NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER. W. C. WOODWARD, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1900.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.

There is only one thing to be said against the overwhelming majority which Pennsylvania rolled up for the republicans, and that is that it gives Matt Quay bright prospects for a seat in the United States Senate. The same may be appropriately remarked of Montana and Clark, from a democratic standpoint.

The vote in the electoral college by latest canvas, stands, McKinley 295, Bryan 152. This gives President McKinley a gain in electoral votes of 24 over four years ago when he received 271 and Bryan 176 votes. And from the standpoint of popular majorities, to the surprise of many republicans even, McKinley's majority is approximately 150,000 greater than that of 1896, which was then the greatest popular majority a presidential nominee had ever received.

The country may be congratulated that the campaign is over, and it might now have a spell of peace from political bickering, but for the fact that yet during this winter the country will undergo a series of political contests such as only the most bitter factional politics can produce. State legislatures will meet and will be held up, legislation will be blocked, money will talk, political trickery will hold sway and factional jealousies rule, and all to elect this man or that to a coveted seat in the United States Senate. In other words, it's the political ambitions of one man against the interests of the commonwealth. The question is, how many such legislative farces will have to be endured, before a better way will be decided upon for electing United States senators.

With the enemies in the rear swept out of the way, and with an overwhelming popular majority rolled up in support of the policy of the Administration, the people may reasonably expect a decided change in the Philippine situation. Assured of the hearty support of the nation, the Government will no longer be handicapped in its operations, but will promptly assume practical and aggressive action against the Filipinos. A severe policy now pursued, will in the end be the most humane. The nature of the Philippine is such that no amount of the "soils of fire" treatment will have any appreciable effect. Before Americanization can touch them, they will have to be whipped, and whipped decisively once and for all, and the sooner the castigation takes place the better for all concerned.

With all the jubilation manifested over the re-election of President McKinley, it is little less gratifying that the next congress will have a good republican majority. The democrats have freely made the boast that even should McKinley be re-elected, they would secure a majority in the House and obstruct republican legislation. But the people have seen to it that the Administration will be in no such way handicapped in carrying out its policies, by increasing the majority which the republicans had in the last congress. This gives the party in power full sway and places it upon its own responsibility. So for the next few years for whatever of trust legislation is passed, for whatever Philippine policy is pursued, and for whatever tariff laws are enacted, the national republican legislators will be held accountable. And in the meantime the people won't lose any sleep over the fact, either.

AMERICA'S PLACE AMONG THE NATIONS. In 1800 the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland had 17,000,000 inhabitants. France in that year had 27,000,000; Russia, 35,000,000; the territory comprised in the present empire of Austria-Hungary, 20,000,000; Spain 11,000,000; the states composing the German Empire of to-day, in the neighborhood of 15,000,000; the territory in the Italy of the present, approximately 12,000,000; the Turkey of to-day 10,000,000; The population of the United States in 1800 was 5,308,483, or, in round figures, 5,000,000. In 1900 Russia has 120,000,000 inhabitants; the United Kingdom has 40,000,000; France, 38,000,000; Austria Hungary, 42,000,000; Germany, 53,000,000; Italy, 29,000,000; Spain, 18,000,000; Turkey 28,000,000. The figures for 1900 for all these countries are estimates based on the rate of increase in the past twenty or thirty years. The population of the United States in 1900 is 76,000,000.

Here are the changes which a century has made in the relative standing of the principal European countries and the United States. One hundred years ago the United States was lower in the scale than any of the nations here named. It had less than a third as many inhabitants as Great Britain and Ireland; half as many as Spain; less than a fifth as many as France, and but little more than a seventh as many as Russia. The only nation of all those which have been named which leads the United States to-day in population is Russia. Benjamin Franklin, while still a loyal British subject, surprised the gentlemen at the head of George III's government by showing them that the thirteen colonies were at that moment doubling their population every quarter of a century. That rate of increase continued for many years after the colonies gained their freedom which is much more of a feat than making that rate of gain when a country is small. It is now doubling every thirty years, the population in 1870 having been a little over 38,000,000. In another very important particular, however, the gain of the United States has been far more rapid than it has been in population.

It is but little over a quarter of a century since Malthus, the British statistician, told England that the United States would soon pass it in the extent of its wealth. That prophecy became history even earlier than its author realized. The United States passed the United Kingdom in that particular long ago, and took the first place among the countries of the world, Great Britain leading all the other nations until that time, with France second. Probably France holds the place next to the United Kingdom still, though Germany has been growing in wealth with considerable rapidity for a European nation in the past twenty five years. The true valuation of the real and personal property of the United States in 1850 as computed by the census authorities, was, in round figures, $7,000,000,000. It was $16,000,000,000 in 1860, $30,000,000,000 in 1870, $43,000,000,000 in 1880, and $65,000,000,000 in 1890. The figures for 1900 will probably not be computed for several months yet, but the indications are that they will pass the $90,000,000,000 mark. In the 100 years in which the population of the country has been multiplied fourteen times its wealth has been increased more than ninety times. At the present moment the wealth of the United States undoubtedly exceeds that of the United Kingdom and France in combination, and these two countries are the second and third, respectively, in this particular, on the roll of the world's nations.—Globe Democrat.

Stories in The Youth's Companion.

In the 52 issues of the year The Youth's Companion publishes more than 200 stories, yet so carefully are they selected that they prove inexhaustible in variety, unailing in the power to delight. The stories already at hand for the Companion's 1901 volume show that this feature of the paper will be as strong as ever.

Among the groups of stories will be one of "Old Settler's Day Tales"—stories actually told at some of the gatherings of pioneers in the West. There will be four stirring "Tales of Our Inland Seas," picturing the adventures of the sailors on the Great Lakes; and there will also be four "True Tales from the Zoo's," told by famous keepers and trainers of wild beasts. And this is only a beginning. We shall be glad to send Illustrated Announcement of the volume for 1901 with sample copies of the paper free to any address. All new subscribers will receive The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1900 free from the time of subscription, and then for a full year, 52 weeks, to January 1, 1902; also The Companion's new Calendar for 1901, suitable as any ornament for the prettiest room in the house.

For Malaria, Chills and Fever

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The formula is plainly printed on every bottle—hence you know just what you are taking when you take Grove's. Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called Tasteless Chill Tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.
