That local newspaper is decidedly up against it these days which can't talk about the creamery its town has or is going to have right off.

Sir Thomas Lipton's new cup challenger Shamrock II, was wrecked Wednesday. Sir Thomas maintains that the third Shamrock's the charm.

It's a hard hearted Welfoot that hesitates to assure the tenderfoot immigrant these days that the rainy weather we have been having is "annual" for this time of year.

Inform your friends that the exercises of Commencement week of Pacific College will take place from June 8 to June 12, inclusive, and that they are cordially invited to attend.

The poet is still strictly up to date, and at the same time more reliable than our modern weather forecaster, who declared that:

"May is a pious fraud of the Almanac,
A ghastly parody of real spring."

The Telephone-Register may be right when it declares Mr. Hanna could not be elected president, but it bases its conclusion on a weak premise, viz: that no political boss has ever been elected to the presidency. Martin Van Buren was one of the most astute bosses who ever ruled in the realm of American politics.

Mrs. McKinley continues to improve in health and the presidential party will probably start on the return trip to Washington either to-morrow or Monday. Pres. McKinley has promised Governor Geer that he will return and visit the Northwest before the expiration of his term of office.

The University of Oregon defeated the University of Washington in debate last week, also defeating the Washingtonians in an athletic meet. As the latter victory was won largely by the aid of Newberg's athlete, Roy Heater, we of this neck of the woods have special reason for being patriotically exultant over Oregon's prowess.

At the beginning of this month, the per capita circulation, of which so much is heard in campaign times, was $22.21, which is said to be thirty-three per cent higher than it was when Bryan was first nominated to tear down the golden cross upon which the people were being crucified. Can any one conjecture how much higher the present per capita circulation is than it would have been had Bryan been successful?

The fight in democratic ranks for harmony and reorganization goes merrily on, Mr. Bryan firing a hot shot among the ardent reorganizers the other day by accusing them of fraud and deceit, and of being backed by all the corporate interests and trusts, which are becoming more formidable in the party every day. We are glad to note that Mr. Bryan has finally been brought to the "anxious seat" where he is made to confess that not all the trusts are found in the republican party.

The Oregonian defends itself for its coarse and brutal editorial relative to the abandonment of the President's tour as caused by the illness of Mrs. McKinley, on the ground that it "is a plain speaker." Such an excuse is as trifling as it is ridiculous. The most unbecomable bore on the face of the earth is the fellow who doesn't know when to keep his mouth shut. And we would say in connection that the storm of criticism which the big daily has called down upon itself all over the country, speaks well for the finer sense of Oregon citizenship.

As an example of some of California's enterprising methods of advertising, the Junction City Times is authority for the statement that a correspondent writing from Buffalo says: "California is making an elegant fruit display. While examining it the other day Mr. Doech, who is superintendent of the Oregon exhibit, recognized in the California display his own collection from Oregon, which he loaned the Southern Pacific for the Paris exposition. The man in charge of the California display denied it, whereupon Mr. Doech turned the jars around and showed him the Oregon labels on the other side. I do not know how they will settle the matter."

In all the live towns of the Willamette Valley the topic of general interest is the dairy and its handmaid the creamery or cheese factory. The change which is taking place in the agricultural interests of our incomparable valley is coming fast, and is already felt. It is bound to come, without any "ifs" in the question and the individual farmer or the locality which first gets in line with the new industry will be so much the better off for his prompt action. Yamhill must wake up to a realization of her privileges in this particular or some of her enterprising sister counties will leave her. Polk county is rapidly becoming a dairy county, and the evidences of accompanying prosperity are already apparent. What is good for Polk is good for Yamhill. Newberg has the creamery already in operation, and all that is needed now is more farmers to milk more good cows, to produce more butter to distribute more funds among our own people.

PACIFIC COLLEGE WINS DEBATE.

For the Second Time Newberg Wins a Unanimous Decision of the Judges Against the Monmouth State Normal.

Hard work had its perfect reward at Monmouth last Friday evening when the Pacific College debaters won a unanimous decision of the judges for the Boer side of the Transvaal question. Though the debate was spirited throughout, the result was scarcely at all in doubt, as the Newberg boys showed themselves entirely masters of the merits of the question, going right to the root of the discussion, while their opponents, as one of the judges afterward expressed it to them, contented themselves with running around the suburbs of the question. The issue as debated was, "Resolved that the war now being waged by England in South Africa is justifiable." Monmouth, represented by D. Simpson, Mr. Beazley and Hugh Esson debated the affirmative side of the proposition, while Pacific College represented by R. W. Jones, Emmer Newby and Carroll E. Kirk upheld the negative. The judges were Hon. C. M. Idleman of Portland, Judge M. J. Judah and Attorney C. H. Bigger of Salem, Hon. E. F. Mulkey, state senator and a professor in the Normal acted as moderator of the debate.

The first speaker on the affirmative, Mr. Simpson, started out with the declaration that the sympathy manifested toward the Boers was misplaced, and that as facts are becoming better known, sentiment is changing in favor of the English. The Boer republic is an oligarchy, and its strife now on hand is a contest of civilization against ignorance, progress against non progress. The first great trek of the Boers was to get away from the fruits of civilization, where privileges of slavery might be enjoyed. In a general way Mr. Simpson traced the history of the relations between the English and Boers, to show that the Uitlanders have been at the mercy of a tyrannical rule. The other speakers of the affirmative spoke in much the same vein, dwelling particularly upon the franchise question and "taxation without representation." The discussion by the Monmouth boys throughout was too general and was not applied closely enough to the question to make good argument. In all their speeches the war in progress was scarcely referred to.

In opening up the discussion for the negative, Robert Jones declared that one of three conditions was true: Either the English were altogether right and the Boers were altogether wrong; or that the Boers were right and the English wrong; or that there was some right and some wrong on both sides. In the first case England was not justified in war as she needed only a fair trial at a court of arbitration to get full justice. If she was in the wrong of course the war is unjustifiable. In the third case, which Mr. Jones said the negative accepted, as there was wrong on both sides, and right on both sides, and as the Boers repeatedly asked for arbitration, the English were not justified in forcing war on the Dutch republic. He then proceeded to show how England has always been guilty of double dealing with the Boers, repeatedly making promises which she never fulfilled. His strong argument was made however in proving conclusively that England in the convention of 1854 gave up all claim to suzerainty over the Boer republic. Two of the judges afterward said that in proving this important point Newberg had the debate won before her first speaker had finished, for if England didn't have suzerainty she had no right whatever to interfere in the internal affairs of another country.

Emmer Newby took up the franchise question at length and showed that the Boers were forced to their vigorous measures by very self-defense, but proved by a comparison of conditions in other countries that the policy of the Dutch was not severe. A strong point was made in proving the existence of the English newspaper syndicate, organized to incite the passions of Uitlanders and English by highly colored reports of existing conditions. It was also proved that the Jameson raid was made with the knowledge and approval of high English officials, which fact justified the Boers in being on their guard.

Carroll Kirk reviewed the diplomatic relations between Chamberlain and Kruger, proving that the latter repeatedly made concessions—even more than were demanded—that the former would make none, and was afraid to submit to arbitration; that the English withdrew their own proposals after they were accepted, showing that it was not an amicable settlement of difficulties, but war which England was after. Mr. Kirk made a ringing speech, not more decisive in argument than scathing in sarcasm, beating the South African gold mines and diamond fields as the source of Britain's anxiety for the slave and consuming desire for the spread of civilization. He finished with an impassioned plea for justice to the Boer against high handed English aggression.

The judges handed in their decisions immediately, upon conclusion of the argument which were read as "negative, negative, negative" and no one was heard to question the verdict. Right here we might say that the decision was not won because our boys were naturally brighter or better talkers than their opponents, but because encouraged by Prof. Kelsey, they had worked and worked hard on the question, and had studied the affirmative as well as the negative side of the proposition. They had predetermined what their opponents must say and were prepared to meet their argument.

After the debate the visitors were tendered a banquet in the college boarding hall, on which occasion the following toasts were responded to, Prof. Campbell acting as toastmaster:

"The Ladies"—Hon. C. M. Idleman;
"The President of the United States"—Prof. Fellows; "The value of Inter-col-

Good Health

Is doubtless the highest human good. It is especially so to women, to whom it means the preservation of beauty, happiness in the home, and the enjoyment of social duties. There can be no good health for any woman who suffers from womanly diseases. Her complexion falls. Her flesh loses its firmness. Her eyes are dull. She has no home happiness, no social enjoyment.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which destroy the health. It establishes regularity, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It gives good health to women, which means tranquil nerves, a good appetite and sound sleep.

"I was a great sufferer two years ago with female trouble and I wrote to you for advice," says Mrs. Mattie Hays, of Tridation, McDonald Co., Missouri. "You outlined a course of treatment for me. I followed your directions, and now feel like a different person. I never expected to hear from you when I wrote to you. In three days after I commenced taking your medicine I began to feel better. I took twenty dollars' worth of the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I bought it five dollars' worth at a time, and also four vials of Dr. Pierce's Tablets. I would not take one thousand dollars for the good the medicine has done me. I can't praise it enough. I wish all who suffer with such troubles would give Dr. Pierce's medicines a fair trial. I can work all day—doing anything, walk where I please, and feel good. Many thanks to you for your kind advice."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

legiate debate"—Prof. R. W. Kelsey; "The future of our Pedagogues"—Mrs. R. C. French; "College Days"—Prof. Bishop; "Inter-collegiate Relations"—Miss Weltin; "Municipal Reform"—Judge Judah; "Our defeated Debaters"—Hugh Esson; "Those defeated Debaters"—Robert Jones.

Throughout the evening a friendliness and spirit of good fellowship was manifested which bespeaks the most cordial relations between the two educational institutions, and which we believe were strengthened by the visit of our debaters. This last contest is the third annual debate between Monmouth and Pacific College, the last two debates being won by Newberg.

ELAM SHAW.

For Malaria, Chills and Fever

THE BEST PRESCRIPTION IS Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The formula is plainly printed on every bottle—hence you know just what you are taking when you take Grove's. Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called Tasteless Chill Tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.
