

NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER. W. C. WOODWARD, ASSOCIATE EDITOR. Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon. ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING. FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1901

An exchange perpetrates this horrible pun on an unoffending public: Kaffir corn is proving an excellent feed for cattle in Kansas. A farmer out there fed one of his cows the product last summer and last spring she produced a Kaffir two.

Once a young man asked an old and wealthy doctor how to get rich, and the doctor replied: "Get a situation, work all the time, spend no money for pleasure, hang onto every nickel, and by the time you are as old as I am you will be as rich as a king and as mean as hell."

The following have been given by an Eastern professor as the four serious problems which now confront the Republic. Popular, representative government, with justice to all races of men in the United States and its dependencies; cheap, swift, safe and convenient transportation; the production and distribution of wealth; the security of life and property by maintenance of law and order.

An exchange wants to know what is to be done with the large surplus of money in the United States treasury, which calls forth the suggestion that the democrats be turned to it as they never have any trouble in using up a surplus. In 1892 they found a full treasury and in less than three years it was empty and nearly three hundred million dollars in bonds had to be issued. It is suspected that the democrats are now willing to undertake another job of the same kind.

The Graphic has no apology to make for supporting the enterprise of making investigations for oil in this vicinity. It advises citizens to give their support but promises them nothing in return. Such enterprises always partake of the nature of a lottery, but it is such enterprises that bring the most rapid development to a country. Indications clearly point to the fact that there are rich underground resources of some nature within easy reach of us. Indications may be deceptive. They often are. In either case it won't take much money to find out the truth of the matter, and that will justify the expense.

The republican papers are still industriously hammering away at Hon. W. J. Bryan. A man who tells so many plain truths about latter day Republicanism, and in such a vigorous way, needs a great deal of "killing off" at the hands of the administrative organs.

Anybody whose democratic literature in newspapers is not restricted to the Commoner knows well that the treatment Mr. Bryan has been receiving from republican papers is tender indeed compared with that received at the hands of his erstwhile "friends." Bryan is now enjoying the martyrdom of crucifixion which he told us about away back in '96—not on the cross of gold, but "in the hands of his friends."

A Kansas exchange, published in a town near Topeka, the capitol, says: "There is nothing the matter with this country. The same climatic conditions that existed a thousand years ago will exist a thousand years hence. The country is all right; it's the people. There are no climatic climates in the climate. It's dry and hot and will be to the end, and were it otherwise many of us would not be living here. We love it; bask in its beautiful sunshine; revel in the hot winds; adore it because it never rains. If people are in search of rain they should go to Oregon, where it rains every day and where moss grows on the backs of the inhabitants. The only trouble is that people insist on trying to do things in Kansas that ought to be done in Oregon. People must conform to conditions as they find them. Kansas is all right—broughty Kansas—where it never rains till it gets ready."

An Iowa country paper gives a wholesale exhortation that is applicable most anywhere, especially where some new enterprise is being pushed. It's good enough to reproduce and here it is: "Don't be a drag on the community. Either stand up for your town or go somewhere that suits you better. If the glorious Iowa weather don't suit you, go where it is hotter. If the soil don't suit you, don't vegetate in it. If the whole community is going to the demnation bow-wows in a handkerchief, you had better get out before the lynxpin breaks and turns you out, head first, into the bottomless pit. If it is dyspepsia or liver complaint that makes a pessimist of you, go to the doctor, and tell him to charge the bill to the public welfare. We are in the march of progress, our town and county are going forward, and we have neither time to go around cloths or kick them out of the way, so if you wake up some morning and see that the procession has passed, you will know that you have been run over."

The meeting of the National Negro Business League held in Chicago a few days ago, showed up an entirely different phase of the negro question than that given by newspaper reports of lynchings which are such common occurrences down south. At this meeting the successful negro was represented, and it is said that reports made by those present, show that thousands of colored men are successful and that many in the Southern states have achieved a success in business and industry which causes them to be regarded as reputable members of the communities in which they reside. All this goes to show that apart from the baser elements of the race, there is another class, sober, industrious and anxious for further development, which is resolutely and courageously following the lead of Booker T. Washington toward a higher type of citizenship. While execrating the deeds of the former class, it is worthy of reflection whether or not more good could be accomplished by spending time thus idly devoted, in extending encouragement and sympathy to the latter class, in whose efforts lie the destiny of the race.

With an ever increasing manifestation of "thriftness," the railroad companies of the state are drawing the lines closer and closer. Free transportation has even been taken away from the patrons of the roads, the manufacturers, who at the same time are charged such exorbitant freight rates on their products, that they are well nigh forced out of business. In short the man who journeys to another part of the state to develop trade in his manufactures, pays for the privilege of developing business for the railroad. All this may be the railroad's business, but there comes a place for the people to take a hand in the game of "business economy" in self-defense. The time has come when there is no longer the argument for four cent mileage that there was in the days of a sparsely settled country with few people to travel and a light business in freight transportation. Conditions have changed, but the four cent rate remains. This, however, is but one point of needed railroad legislation, and if some ambitious Solon wishes to get next to a large constituency let him successfully champion before the next legislature remedial legislation in this direction.

The papers have been full of paragraphs deploring the results of the canteen law, but as so many of these statements have been contradicted by other "eye-witnesses," possibly equally deserving of credit, it is hard to unravel facts. For instance, the officers at the Presidio, California, made the usual complaints, whereas, men from the ranks mostly agree that the removal of beer etc. from the canteen is a good thing; the same is reported from Leavenworth and Wetherell. The Ministerial Association of Manila, were reported as disapproving the law. Over their own signatures they repudiate this report, considering the canteen one more temptation to the soldier to drink, in a climate where drink is just killing him. The system of checks and credit, too, is apt to find him impoverished when pay day comes around.

As eighty-five per cent of our soldiers are in the tropics, they need special guarding against what is so detrimental to them. As eighty-five per cent are stationed where the war department controls the outside saloons, officers ought to be able to maintain such discipline that the reports they send out themselves would be impossible.

Besides this, seventy-five per cent are new recruits, mere lads, who should not have the temptation in the "home" which the Post Exchange furnished with recreation rooms and harmless refreshments ought to be. TEMPERANCE.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering. "I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Hallway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by C. F. Moore & Co., druggists.

Take in the State Fair. The Oregon State Fair at Salem, September 23rd to 28th, 1901, inclusive, promises to be the best this year that has yet been held. New features for amusement and instruction have been added, and particular attention will be given to the stock exhibit, owing to the great and constantly increasing interest in dairying throughout the state.

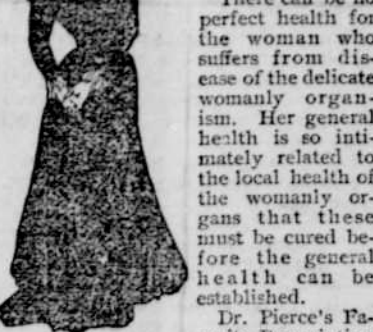

For this occasion, the Southern Pacific Company will make a rate of one fare for the round trip, from all its stations in Oregon, to Salem and return, and it is to be hoped that every one who can do so will show his appreciation by taking advantage of this opportunity to pass a few days pleasantly and profitably at our state capital.

A Night of Terror. "Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed

THE POISE

Of a woman in perfect health attracts the eye at once. Such a woman is all too rarely seen. The most of women bear scars of suffering on their faces which no smiles can hide, and often in their very carriage betray the womanly weakness which oppresses them.

There can be no perfect health for the woman who suffers from disease of the delicate womanly organism. Her general health is so intimately related to the local health of the womanly organs that these must be cured before the general health can be established.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures womanly disorders and digests; brightens the dull eye, rounds out the hollow cheek and gives strength for wily duties and maternal cares.
