

It is not six weeks until election, and no sign of a political speech yet! It begins to look like the country's being saved would depend upon the local spell binders this time.

An exchange gets the gist of the matter when it says that if there were any danger of empire there would be no democratic, republican, populist or prohibition party. Tariff, whisky and every thing else would be forgotten and the entire nation would rise as one man and put it down.

When a democratic editor falls back upon a warmed over harangue of the "infamous bargain with the Sultan of Sulu," for editorial matter he throws it out that he is in hard lines for campaign material. The boy orator's "crucifixion upon the cross of gold" may be looked for here.

The Democrats will find that the inciting of a fresh insurrection in the Philippines, resulting in the butchery of more of the boys in blue, will not prove very successful as a campaign issue among loyal Americans. The American people have not been in the habit of paying a premium on treachery in the rear.

Anti-imperialists who are trying to conjure in Abraham Lincoln's name forget that for four bloody years he waged war on rebels in arms to compel their unconditional surrender without reference to the consent of the governed. President McKinley is doing precisely what President Lincoln did, only, instead of trying, as did Lincoln, to bring into subjection to our government a race of men as competent as ourselves to establish an enlightened government, President McKinley is bringing under the sway of an enlightened, benign and magnanimous government a race of semi-savages who have never had a government of their own, and who as a people have not the slightest conception of self-government. The consent of the governed argument applies more strongly to President Lincoln than it does to President McKinley, yet it did not prevent Mr. Lincoln from performing his constitutional duty.—Indianapolis Journal.

The following is Bryan's inglorious prophecy of 1896: "If McKinley and the Republican Party are successful and put in power for the next four years, wages will be decreased, hard times will come upon us, and over the land the price of wheat will go down and the price of gold will go up; mortgages on our homes will be foreclosed by the money lenders; shops and factories will close. We will export no goods and we will import from foreign lands all the goods we use; thus will ruin, want and misery be with us."

It is not enough to make the democratic Joss a subject of general ridicule among thinking people, his shibboleth of 1900 should certainly suffice. It is: "Today we are engaged in a controversy which will determine whether we are to have a republic in which the government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed, or an empire in which brute force is the only recognized source of power. . . . When such an issue is raised there can be only two parties—the party, whatever its name may be, which believes in a republic, and a party, whatever its name, which believes in an empire."

Of the two samples of Bryanocracy the second is the worse. The first shows only gross ignorance, while the second reveals not so much ignorance as contemptible demagoguery.

FROM THE FRONT AND FROM THE REAR. WHO OUGHT TO KNOW?

"The Republican party today is responsible for every drop of blood drawn from an American soldier in the Philippine islands, or drawn by an American soldier. There never was any occasion for war in the Philippine islands if the Republican party had dealt with the Filipinos according to American principles."—William Jennings Bryan in his night speech at Indianapolis, August 8.

"I wish to God that this whole Philippine situation could be known by everyone in America as I know it. If the real history, inspiration and conditions of this insurrection, and the influences, local and external, that now encourage the enemy, as well as the actual possibilities of these islands and people and their relations to this great East could be understood at home, we would hear no more talk of unjust 'shooting of government' into the Philippines or of hauling down our flag in the Philippines. "If the so-called anti-imperialists would honestly ascertain the truth on the ground, and not in distant America, they, whom I believe to be honest men misinformed, would be convinced of the error of their statements and conclusions and of the unfortunate effect of their publications here. If I am shot by a Filipino bullet, it might as well come from one of my own men, because I know from observation confirmed by captured prisoners, that the continuance of the fighting is chiefly due to reports that are sent out by Americans."—General Lawton, written a few days before his death.

THE TROJAN HORSE.

Mr. Bryan in the present campaign is basing his hopes upon a repetition of the strategy of the crafty Greeks before Troy. It will be remembered they captured the city by this device: They built a huge wooden horse, whose hollow interior was filled with armed men. They then struck camp and retreated for their ships. The Trojans, seeing this move, believed the siege had been abandoned, and, issuing from the city, took possession of the Greek camp. The wooden horse they brought inside the city in triumph as a votive offering to the gods. That night the men concealed within it issued forth, opened the gates to the Greeks waiting outside and Troy was captured.

Imperialism is the wooden horse of Mr. Bryan's campaign. Should he succeed in reaching the Presidency by its means, a Democratic house of representatives would be elected at the same time and such changes be made in the political complexion of the states that two years after the senate would also be Democratic. Then we would have free silver, free trade, and all the other evils with which Democracy has threatened the nation for years.

Four years ago Mr. Bryan made the following statement on the stump: "The Democratic party has begun a war of extermination against the gold standard. We ask no quarter; we give no quarter. We shall prosecute our warfare until there is not an American citizen that dares to advocate the gold standard." He had made no such radical statement on the stump this year, but it will be remembered that he declared he would refuse the nomination of the Kansas City convention unless the free silver plank was inserted in the platform, which was done; that the platform of the other two parties whose nominee he is, contain a radical free silver plank. It is clear, then, that Mr. Bryan and these three parties all stand committed, if placed in power, to enact such legislation.

As President McKinley says, "Other issues may be paramount, but this is immediate." It is the real danger to the republic. Imperialism means nothing. It is a mere sham, intended to alarm voters who do not see that it means just the same thing as expansion meant when we purchased Louisiana or acquired Florida, or annexed Texas, or obtained the vast area from Mexico.

Every foreign-born voter should be shown that there is no possibility, under our form of government, of the establishment of a military system on the lines of Germany, or France, or Russia. Has the Republican party shown itself unpatriotic, or unmindful of the welfare of the people in the past? At the close of the civil war the United States government had almost a million men under arms. Within three months this mighty army of volunteers was disbanded, the men had returned to the avocations of peace, and only the regular army remained to preserve order in the late rebellious states. Here was a time when the Republican party could have established a military system on the European plan, had it been so minded.

We had a quarter of a million men in the field when the war with Spain ended. They were returned to their homes as rapidly as possible, and the great volunteer army became a thing of the past. What justification has Mr. Bryan, or any other Democratic orator for the atrocious charge that it is Republican policy to establish such a military system? There is none whatever. No American voter who has intelligence enough to mark his ballot can fail to see, if he will consider the matter, that Mr. Bryan's imperialism is a mere logaboo.

The real danger is from free silver. Every man who cast his ballot against that fallacy in 1896 should line up solidly against it this year. Every young voter, just entering upon the active work of life, should join the forces of sound money to prevent a business crash that will bring hard times to the country and perchance injure him in business or prospects. Let the voters of the United States take warning by the folly of the Trojans of long ago. Imperialism is the wooden horse. Let us not bring it within the citadel of power at Washington, because free silver will enter with it, and bring ruin upon the country.—Toledo Blade.

Imperialistic Traveling.

One of the funniest things in this Presidential campaign is the wild outburst of wailing and gnashing of teeth because Colonel Bryan was not permitted to hitch his private palce car to a certain limited train on a west Virginia railroad, but had to leave that select and exclusive vehicle and travel in an ordinary Pullman coach. A tremendous outburst was instantly raised about it by his zealous press agents, and it was made to appear that the episode was another act in the harrowing tragedy of "crucifixion upon the cross of gold." For, of course, it was the work of a Republican trust. It was probably directly ordered by Mark Hanna himself. It was, so to speak, one of the tentacles of a monopolistic octopus that seized the private car in its hideous grasp, switched it upon a sidetrack and compelled the champion of the people to ride "in an ordinary car."

Now, the fan of the thing is twofold. In the first place, it turns out that the railroad in question is what may be called a Democratic road. It is chiefly owned and managed, that is to say, by staunch and loyal Democrats who, it is to be assumed, will vote for the man who private car they so unfeelingly sidetracked. In view of that fact the Republican octopus seems to be—with apologies to Boyle Roche—a horse of another color. It really will not do, you know, to assume that every trust is a Republican institution; else where would Brother Bob's Ice Trust be? And if Democratic railroad magnates see fit, for business or any other reason, to deny a favor to their own candidate for the Presidency, why, men and brethren, it certainly does not seem to accord with the eternal verities to throw the blame for it upon Mark Hanna or upon the President's Phillipian policy.

But the other part of the fun is perhaps better still. For, mark you, the burden of the complaint is that Mr. Bryan was compelled, if he wanted to travel on that Democratic railroad, to do so in an ordinary car. This horny handed son of toil, this plain man of the people, this advocate of Jeffersonian simplicity, this inflexible foe of fuss and flummery, was actually compelled to emerge from the sequestered recesses of a private coach and to ride in a plain everyday car along with other people. How utterly revolting! If it had been Mark Hanna, now, or that wicked and haughty imperialist William McKinley, it would have been alright. Their feelings would not have been jarred in the slightest. But that this unassuming Democrat, the combined reincarnation of Cincinnatus, Thomas Jefferson and Solon Chase, should be compelled to jostle elbows with his fellow citizens and ride "in an ordinary car" with other people—at thought of that the mind recoils and the heart sickens.—New York Tribune.

GLUTTONY

Is more common than we may think. If we define gluttony as eating beyond the body's need of sustenance and beyond the stomach's capacity for digestion and assimilation of food. That is a fair definition, and it fastens the name glutton on many a person who would resent the term as an insult. The fact of this gluttony is marked by its consequences. The overloaded stomach becomes diseased. The popular term for the condition is "weak" stomach. The "weak" stomach fails in furnishing adequate nutrition for the body, and the stomach's weakness spreads from the stomach to other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food, by which alone the health and strength of the body is maintained. "Your medicine helped me so much that I cannot praise it too highly," writes Mrs. C. L. Brooks, of Poland, Androscoggon Co., Me. "The first dose I took helped me. I cannot forget how I felt when I took my first dose. I was suffering every thing with indigestion, and my stomach was so bad that it was almost impossible to eat. My husband said he was going for the doctor, but I said if he would get me a bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I would try it. I had not taken it long when I felt relieved, and have not had a touch of indigestion or stomach trouble since. I had been sick for four years, and less than four bottles cured me. Some people that knew me before I began to take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' tell me that they were sure they had a chance to see me, and they also say they don't see how I can do such large washings as I do now, when I had not done a washing for so long."

Dr. Pierce's Peppets cure biliousness.

The Salvation Army artist wrote on a bill board in flaming letters a foot high: "What shall I do to be saved?" A patent medicine fiend happened along and seeing a chance to make a hit, answered the question by painting beneath the following advice: "Take Carter's Little Liver Pills." By-and-by the holy paint singer, observing the sacrilegious work of the worldly advertiser, proceeded to place a third line on the board directly beneath the second one, inscribing: "And Prepare to Meet Thy God."
