

NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1908.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.

There will be a hot time in Porto Rico in a day or two.

The Spanish naval commanders say the Oregon was responsible for the utter annihilation of Cervera's fleet.

Since the battle-ship Oregon has made such a brilliant record in so short a time you can't convince Oregonians that there is nothing in a name.

The Globe Democrat suggests that the war will be over and all the bills paid before ex-Gov. Atgeld makes up his mind whether it is a just one or not.

The Statesman says: The man who fired the first gun at Manila is only 21 years of age, but some day he will be the sole survivor, and he will be found in many parts of the country at the same time.

Commissioner Dosch who has charge of the Oregon exhibit at the Omaha exposition has been opening the eyes as well as the mouths of visitors by the display of a barrel of cherries sent by G. A. Webb, of Siletz, Oregon. Oregon can beat the world for fine cherries and it is no trouble to prove it this season.

When Iowa was admitted to the union in 1846 her population in round numbers was 100,000. Now the total population of the state is 2,200,000 with a school population of 500,000, and yet Iowa has sent enough people west to populate a good sized territory in the meantime.

To those who wagged their heads and made sport of Theodore Roosevelt when he joined the army it is now proper to address the question, "what's the matter with Roosevelt?" The fact is Mr. Roosevelt has, in the face of his scoffers, proven himself to be a model young man both as a civilian and a soldier.

Spain lost in all eighteen slips and 2,800 men killed, wounded and taken prisoners at Manila and Santiago, while the American loss was only one killed, eight wounded and not a ship damaged. If Watson can get a whack at Camara's fleet he will make a finish of the whole job, when Spain will probably be convinced that the "Yankee pigs" are not the cowards they took them to be.

The regular army is said to be made up of a better class of men than formerly, since the lines are being drawn more closely in the examinations of recruits as well as in the army discipline. The regulations of the army and navy forbid profanity, and any soldier or sailor who objects to being sworn at by his superior officer may make complaint, thereby subjecting the offending officer to trial by court-martial.

Congressman Tongue arrived home last week from Washington and immediately plunged into his professional business at Hillsboro. Mr. Tongue has a faculty for turning off an immense amount of work, both in private and public life, and the handsome majority he received at the June election was the very best of evidence that his constituents appreciated the activity he showed in their behalf while in congress. As a servant of the people Congressman Tongue grows in favor every day.

The July number of the "Sound Money," published in Chicago, contains a large photo-engraving of Oregon's governor-elect, Hon. T. T. Geer. Accompanying it is a well written article concerning the honored gentleman. The first sentence of the article reads as follows: "We add to the gallery of distinguished defenders of the sound money cause the portrait of Hon. T. T. Geer, who has carried the banner of gold to victory in Oregon, where his election as governor, by an unprecedented majority, has produced the wildest enthusiasm from the sea-washed shore of Astoria to the broad plains of Baker county."

The return of Camara to Spain may be wise or unwise policy. This depends on whether he can dodge Watson's fleet or not. Camara cannot be much of an aid in the defense of any Spanish port. No port in Spain is as strong in natural and acquired defenses as Santiago, and Camara's fleet was much weaker than Cervera's was. Only two of his vessels—the Pelayo and the Carlos V.—would, under any circumstances, be any sort of an obstruction to the American squadron, and these vessels, manned by the kind of men who served under Montojo and Cervera, are not very formidable. The return of Camara, therefore, makes no essential difference in the conditions. If he went to the Philippines he would be destroyed or captured, and the same fate awaits him in Spain unless he bottles himself up in some port which he can close by obstructions much bigger and more formidable than the Merrimac, that will prevent either egress or ingress.—Globe Democrat.

THE QUESTION OF SENATOR.

In a recent issue the Graphic said: There are a large number of republicans throughout Oregon who will be highly gratified to see both Mitchell and Corbett dropped from the roll when senatorial timber is being looked over, and some other man selected. Hon. M. C. George or Judge Lowell would either of them fill the senatorial niche admirably and at the same time unite the republican party.

The Portland Chronicle quotes the above and then says: "What is the matter with the editor of the Graphic? It is not more than a year ago that the said editor had a most exalted opinion of Mr. Corbett when conditions indicated that he would be recognized as senator on the strength of Governor Lord's appointment. What has caused this remarkable change on the part of the Graphic's editor in one short year? The Chronicle was the first paper that advocated the election of Hon. H. W. Corbett for the United States senate. It supported him as no other candidate was ever supported in this state for similar honors. It has carried the fight right to the gates of hades, and if necessary will bombard the "bolters" until they capitulate."

Yes the editor of the Graphic had a very good opinion of Mr. Corbett and also of Mr. Mitchell a year ago and he still has the same. He has also had a very good opinion of the editor of the Chronicle, although the latter is somewhat egotistical, yet the Graphic would not select the Chronicle man if first class senatorial timber was being sought after. The simple fact that one holds a public man in high esteem does not necessarily signify that he shall stand by him through thick and thin whether he deems his candidacy a wise one or not. Mr. Corbett represents one faction of the republican party in Oregon while Mr. Mitchell represents another faction and the Graphic takes the ground that if some other representative man who is well qualified for the position of United States senator was selected for this high position it would be better than to have another Corbett-Mitchell fight in the legislature. The Graphic even dares to repeat this simple suggestion in the face of the fact that the great Chronicle of Portland, the paper that has supported one of the above named gentlemen "as no other candidate was ever supported in this state for similar honors," says nay.

EDITORIAL THOUGHT.

That man Sampson is a vacillating chap. Less than a week ago he was doing his best to destroy Cervera's fleet; now he is anxious to save as much of it as possible.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The war is costing Spain $28,000,000 a month. But she needn't care. The folks that she is borrowing it from are the ones who should do the worrying.—Cleveland Leader.

Mr. Cleveland may as well be reconciled to the fact that when the next American flag is raised over the Hawaiian islands it will stay.—Washington Star.

Tramps are becoming troublesome again, and their colonization on some of the new islands is suggested. Why not try the LaDrones?

War is ordinarily supposed to be a very tragic affair, but looking at it from a Spanish standpoint it seems more like a comedy performance.

Give young Hobson a carpenter's kit and a reasonable supply of raw material and he would soon construct a better navy than Spain is able to sail.

Peace is desirable at all times, but the war ought to continue until the Dons are made to acknowledge the truth about the blowing up of the Maine.

If Col. Roosevelt is given a few more opportunities to win military renown he can afford to look with disdain upon the chance to be governor of New York.

Ex-President Cleveland now has a chance to perform an act of chivalry by signing a petition for the appointment of ex-Queen Lil to be postmistress of Honolulu.

A PATRIOTIC CONGRESS.

One of the most important legislative sessions in the history of the world ended on Friday at Washington, and it is proper to say at once that the record now closed is, on the whole, highly honorable to those who made it and to the United States. During the last seven months the LVth congress has evinced a spirit of patriotism corresponding to the temper of the American people. During the early weeks of the session, while many believed that war with Spain could be surely and even easily averted if the president were left in unobstructed control of the processes of diplomacy, there was much unwise debate, which threatened, and perhaps was intended, to force his hand; but neither then nor after the destruction of the Maine had made the situation intensely critical was a majority of either house betrayed into any fatal loss of self-restraint. The president, employing with extraordinary skill the resources of authority and personal character, was loyally supported by those who had it in their power to thwart him, and when the emergency became acute and the issue of peace or war was hanging in the balance received one of the most impressive tributes of confidence ever bestowed upon a chief magistrate. The appropriation of $50,000,000 placed unreservedly in his hands by a unanimous vote was at once a noble tribute to his character and a superb manifestation of the sacred love of country.

There have been, as we have indicated, some indications and some discordant notes. We do not believe that the United States ever really came near committing the monstrous blunder of recognizing a Cuban republic, for the president could and would have averted it; but too many members of congress were misled into advocating such declaration. In various ways the duty of exhausting the possibilities of negotiation was made more difficult than it might have been, and when the last hope of preserving peace had disappeared the various resolutions announcing a state of war, including the one which was finally passed, disclosed a lack of wisdom and propriety. There have likewise been some things to regret since the momentous day; but the blemishes have been comparatively few, and the record of accomplished facts is fit to be commended to the respect of the world. In congress, as consistently as throughout the country, have been displayed the best qualities of a great people reunited in the imperishable bonds of fraternal devotion to the common honor and welfare. Finally, as the closing act of a memorable session, an act according with the historic policy and responding to the wellnigh universal will, the Hawaiian Republic has been added to the territory of the United States and the Nation's interests in the Pacific have been forever secured.

There is much talk, some of it deserved and some of it unseemingly, about the shortcomings of the people's representatives at Washington. It is worth a great deal to feel and to be able to show to the world that there elsewhere a crisis has revealed the attributes required to meet it. It is a congress of patriots which has just adjourned.—N. Y. Tribune.

E. H. Skinner on Cherries.

By request of the editor, E. H. Skinner gives some of his experiences in growing and caring for cherries, in the following very interesting paper: Twenty-five years ago I had an orchard of Early Richmond cherries containing 35 acres, which sold well until my trees came into full bearing when I could not dispose of them at any price. I then "rigged up" and canned all we could handle with the pits in, which required a large number of cans, also a number of cases to pack them in, with heavy freight charges, and they then only sold for about one-half the price that pitted cherries were selling at; so I decided to pit a portion of my next year's crop. Now the trouble begins. I tried every hand machine in the market with poor and expensive results. I then built a machine that would pit fifty cherries at each stroke. I worked all winter on this machine, and after trial threw it into the junk pile, as it did not take every seed out. I tried one more, and worked in a machine shop the next winter and made a machine similar to the tread power of the old threshing machine. The bars in the chain were two by four inches long and contained only one row of holes. This worked very well; but much too slow for my crop; so next winter found me again in the machine shop making a large gear machine with bars three feet long and four and one half inches wide, containing one hundred and forty-four holes with a revolving brush under the plungers to brush off the pits as they were pressed through; also another revolving brush on surface of machine to spread the cherries so none would go over that were not in the holes which passed under the plungers. This ran by steam, and was a success. As simple as running corn through a corn sheller. Now I was ready to pack all my cherries pitted. I set my can makers at work and made 50,000 cans for my next crop. Bought 50 barrels granulated sugar and had everything ready to commence, when lo, there came one of the worst hail storms that ever passed over any country, destroying my entire crop of cherries; also 40 acres of Ben Davis apples. The loss of crop was hard to bear, but a much heavier loss was soon to follow. The trees were stripped of foliage and all new growth as bare as hop poles. Being in July a new growth came out like a bloom all along the limbs, which did not ripen, and the next winter was a severe one and killed every tree of apple and cherry. Then the price of 73 came and found me owing the Second National Bank $12,400, which took me fourteen long years to pay, which I did, every dollar of it. I will not tell how this was done, as it is aside from my subject.

Well, the large pitter was sent to the Golden Gate Packing Co., of San Jose, California and would not pit the large cherries as they would roll off the holes being too small. I now come to the facts that are wanted at this time here. Last year I dried 500 lbs. of Royal Annes with seeds in. They were fine, but would not sell at a paying price, six cents per pound being all I could get for them. I now made a small machine similar to the large one, to turn by hand, sitting twenty cherries at each turn of the crank. To my surprise we pitted my entire crop of eight tons, and would have done much more if I could have dried them fast enough. We pitted, spread, and put in the dryer 2,450 lbs. in three fourths of a day with one girl to turn crank, one to spread cherries in machine and two hands spreading on trays and putting in dryer. I now send you sample to see if you can find any scar to show that they were ever punctured. I pitted one ton of Major Francis and found it took seven pounds green to make one pound dried and ten gallons of juice came from this ton of Major Francis. To my surprise four pounds of Royal Annes made one pound dried and from seven tons we did not save one gallon of juice.

Cost of pitting at 50 cents per 100 lbs. makes the 4 lbs required for 1 lb dried 2 cents. Labor pitting, drying and taking from trays, 1 cents. 10 pound boxes with waxed paper cost 7 cents which can be packed for 2 cents per box which will make 10 cents or 1 cent per lb making a total of 41 cents. Now if they only sell for 15 cents per pound it makes Royal Annes worth 21 cents on the trees, less commission and freight. I hope to put them up in such fine shape as to realize more in Chicago or New York.

Now if this is too lengthy, drop it into the waste basket, while eating samples sent. Respectfully yours, E. H. SKINNER, Springbrook, Or. "Highland Home," July 19 '98.

PERTINENT TO THIS WAR. President Lincoln and the Singer, Mr. Phillips.

Just before his death President Lincoln heard Mr. Phillips sing in the hall of representatives, Washington. The hall was densely packed with the most distinguished men and women of the Nation. The secretary of state presided. Mr. Phillips sang his celebrated song, entitled "Your Mission." Among the stanzas are these:

If you cannot on the ocean Sail among the swiftest fleet, Rocking on the highest billows, Loughing at the storms you meet, You can stand among the sailors, Anchored yet within the bay; You can lend a hand to help them, As they launch their boat away. If you have not gold and silver Ever ready to command; If you cannot towards the needy Reach an ever open hand, You can visit the afflicted; Or the erring you can weep You can be a true deacon, Sitting at the Saviors' feet. If you cannot in the cockpit, Prove yourself a soldier true; If, when fire and smoke are thickest, There's no work for you to do; When the battle-field is silent, You can go, with cheerful tread; You can bear away the wounded, You can cover up the dead.

Mr. Lincoln was greatly overcome by this song. He sent up to Mr. Seward this characteristic request: Near the close let us have "Your Mission" repeated by Mr. Phillips. Don't say I called for it.
