath Enterprise says the cows have become so accustomed to this way that they will strike out without a moment's hesitation, and remarks: "It makes a spectacle worth looking at when the fifteen cows all plunge into the water and swim for their feeding ground."

A Life Saved.

Consumption and bronchitis are not by any means the same, although it is hard to distinguish one from the other. Bronchitis is an inflammation of the lining of the wind tubes or air vessels of the lungs, causing soreness of the same, cough, sore throat, hoarseness, difficulty of breathing, spitting of matter and sometimes blood. Thousands die annually with this dread disease. Willson's Cough Cure will cure. Price 50 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

John Griffin, of Zanesville, O., says: "I never lived a day for thirty years without suffering agony, until a box of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cured my piles." For piles and rectal troubles, cuts, bruises, sprains, eczema and all skin troubles De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequalled.

Cats are to be dropped from the German military establishment. They have now an allowance of $1.50 apiece for training, medical care, food and badges. They are employed to protect the depots of military stores from mice. Professor Poehler, however, having discovered a typhus bacillus fatal to mice, this will be substituted for cats.

There is a time for everything; and the time to attend to a cold is when it starts. Don't wait till you have consumption but prevent it by using One Minute Cough Cure, the great remedy for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles.

The Hicks 1898 Almanac and Paper.

We are informed that the 1898 Almanac of Prof. I. R. Hicks is now ready, and judging from its past history, it will not be many weeks in finding its way into homes and offices all over America. It is much larger and finer than any previous issue. It contains 116 pages, a splendidly printed and illustrated on fine book paper, having the finest portrait ever given of Prof. Hicks. It can no longer be denied that the publications of Prof. Hicks have become a necessity to the family and commercial life of this country. His journal, Words and Deeds, aside from its storm, weather and astronomical features, has taken rank with the best literary, scientific and family magazines of the age. Do not believe heresy and reports. See the Hicks Almanac and paper for yourself. You will then know why they are so popular. They are educators of the millions, and unrivaled safeguards to property and human life. It is a matter of ample record that Prof. Hicks has foretold for many years all great storms, floods, droughts and tornadoes, even the recent terrible drought over all the country. The Almanac alone is 25 cents a copy. The paper is $1.00 a year with the Almanac as a premium. Send to Word and Publishing Co., 2201 Locust St., St. Louis Mo.
