ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER. W. C. WOODWARD, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1900.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.

In Canton, Ohio, Bryan begged the people not to allow local pride to influence their votes. We wonder if he would make the same "disinterested" plea in Newberg.

"We stand on the gold standard, and we stand on it on the Atlantic seaboard and in the Rocky mountains, anywhere. We are fortunate in having issues that don't wear thin in any part of the country."—Governor Roosevelt.

Democratic orators "point with pride" to the great strike as a product of republican administration. But Senator Dilliver of Iowa knocks their assumption into a cocked hat when he says "In republican times the problem of America's labor is to get more. In Democratic times the problem is to get less."

As the campaign is drawing near a close, indications are increasing that President McKinley will be overwhelmed by re-elected. Bryanism can't stand a long campaign, and its "imperialistic" mask is being ruthlessly torn away. The business interests of the country are lined up on the defensive, without regard to party affiliations, and this is the body blow to Bryan. He can't win against prosperity, against honest money, against expansion, and against law and order. It is seldom that a candidate has such a formidable array of obstacles to overcome, and no candidate has ever won in the face of such opposition.

The attitude of the great independent journals of the country in a presidential campaign is always significant, and it perhaps has never been more so than in the present one. They look at the issues pending before the people, not from a partisan standpoint, but state conditions which appeal to them, unprejudiced. The fact that such journals are almost without exception, supporting the republican candidates and policies in the present campaign, indicates one of the great obstacles to the success of Bryanism. The current issue of the New York Independent naively remarks that "Since the publication of Mr. McKinley's letter of acceptance, with its statements as to the Government's policy and action concerning the Philippines, there have been signs that Mr. Bryan and his associates are inclined to discuss other issues at greater length and with more emphasis in their speeches, and to give to imperialism less prominence."

Bryan is shown at his best, or at his worst, more properly speaking, when he labors to convince the workmen that the republican party is seeking to institute a large American army, which it will be available to suppress the rights of the American workingman. The following is a good sample of his ranting demagoguery, delivered at Indianapolis. "The laboring man asks for arbitration and gets a large army; he asks relief from government by injunction and gets a large army; he asks for protection from the blacklist and his answer is a large army; he asks for shorter hours of labor in order that he may have more time with his family and for the development of his mind, and his answer is a large army." "What nonsense. One would imagine that every laboring man in the country has to quarter a soldier, as security for his good and peaceable behavior. Where is this portentous and overshadowing arm of militarism? Only in the heated imaginations of Bryan and his ilk. The facts are, as Mr. Bryan knows, that even counting in the troops occupying the Philippines, the size of our army, relative to population, is much smaller than any back in the good old democratic rule of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of democracy."

AN APPEAL TO OREGON NATIVE SONS BY H. W. COBBETT.

The impending campaign of 1900. I am asked to give to the readers of the Oregon Native Son my views on "The Pending Issues of the Campaign of 1900." "The question and principles are of so great import and the possibilities of great disaster to our country are so eminent in the election of Mr. Bryan, I do not hesitate to give my candid views upon the important bearing it will have upon the country. I have no other ambition than the good of my country, that has done so much for mankind during the past forty years, mainly under the national government administered by the Republican party. When, about forty years ago, Abraham Lincoln was elected President and succeeded Mr. Buchanan, the Republican party found the country in a deplorable condition. The nation was without credit at home or abroad. The last loan made by the Democratic administration, cost the government 12 per cent per annum. Secession sentiment was rampant, a southern confederacy was demanded, the majority of people had committed the unpardonable sin of electing Abraham Lincoln to the Presidency. Then followed the attempted secession of the slaveholding states, civil war ensued, slavery was abolished by the emancipation proclamation of President Lincoln. The Union was preserved. The supremary of the national government was acknowledged, and it was maintained by the Republican party, aided by patriotic Democrats.

During the Civil War the government's expenses were enormous and it was naturally forced to adopt a paper currency. This unfortunate circumstance unsettled the finance and business of the country to such an extent, that for a number of years little was exported other than United States bonds (which at one time sold for gold at 40 cents on the dollar), to pay the balance of the trade against us. It took many years to restore specie payment and to fix a permanent gold standard, and it is to be hoped that from this we will never depart.

It is now declared by Mr. Bryan that this gold standard must be overturned by the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, or in other words, all people having bars (or bullion), of silver worth now in the market about 47 cents to the dollar, shall have the privilege of taking it to the United States mints and receive a silver dollar, for every 47 cents worth of silver deposited. Let us now inquire what would be the result of this financial scheme of Mr. Bryan's. One of two things must happen, namely, every silver dollar (now practically kept at par with gold) would depreciate and drop to 47 cents on the dollar, or else the government (that is the people) must pay the difference. Are the people prepared to trust the finance and great business interests of the country in the hands of a man of so little sound business sense? Are they prepared to do away with a sound and stable system of finance, a policy inaugurated ever since the Civil War, to secure this result, and that insured the interest on the public debt on the gold standard, at the lowest rate (2 per cent) ever known to any government, or shall we return to a Democratic Bryan party, on a silver basis of 6 or 12 per cent interest? We must pursue a policy of permanency and stability. It must go hand in hand with prosperity, under as now, Republican rule, or distrust, instability and disastrous times must ensue, which to my mind is in store for us if Mr. Bryan is elected. It behooves every citizen to choose wisely. A wise protective policy is now in force for the protection of American industries, which largely aided in bringing about present prosperity. Much is said about imperialism. This, in my judgment, is simply a scarecrow, dressed up for the occasion. An Imperial Domain under a wise Republican form of government, we need for our growing population. The islands of the sea we need to furnish new markets, also to stimulate and build up our inadequate commerce, which we can legitimately protect under our navigation laws. It must be borne in mind that in another 125 years, we will probably have a population of four hundred million people. The wise statesman will make provision for this growing national family. Expansion is necessary for our expanding family. What nation is better prepared by experience, education and humane instincts to assume the high responsibility assigned to us by Providence and imposed upon us by the Treaty of Paris? This task we cannot evade, if we would, without national disgrace. The task has been laid upon us by the great Jehovah, and by His aid we will perform it freely, fairly, valiantly and humanely.

The banner of our country floats majestically over these acquired possessions and testifies, as it ever has, to those living under its folds, its humane, wise and liberal laws for the government of its people. Our patriotic sons have willingly died in its honor and its defense, and their comrades will not see that flag lowered without a struggle. Those islands of the sea are for our wise development, their rich and varied products are for America and largely for the enterprise of the Pacific states; here is to be distributed the rich and varied products of these islands in exchange for products of other climes and other nations that may seek our markets.

The man of party that seeks to thwart this policy, will be repudiated by the Pacific Coast, if not by the whole American people. The issue is, permanence and a fixed and enduring standard in our monetary system, as against free and unlimited coinage of silver with no provision to maintain it at a parity with gold. Second. Shall we maintain our rightfully acquired authority and develop the Philippine archipelago, enlighten and educate its people, and extend to its inhabitants the blessings of an American representative government, as soon as they are prepared to embrace it, or allow Mr. Bryan to hand down our flag and abandon the islands that our brave sons so valiantly fought for, or allow Germany or some other European power to take possession of this rich inheritance, and the blood shed by our sons count for naught.

No one following the trend of events during the past three years can ignore the export of all manufactured goods, and other products, and the large trade balance in our favor; the increased production of and prices of wool and other products under protective policy, the high prices of sheep and cattle and fair prices for other farm products in our own state, considering the large amount produced. The general advance of wages and the bettered condition of the community in general, all tend to show that a change in policy under Mr. Bryan, from past experience under change of administrations, would be a great misfortune and in many respects a great calamity. He is a man of derailed purpose, and those purposes are to overthrow the policies so carefully inaugurated by the Republican administration, for the best interest of the nation, and under which we have gained greater renown and greater prosperity than ever known in this or any other country.

We, as a commercial nation, are fast becoming the great entrepot for exchange in products and the financial center of the world, and no proposed change can better our condition.

The history of the Republican party is before you. Under it, slavery, a blot on the national escutcheon, was abolished. Protection has been given to all infant and languishing industries, building up cities, and manufacturing towns, to encourage the surplus product of the farm, furnishing employment to thousands that otherwise might be idle and an unproductive element. Our manufactured products furnish a basis for exchange largely in our favor, whereby in our national wealth we have outstripped all other nations. Our people are universally educated, universities are being stimulated with large endowments by wealthy men, inventive genius and science are being developed by and through our liberal system of education. Homes for the homeless have been given to the industrious, and we are expanding our national domain as opportunity offers, for future generations.

Native Sons of Oregon, a long line of beneficent rule under Republican administration is before you. Choose you between such administration and the proposed experimental vagaries of Mr. Bryan. Between good government and anarchic tendencies. Between sound and stable money, as against a depreciated and fluctuating currency. Between additional domain for those who come after, expansion in American education, humanity, commerce and trade and additional markets for our increasing products, or the abandonment of a policy that curbs American ambition, genius and enterprise, that has so long characterized our national spirit, and that has made us great and prosperous.

As well attempt to arrest the sun in its daily course, from east to west, or obscure its rays in its fruiting influence upon the earth, as to arrest the march of American civilization and enterprise. The American Republic must and will perform its great part in the drama of the world's history now being enacted. Shall it be arrested ever for four years in its splendid achievements and onward march in civilization and renown? —H. W. Cobbett, in "Oregon Native Son."

What Motherhood Means

Motherhood means either happiness or misery. There is scant happiness for the mother, who in pain and weakness brings into the world a weakling babe which she can neither nurse nor nourish. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription fits women for motherhood. It strengthens the maternal organism. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and brings refreshing sleep. It makes the birth hour practically painless and gives the mother the nourishment to give her child. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics. "Words cannot express how grateful I am for your kind advice and your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. J. M. Richards of Newark, Campbell Co., Va. "I had that it has cured me of my nervous headache for four years. I suffer greatly with my right side, also with bearing-down pains, and my nerves were in a dreadful state. After my first bottle of your 'Favorite Prescription' I got some relief. I am the mother of two children, and my first child I nursed two months, and with only three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I was able to nurse the second child. I wish you great success and hope that you will give me your medicine."
