

NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1899.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.

The author of "The Man with the Hoe" might find something to do on the vacant lots about Newberg.

The Willamette valley is harvesting the finest hay crop ever put up in the West. The yield is excellent and the weather is all that could be desired.

Minnesota people know a good thing when they see it. More people are coming to Oregon from Minnesota than from any other section of the country.

Gen. Alger was charged with cowardice during the rebellion but he has proven beyond question that he is able to hold his position under a heavy fire.

The official records show that four hundred New York City babies have been named for Dewey and there is quite a considerable territory outside the city yet to hear from.

With the tide going pretty much Bryan's way it now looks like all that would be left for David B. Hill after the convention is held, would be to arise and again say "I am a Democrat."

The burnt child is afraid of fire. A large number of prominent democrats throughout the country are asking for somebody to come-a-running and help the party let go of the free silver idea.

The "back east" papers are having a good deal to say lately about the kissing bug which is described as being about an inch in length, of dark brown color and has five legs. Here on the coast the kissing is not left to the bugs.

It has been decreed by the authorities that there shall be no more county seat fights in Oklahoma and the Globe-Democrat suggests that this is about the nearest endorsement of the disarmament scheme that human ingenuity is capable of.

Two cans of liquid air were sent as far west as Denver a few days ago and a shipment is expected to arrive in Portland soon. Liquid air will be something new in Portland, but as for liquid damnation it is sold on almost every corner in the city.

The fellows who grew eloquent while making the plea in '96 that the downfall of the 16 to 1 idea and the election of McKinley would bring financial ruin on the country, are now about as hard to locate as the unfeeling wretch who jabbed Billy Patterson in the ribs.

A family feud of two years standing was settled with Winchester in Clay county, Kentucky, last Monday and when the guns quit smoking five men were laid out for the undertaker and some others were wounded. They are good shots down in old Kentucky.

At New Brunswick, N. J. a feature of the Fourth of July festivities was a bicycle race in which twenty young ladies were the contestants and the prize was a beautiful young man whose occupation is not given. It is pretty safe to conjecture that the winner in the race was the one who got left.

Ex-Congressman, George W. Julian died at his home at Irvington, Indiana, July 7 at the age of 83. For a long period of years Mr. Julian was a prominent figure in national politics, and it is thought that he was the last survivor of the men who were prominent in the Pittsburg convention of 1866 that gave birth to the republican party.

The Oregonian raved and caved and spit fire at the officials at Washington two weeks ago when it appeared that consent was not going to be given for the Oregon boys to be mustered out at Portland, but when it was learned that the boys had voted in favor of San Francisco as the place of their choice for being mustered out the Oregonian put its pants on again and it now seems as meek as a little sheep.

Give an Oregonian a little time to rub his eyes in order to get them open and he is all right. The Graphic was the pioneer paper of the valley in the advocacy of the use of gravel for road making and the gravel story had to be said over and over again a good many times in order to get a footing along with the old moss covered methods, but gravel has now come to stay. There will be more loads of gravel put on the roads of Yamhill county this season than ever before in the history of road making in the county.

The editors who recently visited Oregon were probably more strongly impressed by the size and beauty of our roses than by any other one thing. Mr. Puffer of the Stoughton, Mass., Record, is a practical florist of long standing and knows good roses when he sees them. After seeing the display of roses in Portland he told Mrs. L. H. Addison that he thought he knew what fine roses were before he came to Oregon, but he had to admit that he had never seen any to equal those here. He was especially struck by the fact that roses of the same variety are so much larger here than in the East and at the same time of the finest quality.—Rural Northwest.

Man's inhumanity to man was shown up in the Clackamas county court a few days ago when George Root an old man was examined on a charge of insanity. It was found that the old man who was in indigent circumstances was not a fit subject for the insane asylum and the facts were brought out in the course of the examination that some years ago he turned his property over to the man who was making an effort to get him placed in the asylum, with the agreement that this man was to give him proper support as long as he lived. The judge immediately appointed a guardian for Root and gave him instructions to see that the party gave the old man needed support according to agreement.

It is so seldom that a kidnapper is caught that it is a pleasure to announce that Mrs. Addie Barrow was recently sentenced to prison from a New York court for the crime of stealing baby Marion Clark from her parents. The woman's lawyer made a plea for leniency but the judge in pronouncing the sentence said: "It is due to the fathers and mothers and children of this land that the punishment should not only make it impossible for her to repeat this crime, but that it shall serve as an awful warning to other mercenaries who may be tempted to traffic in human flesh and blood. The sentence of the Court is that you, Addie Barrow, be confined in the State prison for women at Auburn for the period of twelve years and ten months."

A few days ago the New York World contained an editorial on "The era of prosperity" which was rather significant, coming from a staid old democratic sheet. In the face of such a statement it would seem that it would be uphill work for the World to work for a change in the administration next year. The editorial was as follows: "The last fiscal year has been one of the most prosperous this country has ever known in industry and commerce. Our total exports have been nearly a billion and a quarter dollars. Our exports of manufactured goods, as the World showed on Saturday, have grown, with a rapidly never before known, to dimensions hardly hoped for. Our pig-iron producers—and pig-iron lies at the base of all industry—are actually unable to supply the demand, and the price of this chief raw material of manufacture has advanced from 50 to 75 per cent, since the beginning of the year. Machine shops and manufacturers of structural steel are refusing both foreign and domestic orders because they cannot fill orders already in hand. The increase of manufacturing plants at the South during the year has been phenomenal. The building trades in all the cities are taxed to the uttermost to meet the demands for residence and business buildings. Now comes the commercial agencies with the encouraging report that the commercial failures during the last fiscal year have been fewer than in any of the last seventeen years, and that the total liabilities are less than in any year since 1881. It is a good time in a good country."

Newspapers as History. A controversy is said to have arisen between John Fiske and Thomas Wentworth Higginson as to whether newspaper reports of events are of high value as material for history, Fiske taking the affirmative side and Higginson the negative. Of course Fiske is correct. He is not only a much greater historian than his antagonist in this dispute, but is a far better authority on a question of this kind. Even in these days, when the public printing offices of the leading European governments and of the United States, especially of the United States, turn out blue, red and yellow books and obelisks which have been brought to the light. Xenophon has many of the qualities of a good reporter. His style is direct, gossipy and picturesque. He makes that 800 or 1000 miles of the retreat of the Ten Thousand up the valley of the Tigris to the Black Sea familiar ground to modern readers. Caesar's simple, pointed and concentrated narrative has made the campaign in Gaul enact itself over again to sixty generations of men. Yet if a modern newspaper reporter or two had been present with those old Greeks and Romans they would have thrown side lights on the events and conditions which would have reconstructed the whole scheme of society of those far off days.

One of the drawbacks to the investigator into the early history of the United States is that there were very few newspapers printed in those days, and the files of only a small portion of them have been preserved. Niles' Register, a weekly paper printed in Baltimore, which was started in 1811 and was continued until 1849, the younger Niles conducting it after his father's death, is the chief reliance for the early part of the period which it covered. Any of half a dozen papers printed in Baltimore to-day, however, has more news in a single issue than Niles printed in five or six editions. The newspapers of the present time give every event and issue in all aspects. They give it earlier, fuller and in better shape than was done in the past, or than can be done by any government publication. They provide the "abstract and brief chronicles of the time" with an enterprise and a fidelity which make them of the highest value as a reflex of the life of the period. John Fiske speaks for the guild of professional historians when he places his high estimate upon the worth of newspaper narratives as material for the history of a nation or an age.—Globe-Democrat.

The Personality of the Filipino. Peter MacQueen, M. A., the staff correspondent of "The National Magazine" of Boston, now with the U. S. troops in the Philippines, in writing of the personality of the Filipino in the July number says:—"The state of things at present prevailing here makes a tabulation of true facts very difficult. No one knows the whole situation. Yet we are all becoming more and more familiar with our problems. The army has been eminently successful. Peace and quiet reign in Manila, and a measure of prosperity is coming to the distracted people. I have made my inquiries of all classes of people, American, German, Filipino, English, Japanese. I have made my observations on the streets of Manila at all hours, in the camp of the army, in the trenches, on the battle-field, in the homes of the natives, and in the palace in the walled city. "First, I do not consider the Filipinos as yet fit for self government. Concerning these people there are a great many different theories. I have found them courteous, with a certain degree of brightness, but not reliable. They are good copyists, and evidently have imitated the deceit and treachery of the Spaniard, without acquiring his proud sense of honor. Men who, like the MacLeods, have lived here a long time, tell me that they are intelligent, and have talent ability to make splendid citizens. I can see in the young boys much that is full of promise. Out near Tarlac I found a wo undred Tagal. He was shot with a Springfield and was dying. I found him up and took his confession through an interpreter. Among other things he said: 'Forgive me for fighting the Americans. I did not know what they were.' He had no idea of freedom as we understand it. Many of the wounded and of the prisoners told me that they fought for some intangible idea wrapped up in the name of Aginaldo."

The State Fair and the Press. The Oregon Agriculturalist says: It is to be hoped that the managers of the Oregon State Fair will this year show some appreciation of the value of advertising. It will be found impossible to make the fair a financial success without systematic advertising. Newspaper advertising is far more valuable than posters. There should be at least a small advertisement in every local paper in the state. The great blunder which was made last year should not, however be repeated. This consisted in getting the Southern Pacific Railway Company to avail itself of a clause in its advertising contracts with newspapers by which it inserted a large amount of advertising of the State Fair in all papers carrying its regular advertisements. As this virtually free advertising was forced upon papers which had not received a dollar in advertising nor even a complimentary ticket to the fair, the result was to make fifty or a hundred men of considerable local influence decidedly hostile to the state fair. The managers of the fair should remember that it is not the small sum of money that could be paid to each paper nor the trifling value of a complimentary ticket which not one newspaper in ten would use, but the spirit manifested which counts. The newspapers are willing and expect to do a good deal of free advertising for such public enterprises as state fairs provided the managers show by their acts that they appreciate the value of the press.

Dangers of the Grip. The greatest dangers from la grippe is of its resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for la grippe we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia which shows conclusively that this remedy is a certain preventative of that dangerous disease. It will cure la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by C. F. Moore & Co. druggists.

The announcement that President Gates, of the American Wire Company, will be a candidate for United States Senator in Illinois, is sufficient notice to Mr. Culom to restrain his fences.

Robbed the Grave. A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost white, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, C. E. Smith's drug store.

The Amel of marriage is a baby. Without it, wedlock is a summer field that never buds, a flower that never buds, a night without stars, a sermon without a benediction, a prayer without an Amen. There never was a husband who did not aspire to be the father and the grandfather of healthy, capable children to hand down his name and the fortune accumulated by the sweat of his brow, from generation to generation. There never was a wife fit to bear that noble title, who did not wish to wear womanhood's most glorious crown, the sceptre of motherhood. Thousands of wedded couples, otherwise happy, fall short of wedlock's greatest happiness because they are childless. In the majority of cases, this is because the wife, through ignorance or neglect, suffers from weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. For women who suffer from this, there is one great medicine that does not fail to accomplish its purpose. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned, and makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones the shattered nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It quickens and vitalizes the distinctly feminine organism. It banishes the maladies of the expectant months and makes baby's introduction to the world easy and almost painless. It restores the little new-comer's health and nourishment in plenty. It is the best appetitive tonic for nursing mothers.

Mrs. Jennie Parks of Marshall, Spokane Co., Wash., writes: "I am glad to tell of the good results of your great medicine, Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was benefited by your medicine in confinement. It gives me strength. I have no tired feeling, and my baby is the picture of health. I feel better than I have in ten years."

In cases of constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used as an adjunct to the "Favorite Prescription," they are extra-pleasant, perfectly natural and insure prompt and permanent relief.

The natives in and about Manila are greatly amazed that Admiral Watson's flag should be as large as Dewey's.

FIFTY-EIGHT YEARS OLD ! !
It's a long life, but devotion to the true interests and prosperity of the American People has won for it new friends as the years rolled by and the original members of its family passed to their reward and these admirers are loyal and steadfast today, with faith in its teachings, and confidence in the information which it brings to their homes and friends.
As a natural consequence it enjoys in its old age all the vitality and vigor of youth, strengthened and ripened by the experiences of over half a century.
It is "The New-York Weekly Tribune," acknowledged the country over as the leading National Family Newspaper.
Recognizing its value to those who desire all the news of the State and Nation, the publisher of "The Graphic" (your own favorite home paper) has entered into an alliance with "The New-York Weekly Tribune" which enables him to furnish both papers at the trifling cost of $1.50 per year.
Every farmer and every villager owes to himself, to his family, and to the community in which he lives a cordial support of his local newspaper, as it works constantly and untriflingly for his interests in every way, brings to his home all the news and happenings of his neighborhood, the doings of his friends, the condition and prospects for different crops, the prices in home markets, and, in fact, is a weekly visitor which should be found in every wide awake, progressive family.
Just think of it! Both these papers for $1.50 a year. Send all subscriptions to
