A sheep drover passed through town one day the first of the week with two hundred head of fine sheep, some of which he said he paid $5.10 per head for. He also stated that he had on hand four hundred head that he bought when the Wilson bill was in force, at $1.50 per head. Here are figures that knock the wind out of the argument that tariff laws never benefit the farmer. Any sort of a granger can figure the difference between the price of sheep at $1.50 per head and $5.00 per head and he also knows what to do with the additional $3.50 per head he receives under the Dingley tariff law.

A hobo who was making a house to house canvass one day last week carrying an arm in a sling and putting up a pitiful plea for assistance had an experience before he left our borders that he will no doubt relate to his meekly comrades as one of the laughable experiences of hobo life. He called at the residence of G. T. Hollister in the course of his rounds and as Mr. Hollister had seen him about town before, he was somewhat skeptical about the lame arm in the sling and consequently he suggested that the tramp go with him to Dr. Rossler's office where he would see that he received medical treatment without any cost to himself. The knight of the road reluctantly followed Mr. Hollister to the doctor's office where the bandage was removed and an examination made. The arm showed that it had been burned with some strong acid and when the doctor accused him of doing it purposely he wailed and admitted that he was guilty as charged. Mr. Hollister then remarked that he guessed they would turn him over to the marshal for further care, when the hobo shot out at the door and made tracks very lustily for the patch of timber north of town, and up to the present time he has not made any more appeals for help in Newberg.

State Prohibition Convention.
The Oregon state convention of the prohibition party was held at Army hall in Newberg on Wednesday of this week. The larger number of the delegates arrived in town on Wednesday and after being supplied with badges they were assigned to places for free entertainment. This is something of a departure from the usages of political parties, as it has been customary for delegates to conventions to pay their own bills.
Rev. Ray Palmer was billed to speak at the hall on Tuesday night but he did not arrive on the evening train and consequently the time was taken up in off hand speeches by delegates, interspersed by music and recitations by a lady delegate.
Wednesday morning's session was devoted to the organization of the convention and the appointment of committees. H. M. Clinton of Portland was elected chairman and Mr. Sent of Albany, secretary.

The most important session of the convention however was held in the afternoon. While the committees were getting ready to report, Rev. N. A. Baker, state organizer, was called on for remarks. He spoke briefly on the essentials of success, emphasizing the necessity of faith in the prohibition cause, hard and conscientious work, perseverance and harmony. The report of the committee on resolutions was handed in by the state central committeeman, L. H. Amos. This report recommended that the platform of the national prohibition party of 1896 be adopted as the platform. This meant a single issue platform and called forth at once a vigorous discussion. N. L. Wiley and Chas. Mitchell, both of Yamhill, spoke strongly in favor of such issues as the money question, woman's suffrage, and the initiative and referendum. They were strongly opposed however, by Bray of Washington, Watson of Yamhill, Blalock, of Polk, Emerick of Benton, and many others. The report was accepted and the single issue platform adopted. On the recommendation of the committee on nominations the following were nominated as the party candidates: Governor, H. M. Clinton, of Portland. Sec. of state, N. C. Davis, of Halsey. Treasurer, Moses Votaw, of Newberg. Supt. of Public Instruction, B. E. Emerick, of Philomoth. Supreme judge, T. E. Hackerman, of Albany. Atty. General, C. J. Bright, of Wasco. State Printer, M. D. Markham, of Forest Grove. Congress, First district, L. H. Peterson, of Woodburn. Second district, G. W. Ingalls, of Portland.

Throughout the session a determined spirit was manifested. It seems to be the earnest intention of all to thoroughly reorganize the state work and to strive harder for victory, which now seems so distant. On Wednesday night Rev. Ray Palmer delivered his address to a good house and those who heard it speak of the address as being a good one, taken from the speakers standpoint.

AT THE NEWBERG CHURCHES.
What the Pastors said—Announcements for Next Sunday.
CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS.
At the Methodist church next Sunday the pastor will speak in the morning on the subject, "The Bow in the Cloud," and in the evening at 8 o'clock on "The Bible and Recent Discoveries."
On Sunday morning at the Friends church the pastor will talk about "War Methods in Daily Life," and in the evening will speak of "Life's Fulfillment." A cordial welcome is extended to all.

FRIENDS CHURCH.
At the Friends church in the morning service the pastor spoke from Josh. 4: 1-7.
* * * Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan * * * twelve stones, and carry them over with you, and lay them down in the lodging place where ye shall lodge this night. * * * that this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask in time to come, saying, what mean ye by these stones? Then ye shall say unto them, because the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the Lord; * * * and these stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel forever.

History has much to teach us of the past. Wonderful happenings and great achievements are hidden there, and are pointed out to us by the memorial stones that are set along the pathway of human life. All day long, this beautiful Sabbath day, the Christian world has streamed past a great memorial pile in one unending procession of flowers, and music of birds and songs of praise—the memorial stone that points us back many centuries to a wonderful day in Palestine. There in a garden near Jerusalem in a newly made tomb lay the broken body of the Galilean prophet. In the dim light of the dawn as the Roman sentries guarded the grave, two women approached, drawn thither by the loving loyalty that his noble, God-like character had kindled within them. Suddenly there came a messenger from Heaven whose appearance was like lightning and his raiment was white as the light—his voice touched the ponderous stone rolled back from the door of the stone vault. In the presence of the terrified soldiers he announced to the women the righteous message "He is not here; He is risen," and then began to dawn upon the world the great truth of "Immortality. In the words of Paul "He brought life and immortality to light." To the heathen, death was the doorway to the dark and dread unknown. Their names for death were indicative of despair—the eternal night; a ship gone to pieces; a harp lying on the ground, its strings broken and all its music lost; the demon bearing cup of poison, the inexorable jailer with his keys.

They indeed sorrow "without hope." But now the world is flooded with light, Christ is risen! The grave is not the end—may even "He is not here, and believeth in me shall never die." "There is no death, what we call so is transition." "Because I live ye shall live also." "All shall exist eternally, but only those who are linked to Christ shall live, shall have "eternal life." The vexed question "If a man die shall he live again?" which had so long divided the Jewish church, was now settled.

Again the resurrection of Christ, than which there is no better proof fact in history, stands out as the one great miraculous proof of Christ's divinity. It is the one great testimony that Paul and the other apostles use in proving His divine Sonship, as he says in the first of Romans, "Who was declared to be the Son of God * * * by the resurrection of the dead." With great power gave they their witness of His resurrection. Many others, men of God, had performed miracles, but none but the divine one could burst the bands of death and triumph over the grave.

Perhaps none can realize the utter dejection and despair unto which the disciples were plunged by Christ's death. To them all that bright hope and dream that had begun to fill their lives, was lost forever. Perhaps the despairing words, "We hoped it was he which should redeem Israel," best describes their condition of mind. But now "his despair was turned into joyous hope. They began to understand how He would not leave them comfortless (orphans) but would be with them—an everlasting presence in the world—that what he had been doing—inspiring, uplifting, purifying, making God-like—he would continue to do. He would continue to give Himself to mankind in blessing. Ah! "What mean ye by these stones?"—the flowers and birds, the things most precious to human life, a memorial testimony to immortality, to Christ's divine Sonship, and to His everlasting love and Fatherhood. Yes, Christ is risen—He has triumphed over the tomb. The grave is conquered for us in the hope of a glorious resurrection. The world rejoices for Christ is risen.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.
The pastor spoke in the morning from the text: "And there shall be no more death."
The word of God is a volume of noble conceptions, truthful and accurate in treatment of man's moral and religious condition and need and which offers a consistent solution of the problem of good and evil. In its opening chapters it portrays man condemned, while at its close it stands redeemed and entering a new era in which there shall be no more death.

While Scripture reveals to us all our moral deformities, it also reveals to us the ideal life and character and the means of attaining it. Christ is the means of its attainment. As a religious system Christianity is a self consistent whole and must be accepted or rejected as whole. In Christ we see illustrated God's true devotion to his life is an example of humanity glorified by the power of virtue; He is the perfect man. He came to give the world his example, but He also came to die. His death atoned for our sins and made forgiveness possible. If we deny the merit of his death we have no ground for pardon.

Have you experienced the joy of sins forgiven? Has your enmity against God been changed to love? Do you hope and work and pray for triumph of righteousness? It is all because Christ died for you. But do you dream of a time coming when the ruined body shall be restored from death to glorify the Creator? It is because Christ arose from the dead. He is the ground of all hope.

His resurrection is an event supported by the best historical testimony, and by the very necessities of the scheme of salvation. It is supported by the same kind of testimony that supports the war of Revolution as an event in history. We have the Gospel written by eye witnesses and companions of Christ who saw him after his resurrection. We have the testimony of Paul a contemporary witness whose writings are declared genuine by the best skeptical critics. Social and political events mentioned in the Gospels are confirmed by profane history thus proving them reliable. Christianity and the church which are founded upon the resurrection exist today. Moreover the Easter festival and Christian Sabbath dating back from apostolic times commemorate the event.

The disciples after Christ's death were not prompted to preach his doctrine merely in hope of political aggrandizement, nor for sensual pleasures, nor by partisan pride, nor through simple ignorance and fanaticism. He was not defiled by them but by Old Testament writers. They were prompted to preach as they did because Christ arose from the dead. If he did not arise in the future which only await the power of his resurrection to be realized.

Many possibilities lie before us here, but many lie before us in the future which only await the power of his resurrection to be realized.
