"Waste Not, Want Not."

Little leaks bring to want, and little impurities of the blood, if not attended to, bring a "Want" of health. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the one and only specific that will remove all blood humors and impurities, thereby putting you into a condition of perfect health and strength.

The highest mountains of the Philippine islands are Halcon (Mindora), 8,868 feet; Apo (Mindanao), 8,804 feet; Mayon, active valcano (Luzon), 8,283 feet, and San Cristobal (Luzon), 7,375 feet.

At Japanese auctions each bidder writes his name and the amounts of his bid on a slip of paper. The various slips are deposited in a box. They are examined when the bidding is over, and the name of the highest bidder is announced.

The most expensive hat on record cost $1,500 in gold, and was presented to General Grant while in Mexico in 1882. It is now on exhibition in the National Museum at Washington—perhaps the finest Mexican sombrero that was ever made.

A magnificent grove of black walnut trees, most of them with trunks four feet in diameter, have been discovered in the heart of the Miami Indian reserve, southern part of Wabash county, Indiana. The timber has been sold for $60,000.

Editors in Servia have reason to keep mum regarding governmental affairs. One paper there, during the past two years, has had 16 editors, and 15 of them are in jail for commenting too freely on legislative enactments.

The managers of a German railroad which is now being built in Eastern Africa, where the climate is most dangerous to white men, recently offered positions to civil engineers at $1,125 per annum, station masters a $1,000 and locomotive engineers at $900.

Sir Arthur Sullivan, the musician, has invented the "Sullivan safety shaft," a device to be attached to carriages to save life in case of runaways or similar accidents, by releasing the horse from the carriage. The invention, which is to be put on the market at once, is primarily due to the death of the late Countess of Lathom, which filled Sir Arthur with a desire to prevent similar catastrophes.

"Recently, after the Rock Island wreck at Volland," says the Kansas City Journal, "Dr. G. H. Kittle, of Moundridge, Mo., put in a claim against the railroad for $1,920 on account of gold lost. The company thought it unreasonable that a country dentist should be getting so much gold at one shipment, and so it combated the claim. But Dr. Kittle proved his loss conclusively, and the company paid over the full amount." The gold used in dentistry in the United States last year was valued at $600,000.

Sumner Iron Works.

The Puget Sound Wire Nail & Steel Company, now the property of the American Steel & Iron Trust, has closed down and the nail and wire machines will be shipped to the Washburn & Moen Company, at San Francisco. F. W. Mitchell, of Mitchell, Lewis & Staver Company, of Seattle, is inspecting the buildings, machinery and site of the nail works with a view to purchasing them and moving the iron works thereto. If the deal is made it is the intention of the Sumner iron works to at once go into the locomotive building on a large scale.

Mill Destroyed by Fire.

The Krumm chopmill, at Genesee, Idaho, has been destoyed by fire, which is supposed to have been started in the engine-room. At the time of the fire some four or five tons of chopped feed was on hand. The 14 horse power gasoline engine, valued at $1,100, will not be a total loss, as it is believed with a few extras it can be placed in running order again. The insurance was only $1,000, which will nowhere near cover the loss.

Cannery to Be Erected.

George W. Sanborn has purchased 200 feet of water front property on the west side of the Seaside cannery, and expects to have a cannery built and ready for operation next season. The plant will be up-to-date and equipped with the latest machinery. The cannery will have no connection with any other cannery or combination.

THIS LITTLE WOMAN O' MINE.

She ain't any bit of an angel—
This sweet little woman o' mine;
She's jest a plain woman,
An 'purty much human—
This sweet little woman o' mine.

For what I would do with an angel
When I looked for the firelight's shine?
When six little sinners
Are wantin' their dinners?
No! Give me this little woman o' mine!

I've hearn lots of women called "angels,"
An' lots o' 'em thought it wuz fine;
But give 'em the feathers,
An' me, in all weathers,
This sweet little woman o' mine!

I jest ain't got nuthin' ag'in 'em—
These angels—they're good in their line;
But they're sorter above me!
Thank God, that she'll love me—
This dear little woman o' mine.
—F. L. Stanton.

A Boy's Love.

MRS. CARRUTHERS flushed slightly as she read the name on the pasteboard. "I will see him here, Jane," she said, with studied calmness, "and remember, please, that I am not at home to any one for the next hour."

She nestled down on her settee, pillowing the shimmering gold of her head against its cushions, and waited. She was glad he had come. Her thoughts traveled back to their first meeting that day on the front at Brighton, and she smiled as she recalled the gust of wind that caught her handkerchief, a scented scrap of lace and cambric, and carried it fluttering to his feet. He was young, a mere boy in fact, and singularly handsome, and he actually blushed as he restored the trifle. There was something frank and fresh about him—few of her men friends ever blushed—and her tendencies were sufficiently Bohemian to render more formal introduction unnecessary; before the week was out he had lunched and dined at her hotel. Time had flown for her since then; bright summer days spent drifting among the upper reaches of the Thames, with the heat of the afternoon lazed away in some shady backwater; morning drives to some old-world retreat among the Surrey hills; afternoons on the lawns at Hurlingham, strolling, talking, tea drinking among the smartest in the land, with the band of the Guards crashing out the masterpieces of great German composers, interspersed with melodies from the Casino. They had been friends, nothing more, but each day had brought a fresh delight, and she had been happy. Now it was to end; he had come to say, "Good-by."

"It seems almost like a dream," she murmured; "I wonder what I shall do without him?"

The hangings swayed aside, and the boy advanced with outstretched hand. She smiled and gave him hers without rising.

"Sit down," she said, "and have some coffee, unless you prefer something stronger."

"Coffee, thanks," he answered, dropping into a chair beside her.

She poured some out and handed it to him, together with a tiny box of tortoise-shell and silver. He laughed softly as he opened it and saw a row of miniature cigarettes.

"Ah! so you indulge, it appears. How often?"

"Oh, sometimes!"

"And I haven't known it until this moment! Will you join me now?"—offering the case.

"No, thank you; I prefer to see you smoke. There is a match beside you."

He lit one of the cigarettes and puffed away in silence, until a blue haze had gathered about his head. Then he looked across at her. "I am going abroad," he said, abruptly. "Are you surprised?"

"Assuming that you mean some horrible tropic"—he nodded—"yes, I am. I suppose it means the loss of everything that has made your life pleasant in the past—yes? and the gain of—what?"

"Nothing."

"Then why go?"

She leaned back, clasping her hands behind her head, and her sleeves, falling, disclosed arms as smooth and white as ivory. Their glances met and she asked again, "Why go?"

"Because I have no choice," he answered. "Look here, Madge, we've been friends, jolly good friends, and God only knows how I shall get on without you; I will be perfectly frank, and tell you just how it stands. My father, as you know, was a country parson. He ought never to have put me through Sandhurst; it was beyond his means—I often wondered how he managed to do all he did, but I really knew nothing of his affairs until his death last year. I found out then that he never did have much beyond his pride, and it appeared that towards the end he had dabbled in stocks and shares. Well, you know what happens when parsons walk into bucket-shops; there was barely enough left to keep the young one at Sandhurst. That is why I am exchanging for the West Indies." He looked up thoughtfully at the smoke cloud wreathing from his cigarette. "Of course I shall see something of life. I have seen little so far; school, Sandhurst, an outlandish depot in the west of Ireland, and—town."

"Do you want to go?"

"One cannot always do what one wants."

She shrugged her shoulders beneath the billowy lace and muslin of her demitoilette, and there was another pause.

"How strange it will seem when you have gone—I shall feel quite lost by myself." She spoke softly, in a tone almost of soliloquy, watching him closely to see the effect of her words. He made no reply, and she went on, "When one has so few friends, it is hard to lose them—the places are so hard to fill." He winced at that, and a momentary gleam flashed in her eyes. "It will seem strange," she repeated; "I wonder if you will ever think of me—often, I mean?"

"I hope not," he replied; "I want to forget you."

That was all she wanted; the simple directness of the answer conveyed more to her than any outburst of passion could have done. The rest was easy.

After awhile he rose to his feet. She rose, too, and stood before him, looking into his eyes as though she would read his soul. A wild desire to crush her in his arms took possession of him, and the finger-nails bit into the palms of his clenched hands.

"Must you go?" she whispered, drawing nearer to him.

"I have no choice," he said, again.

"You want money," she continued; "well, I am rich."

He did not reply.

"Would you do something for me?"

"Yes," he said, simply; "I would give my life for you."

Her eyes dropped, and a delicious color crept into her cheeks.

"Well, before you go, do me a favor. Marry me."

He did.—St. Paul's.

TRACING SUICIDE.

Believed that Unsuitable Diet Has an Injurious Effect.

Dr. Haig is of the opinion that suicide may be traced to error in diet, the error being the eating of meat, the drinking of beer and of tea and the smoking of tobacco. His facts all fall comfortably into their places in support of his hypothesis. Are there not more suicides among men than among women, and do not men consume more meat, more beer and more tobacco than the women? Again, suicide is more common in England than in Scotland, not apparently because the Scotch are a more canny race, but because the English eat more meat and drink more beer, while the Scotch eat less meat and drink whisky instead of beer. After maintaining that suicide was less common among the Scotch, it was perhaps hardly polite, when addressing a Scotch audience, to go on to say that suicide increased with civilization. But the fact was explained on the ground of more injurious diet, that of civilized man being more productive of uric acid and thus of suicide than that which prevails where civilization is less advanced. Uric acid is, in fact, at the bottom of all this, and, according to Dr. Haig, the incidence of suicide tallies with the daily, annual and life fluctuations of uric acid in the blood, being commonest when uric acid is most abundant, namely, in the mornings, in spring and summer and in childhood and the full prime of life.

We have no doubt that errors of diet are responsible for much, and, among other things, for a certain number of suicides; nay, we could go further and admit that unsuitable diet, derangement of the proper relation between nutrition and waste and the consequent loading of the tissues and the blood with abnormal products of metabolism have much to do with that ill-temper and discontent which lead men to lay their hands violently upon their neighbors and sometimes on themselves. All this may be taken for granted, but it is at present far from proved that the peccant material is in all cases the same, and still further are we from being agreed that uric acid is the origin of the evil.—Hospital.

Giants of Patagonia.

The tribes to the east of the Cordilleras, in southern Patagonia, belong to Araucanian stock, and are a superior race. The Tehuelches—as they call themselves—of southern and eastern Patagonia are the people whose unusual stature gave rise to the fables of the early days to the effect that the natives of this region were giants averaging nine to ten feet in height. It is a fact that they are the tallest human beings in the world, the men averaging but slightly less than six feet, while individuals of four to six inches above that mark are not uncommon. They are in reality by no means savages, but somewhat civilized barbarians. They are almost unacquainted with the use of firearms, notwithstanding some contact with the whites, but they have plenty of horses and dogs.

Unsurpassed hunters, they capture the guanaco and the rhea, or South American ostrich, and from the skins of these and other animals they make clothes and coverings for their tents. They make beautiful "capes," or mantles, of furs and feathers which are highly prized by Europeans, and find a ready market, most of the proceeds being spent for bad whisky, which is brought into the country in quantities.—Boston Evening Transcript.

The Garden of Eden.

"I know you will like the house," remarked the real estate agent; "the country is perfectly healthy."

"Indeed!" replied the prospective purchaser.

"Oh, yes; and no flies."

"So?"

"Good water."

"Ah!"

"Gas."

"Oh!"

"No electric lights."

"Um—m!"

"Trains every twenty minutes, and always on time."

"Ha!"

"Low taxes."

"Ho!"

"No unpleasant neighbors."

"Humph!"

"No mosquitoes. But why do you weep?"

"Be-because," sobbed the man, "I-I didn't know I was dead—and I suddenly f-find I've got to h-heaven."

Queen's Splendid Memory.

A remarkable instance of the excellence of her majesty's memory was given a few days ago. A copy of the memoir of the late Thomas Best Jervis of the Bombay engineers was presented to the Queen at Cimiez by the author, who is conservator of the museum at Turin. Her majesty expressed her pleasure at the presentation, and mentioned having seen the model of Sebastopol made by Colonel Jervis, and exhibited by him at the war office as far back as 1855.—London Telegraph.

Embarrassed His Father.

A gentleman recently visited a new district police station and was shown over the building by the officer in charge. He related the circumstances of his visit at home in the hearing of his youngest son, a little fellow four years of age. A few weeks later father and son were traveling by rail to a town some miles distant, when just before reaching their destination the train pulled up within sight of a large, gloomy-looking building. The son inquired what place it was, and on being informed that it was the county jail he embarrassed the father and made the other occupants of the carriage look suspicious by asking: "Was that the jail you was in, father?"—Chicago Chronicle.

Reforms in the electoral system of Japan fix the property qualification at a very small sum, and the minimum age for candidates at 30 years. There is some discussion as to the methods of voting. In one bill it is provided that each voter may hand in a signed ballot for each candidate. In Tokyo, which would have 16 representatives under the new system, and would at the same time be one electoral district, every franchise holder would cast 16 ballots. There is no provision for minority representations.

CRITICAL PERIODS

In Woman's Life Are Made Dangerous by Pelvic Catarrh.

MRS. MATHILDE RICHTER.

Mrs. Mathilde Richter, Doniphan, Neb., says:

"I suffered from catarrh for many years, but since I have been taking Pe-ru-na I feel strong and well. I would advise all people to try Pe-ru-na. As I used Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin while I was passing through the change of life, I am positively convinced your beneficial remedies have relieved me from all my ills."

Pe-ru-na has raised more women from beds of sickness and set them to work again than any other remedy. Pelvic catarrh is the bane of womankind. Pe-ru-na is the bane of catarrh in all forms and stages. Mrs. Col. Hamilton, Columbus, O., says: "I recommend Pe-ru-na to women, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentary, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.
