

John Bull's tenacity at last bids fair to be rewarded, and the artillery of the funny paragrapher will be turned in the other direction.

The Populist national committee met in Lincoln, Nebraska, the first of the week, and split square in twain on the question of fusion. Bryan was impressed upon the wrangling populists the fact that charity begins at home.

There is a prospect of President McKinley's coming to the far west next summer and that he will include Portland in his tour. That will be a good time for Oom Harvey to take to the woods for a much needed rest.

Since Bryan went south and completely "flopped" in the face of democratic expansion sentiment, we wonder if his abject worshippers will ever again have the nerve to cheer "time server" in their fierce denunciation of the administration.

When an editor can so impose upon his conscience as to write up a glowing eulogy over assassin Goebel, it is left to conjecture that he is getting into training to support the demagogue in the next campaign. No other contingency could force a man to such a moral strain.

There is a democrat now and then who is honest enough to saddle the Kentucky disgrace on to the right party. Hoke Smith of Cleveland's cabinet, says, "When we come to look at the state of semi-revolution that exists in Kentucky we can not escape the conclusion that Goebel and his confederates are responsible for it."

It often happens that a good man who could be a candidate for office is too bashful or backward about letting it be known, until the very day of the convention, and then it is invariably too late. The proper way to do is to put your card in the local papers and let the people become aware of your intentions before hand. It doesn't cost much and the results are always more satisfactory.—Yaquina Bay News.

"Our sentiments tw." "If this administration shall surrender the Philippines, the historian of the future who extols Jefferson, Madison, Tyler and Polk will write down McKinley's action as the most pusillanimous in the record. But this administration will not surrender. Its critics will be forgotten. Every advance to higher and nobler forms of life has been opposed by some old, conservative muck-bunker who prated of the good old days when his grandfather swung by his tail in the forest primeval."—Sibley, Dem., before Congress.

The Telephone-Register man takes us to task for what we said in regard to the vengeance Goebel pulled down on his own head, and insinuates that the foul deed lies at the door of the republicans. We know that the Register worships at the shrine of the St. Louis Republic, but it mustn't take everything at face value even from that oracle. Just remember that Goebel's most bitter and implacable enemies were in his own party, and besides democrats have a record to face in this mode of warfare which is far from reassuring, in the light of recent events in Kentucky.

A perusal of Willamette valley exchanges shows a remarkable increase of late in the interest and enthusiasm taken in the dairying industry. It seems to have finally become the conclusion in the mind of public opinion that in the future this is to be one of our greatest sources of wealth, and if indications count for anything, a general preparation is being made to meet successfully the conditions of the new industry. Newberg is well favored in this respect, for she already has the creamery, and all that is needed now is more interest and more cows. We have the ideal location and the natural conditions and all that is necessary is that the farmers throw aside their unreasonable prejudice against innovations and give proper support to a money making industry.

The senate of the University of Chicago has decided to prohibit the use of the so-called reformed spelling in the printing of the publications of the university. A short while ago the faculty of the university favored the reformed spelling. At that time a strong protest was made, the result of which is that the senate, which is the supreme governing body of the university, has taken the opposite ground. A conclusive argument against reformed spelling is that no two persons would agree upon the details of the reform; and instead of simplicity in spelling we should have greater complexity than at present exists; and simplicity is what the reformers say they aim at.—Statesman.

We give vent to a hearty amen to the conclusion and decision finally given. From the very first time we ever heard of "reform" spelling, we were not in favor of it, and are now even less in sympathy with it than then. There are lots of ways for the lazy man to get along in this world without imposing on anybody else seriously, but do deliver us from that acme of indolence and ignorance, "fonetik" spelling. When a man gets to the place where he is too lazy to spell in English, let him quit the business.

The answer of Mr. Bryan to Bourke Cochran, of New York, shows that those gentlemen who are proposing their own terms for returning to the democratic party, will not meet with any encouragement from him. Mr. Bryan will not trim his sails to suit every wind.—Albany Democrat.

No? We are not by any means sure of that last statement. Bryan reeled his sails in a hurry when he struck that cold expansion wind down south, and he will do it every time too. Billy makes it his science of navigation to trim his sails so they will catch nothing but Bryan wind.

The recent meeting of the state republican clubs at Portland made it plain that a majority of the delegates at that meeting are opposed to the re-election of Senator McBride. While the contest at the meeting was not declared openly as a fight against McBride yet it was well known to have been such. However the action of the Portland meeting doesn't signify that the Senator will be defeated.—Elgin Recorder.

We fear the Recorder has had its ear on a rail of the Oregonian's track and has caught a false rumble. The convention had no bearing upon senatorial prospects whatever. The fact of the case was, that after the contest for the presidency of the league, the Oregonian came out with the "news" that the result spoke against Senator McBride, but failed to explain how. It was simply an old trick of the Oregonian, and no notice was taken of it.

EDITORIAL COMMENT. So far as Kentucky is concerned, the angel of peace must have taken the benefit of the bankruptcy act. It may be remarked of the last two Secretaries of State that they represent the Hay-Day of American diplomacy.—Globe-Democrat.

"I rejoice in the fact that I am still a young man and that I will have much time in which to fight Republicans," proclaimed Mr. Bryan in a recent speech. The Colonel might have added, "and to run several times more for the presidency."—Albany Herald.

You cannot by law make a man prosperous. You can only do what the republican party has done—give him the chance to become prosperous by his own exertions.—Eugene Register.

The candidate that strikes the News office this year with the "old gag" about official patronage "if" he is elected, will be pretty apt to get the cold shoulder. We've been taken in on that kind of a layout once too often.—Yaquina Bay News.

The republican national committee on literature and organization will let a contract for the printing of 100,000 copies of Senator Beveridge's Philippine speech, to be used as a campaign document. This will be the first campaign document put out by the committee.—Centralia News.

Col. Watterson said of Goebel two days before the passage of the Goebel law that "granting that with the machinery of this bill in his hands, his ambition may be, probably will be, gratified, what should it profit him if he gain the rulership of the universe and lose his own soul, and along with it his good name as the slayer of human liberty?" The Colonel's question looks quite as formidable now as it did when it was written.—Globe-Democrat.

A bill has been introduced in the democratic house of Kentucky, holding forth at Louisville, to make January 4th, Goebel's birthday, a legal holiday. If our memory serves us rightly the birthday of John Wilkes Booth was celebrated in portions of some of the Southern states for several years after the war. It was finally abandoned as a scandalous proceeding.—West Side.

The Puerto Rico Tariff. The proposal to establish a tariff for Puerto Rico similar to that of the United States, but with a reduction of 75 per cent on both sides in commerce with the United States, is condemned in some quarters as unjust, oppressive and inhuman treatment of that island. Just why it would be so does not appear.

We assume that all legitimate demands would be met if the United States were to put Puerto Rico in a decidedly more favorable fiscal condition than it was in when under Spanish rule. At that time the island was fairly prosperous and asked commercially nothing more than reciprocity with the United States to make it entirely happy.

One might suppose from what is now said that it had no tariff. The fact is that it had a particularly elaborate tariff, with high rates—higher, in general than it is likely to have under the proposed legislation. And assuredly the 75 per cent "horizontal reduction" proposed will be more advantageous to it than any reciprocity which it ever enjoyed.

Beyond doubt Puerto Rico is now in urgent need of fiscal relief. Beyond doubt too, the United States is bound in the most imperative manner to give it to the island at the earliest possible moment. But let there be exercised some discretion and sense of proportion in the matter. If we give Puerto Rico a better fiscal system and greater commercial and industrial prosperity than it ever had before, shall we not be doing justly and even generously? Whether the proposed legislation will do that is the only pertinent question. If it will do it, the legislation is all that can reasonably be asked.—New York Tribune.

Dairy Suggestions.

In the winter keep the cow warm and dry.

Never use rusty cans under any consideration.

Don't keep a hard milking cow, if you value your time.

Always milk as quickly as possible, and do it with clean, dry hands.

Cream should be taken off the milk while it is still sweet, if possible.

Clean, bright food, in sufficient variety, is what is needed for the dairy.

Two or three degrees of temperature will make a great difference in churning.

Be on friendly terms with the calves from the very first. Talk to them and pet them.

Never disturb milk when cream is rising or the butter globules will sink never to rise again.

The good looking, round bodied cow is never a good one. The best dairy cow is hardly pretty.

Whenever a cow drinks water that you would not drink yourself she is robbing you of profits.

The cow can have no better food than shredded corn fodder, if it is good fodder, or ensilage.

First rinse cans in cold water, then wash them in warm water, then scald with boiling water and dry.

A cow is both a machine and a very sensitive delicate organism. Do not make the mistake of supposing that she is simply an inanimate machine.—Western Plowman.

The Necessary Link.

Perhaps we were rash in buying the wagon, and perhaps we ought not to have bought the horse; but having made those investments for better or for worse, let us not now hesitate about buying a set of harness. The way to justify expansion is to make the most effective possible use of what we have acquired. Our altered positions in both oceans, coupled with the recent enormous increase of our foreign trade, must require a larger and more expensive navy henceforth than we have maintained in the past. A canal on our own soil, making it possible for us to use the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea as great naval centers from which our ships can have a quick and safe passage to the Pacific, will almost double the efficiency for defensive purposes of a given number of war vessels, and will accordingly save us enough on our yearly naval bills to meet all interest and sinking fund charges on the cost of the canal. Viewed from the material standpoint and tested as a business proposition, the Nicaragua Canal is as necessary to the completion of our new territorial, commercial and strategic policies as the harness is necessary to the utilization of the horse and wagon. The indirect opposition that has made itself felt so powerfully at Washington comes, of course in large part from transcontinental railroad interests. This is natural enough, and it is merely well that the public should know it. We have good reasons for going ahead, and in the end these transcontinental railroads themselves will be the richer for all the business developments that may follow from the construction of the interoceanic canal.—American Monthly Review of Reviews.
