E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1898.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.

Look out for a sweeping victory with the ticket put up at McMinnville last Saturday.

As a topic of general conversation Klondike is not in it any more since Uncle Sam is out with his war paint on.

Our Asiatic fleet took the iniative at Manila and our Atlantic fleet will no doubt follow in a few days with the referendum in Cuban waters.

When the Cubans catch Weyler a little later on, Dewey will be able to furnish the rope as he now has possession of the country where the manila comes from.

J. R. Sovereign, of Arkansas is already in Oregon in the employ of the three-ply party as a campaign speaker and the long haired Davis, of Texas, with a cyclone attachment is on the way to dispense oratory in unlimited doses. Mary Ellen will probably be heard from later.

Salem is to have a new daily paper. C. B. Irving, who was formerly editor of the Statesman and who is now publishing the Salem Sentinel, a weekly paper, will launch the new daily. Irving is a good writer, but whether that field is ripe for a new daily or not remains to be proven.

The retirement of John Sherman from the cabinet takes the last of the great men who were prominent characters during the rebellion out of active public service. Sherman has been one of the safest and best all round statesmen of the last fifty years and he will be so recorded by historians

Sam Clark, of Salem, who has been in Washington for several months, has been given a place as librarian in the Interior Department by commissioner Herman. Mr. Clark is a very fluent writer and he will be able to furnish the Oregon press with some very interesting Washington letters if he is so disposed.

In area Spain is only a little larger than Oregon and Idaho combined. In her conceit she apparently felt herself to be as big as the United States at the beginning of the war, and even since Dewey administered his severe drubbing a few days ago the Spaniards are still blowing. A second spanking will no doubt be necessary to bring the heathens to their senses.

It has been the hue and cry of the populist party since its organization that the common people had no voice in the affairs of the state. The June election will test their sincerity. The republicans have nominated T. T. Geer, a farmer for governor and the opposition have nominated W. R. King, a lawyer. If they are honest in their convictions Mr. Geer will receive their support.—Junction City Times.

The evil effects of the California drouth are being felt even to the far off northern boundaries of Oregon. Tramps, like lousy calves, like to be turned out on green grass in the spring and as there is not a green spot to be found in all California except on irrigated land, the tramps who wintered south are swooping down on Oregon "looking for work" (?) and green pastures. Oregon has the green fields and a warm welcome for honest toilers but the hobo element is not wanted.

Our Nominee for Governor.

Theodore T. Geer, nominated for governor by the republican state convention, is a native son of Oregon, and now forty-seven years of age. He was born in Marion county, and brought up to the business of a farmer. His education was that afforded in the common schools of the county, supplemented by the industrious habit of reading the best literature of the day, and instructing himself in the political history of the country. Mr. Geer is, and always has been a diligent reader of newspapers, and is one of the best posted of our public men in current political questions. This is one thing that gives such effectiveness to his addresses before the public

In his younger days Mr. Geer lived in eastern Oregon, and then returned to the Waldo Hills, in Marion county where he has since resided, engaged in farming. In 1880 he was elected as a republican to the house of representatives of the state legislature, in which body he was soon noted a rising young man. He was chairman of the committee on counties and was prominent in other committees. Afterwards he was elected two or three times to the same body, and was chosen speaker of the house one term, in which position he won praise from all sides for his ability and fairness as a presiding officer. For many years Mr. Geer has been conspicuous in the political arena of Oregon, both as a correspondent of the newspapers and as a public speaker, and no man in the state is better known as a writer for the press than he, outside of the editorial profession. His articles were often full and complete, and so exact, many times, as to serve as a "vade mecum" for the ordinary politician.

A resident of Salem, who knew Abraham Lincoln several years before he was mentioned for the presidency, regards Mr. Geer as a remarkable man, and singularly like the great war president in many qualities. He has Lincoln's selfpoise as an orator before a promiscuous crowd, the same directness of statement and an equally happy faculty of turning into ridicule the arguments of an opponent. It may be added that he is endowed with the same sense of justice and honorable dealing in politics, as in every other calling, that characterized the life of Lincoln, and as evidence of this it is sufficient to refer to Mr. Geer's refusal of appointment as register of the Oregon City land office, under the circumstances in which it was offered to him.

That Mr. Geer will be elected governor by a large majority goes without saying. He is in perfect accord with the republican party on all vital questions, and, as his career is abundantly shown, he is every way qualified to be its standard bearer in this campaign.—Salem Statesman.

Tongue for Congress.

The nomination of Hon. Thomas H. Tongue for a second term is another instance of the prudence and sound judgment exercised by Oregon conventions this year. Nominated after a sharp contest and barely elected after a hard fight to succeed a very popular congressman, of long standing, Mr. Tongue started in badly handicapped for a record in a first term.

The American congress is so large and numbers among its ranks so many able men with the experience of several terms in that body, that a new member is hardly able to obtain recognition on the floor much less to gain the attention of the body to anything he may say, and yet our congressman by his ability, and indomitable energy, has already made himself known as a man with something to say, and something worth listening to by his associates. It was a remarkable tribute to his power, that of the hundreds of speeches made on the currency question, Mr. Tongue's was one of the four selected by the committee to be distributed over the Union, this fall as a campaign document.

Having so well established himself as a man of ability in congress and shown his disposition to attend faithfully to all the details of his office it would be the height of folly to replace him at this time with an untried man, even of equal ability. It is a truism that a congressman's usefulness to his constituents increases with his years of service, and every prudent man will hesitate long before voting for a change in that position, where the present incumbent shows a fitness for his place.

This is all apart from the question of partizanship, and when we reflect that this district showed a small majority for Bryanism which is now succeeded by confusion, it is well that we have a candidate, who will add to party strength his individual worth, and fitness for election. It only remains for the class of voters who act independently, to think what they are doing this time and insure us a representative of whom we can be proud.—Tillamook Headlight.

The Island of St. Thomas

The advantages of St. Thomas as a central, salutary, and convenient port for the United States have always been recognized by those who have any knowledge of the matter. The island is about 18½ degrees north of the equator and 36 miles east of Puerto Rico. It is second in size of the Danish Virgin Islands, St. Croix containing more than double its square miles. The Virgin group of islands was discovered by Columbus on his second voyage in 1493 and were christened by him in memory of St. Ursula and her 11,000 companions whose bones are claimed still to be preserved at Cologne Whether Columbus concluded as he felt his way among what may well have appeared to him to be an innumerable cluster of islets, scattered over a space of two degrees of latitude and longitude, that there was an isle and apiece for each of the virgin followers of Ursula, is certain, but wiser men than Columbus have demonstrated the fact that in this work of distribution there are only islands enough to provide one each for about 100 of the virgins. Scarcely more than a dozen of the islands are now inhabited. The total area is estimated at 465 square miles and the total population a few years ago was 67,000 The westerly islands belong to Spain, the easterly to Great Britain, and the central to Denmark. The area of the Spanish islands is about 150 square miles, that of the British about 57 square miles, and that of the Danish 250 square miles—a probable over estimate. The population of these divisions according to the latest obtainable information are respectfully approximately 2,600, 5,500, and 34,000. The area of the three principal Danish islands is as follows: St. Croix, 80 square miles; St. Thomas, 33 square miles; St. John, 11 square miles. St. Thomas has only one town, bearing the name of Charlotte Amelie, but more often called by the name of the island, and is also located on its magnificent harbor, which is about the middle of the south coast and is nearly landlocked. The island is about 13 miles long and has an average width of about 3 miles. The harbor, so well sheltered and so advantageously situated in the way of ocean travel, is undoubtedly one of the best and one of the most commodious in all the West Indies It is capable of floating the largest vessels and possesses adequate anchorage for the entire navy of the United States and its merchantile marine.—From "Two Great American Treaties," by W. Martin Jones, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for May.

ON THE BATTLEFIELD WITH GOMEZ

An Intensely Interesting Article by a Field Correspondent—"Marching With Gomez"

One of the most striking and intensely interesting magazine articles on the war in Cuba appears in the "National Magazine" for May. It is elaborately illustrated by drawings made by Major Grover Flint on his march with Gomez, and altogether furnishes the most picturesque and vivid description yet published. The article also includes a discriminating and comprehensive review of the book written by Grover Flint, "Marching with Gomez." Besides being timely, the article has a historical value because it is absolutely authentic, and every page sparkles with the realities of an actual war campaign. "The National Magazine" has no equal in the periodical world in handling timely national topics.

Editor Graphic:

We are here. I mean Frank Vestal, the two Bowman boys and we three. We are all busily engaged at our several jobs during rain and sunshine, day and night. Frank has a good job in a barber shop at the Treadwell mines. The Bowman boys are working near the same mines, while we three are attending to our store and night watch at the sawmill. Our trade is principally from the Indians, who have their peculiar ways. They will come into the store and first take in the surroundings and their keen eyes will scarcely escape noticing the least article; finally they will point out the thing wanted, if there is a mark or dent on the article they will see it, and that settles the the matter and they say "cultus." They are simple in their wants. For an illustration, they call for five cents worth of sugar, same of rice, apples, oranges, butter, or bacon. Sometimes they call for 10 cents worth, and occasionally the most enlightened will call for a quarters worth. After one article is purchased they throw out the dollar or a two dollar ticket (issued at the mines) to pay for it. After making the change, they call for the next article, making change as before. Some will pay for half they want, and then buy three or four articles, placing them side by side with what they have paid for, thus bothering us if possible and if there is a mistake made it is always in their favor or they will see it in an instant. They usually watch the scales and if the beam don't flip with a whack, they will make one of the wriest faces you ever saw. They are the dirtiest people on earth in their houses, but if they see the least nibbling of a mouse on a loaf of bread, they will not have it, though you may cut off the defective part They have also learned to ask for loan (credit) and if we trust some of them, 25 cents more or less, they seldom ever return until after they think we have forgotten it, and then if we get it, it will be to credit again.

The front of our store faces the bay and the high st tide reaches under it We are right in the midst of the Indian village between the white town and the mines. This gives us a chance to see, hear and smell, all the attractions, the rumblings of bursting, and the odor of Indian habitations. Nothing occurs of much interest or note save an Indian drunk which is usually ended in a few fights, the results of which places some one or two in jail for a few months, then all is quiet for a few weeks. It is very hard to teach them not to buy on Sunday, as long as any store is kept open. Our business is the only one closed that day on the beach. On the front door is placed, "closed on Sunday," which reminds them as well as some white people when that day of the week comes. This act has given our place the name of a Christian store and we believe many of the natives reverence us for it

Business is lively on Douglas Island and will continue so during the year. Three stamp mills are being built by the famous Treadwell Company which will require double the amount of men to run them they now have at work When done there will be five large stamp mills almost joining each other with about one thousand stamps, which is supposed to grind out about 2,000 tons of ore per day and producing $10,000 or $12,000 in gold Hard times are not felt here as in the states Money is plenty and flows quite freely among the Indians, but business is not so flush in the merchantile business on account of being a little overdone by too many stores We would not either encourage or discourage any about coming here to get work. A large number of men are returning from Dyea and Skagway to get work, but many of them remain but a short time, as they are soon "fired," because they are worthless and the company always employs the best, without cutting down wages Hence if any should look this way who are not afraid of hard work, and to endure Alaska winter weather might do well to come There is excellent room yet for mission work, and we are glad to state that there are some fine cultured and Christian people here, many more than ten years ago Ships are seen almost daily going and coming, but not near so heavily laden as a few weeks ago Juneau and Doug as City are going to hold their own, but look out for Dyea and Skagway in the near future. Taking all things into consideration we feel quite contented with our lot, and have no time set to return to our several homes. E. W. W.

Nashville and Roseburg, 1898.

The attention of the Christian Endeavorers of the world is being directed to Nashville now as it was a year ago to San Francisco, and one of the greatest meetings in the history of this great movement is assured Oregon Endeavorers are looking especially towards Roseburg at this time where their annual state convention will be held May 12th to 15th, preparations are being made in that lively burg for the reception and care of all the delegates who may find it possible to attend. Such a reception is promised as has never before been attempted by any entertaining city in Oregon The program as outlined is one of the best they have ever been able to offer, and as no limit is placed on the number who may attend a successful meeting is already assured.

Transcript.

Dr. E. E. Cable, a stirring young physician, recently of Portland, arrived in this city last week and has associated himself with Dr. Cook for the practice of his profession. They have taken rooms in Jacobson's new brick.

A regular 4th of July crowd—except that it was more enthusiastic—assembled at the corner of C and 3rd last Tuesday evening to witness the presentation of that beautiful new flag. The band played stirring airs, the small boys and girls yelled themselves hoarse, waved flags and fired pop-guns, until Capt. Heath with B. Company arrived. When quiet was restored, master of ceremonies E. F. Manning announced the program. The band played a national air; Miss Jennie Snyder sung in good voice and with spirit "There is room for One More Star," after which J. C. Cooper made the presentation speech which was a masterly effort, full of patriotism, and had the ring of a true American. Capt. Heath accepted the flag in a feeling speech that shows his heart to be in the cause he espouses. A quartet composed of the Misses Snyder and Messrs. Eckman and Nelson, sung a stirring air, the band played "Star Spangled Banner," H. S. Maloney made a few appropriate remarks, everybody cheered Cap. Heath and his company of noble boys, the American flag and for Cuba and her cause, and the meeting came to a close. It was a regular gala day in the evening and everybody went home feeling better for having been there.

When You Have a Bad Cold

You want the best medicine that can be obtained, and that is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

You want a remedy that will not only give quick relief but effect a permanent cure.

You want a remedy that will relieve the lungs and keep expectoration easy.

You want a remedy that will counteract any tendency toward pneumonia.

You want a remedy that is pleasant and safe to take.

Chamberlains Cough Remedy is the only medicine in use that meets all of these requirements. This remedy is famous for its cures of bad colds throughout the United States and in many foreign countries. It has many rivals, but, for the speedy and permanent cure of bad colds, stands without a peer and its splendid qualities are everywhere admired and praised. For sale by C. F. A Lie Nailed.

Consumption and bronchitis are not by any means the same, although it is hard to distinguish one from the other. Bronchitis is an inflammation of the lining of the wind tubes or air vessels of the lungs, causing soreness of the same, cough, sore throat, hoarseness, difficulty of breathing, spitting of matter and sometimes blood. Thousands die annually with this dread disease. Wilbur's Cough Cure will cure. Price 50 cents. For sale by all Druggists.
