The Myrtle Point Enterprise is inclined to be a little hard on Oregon's senior senator. Relative to the statement that race prejudice is against Mr. Simon in his fight for re-election it says the statement is political rot, as some of the greatest men the world has ever known were Jews.

Governor Geer is making a brave fight for re-nomination, which, from the standpoint of a good political contest, is decidedly interesting. After all he said and done, Mr. Geer has made Oregon a good governor and it will be a pity if he is turned down for the simple reason that he has incurred the displeasure of certain factions and politicians.

In obedience to the express desire of the citizens of Newberg, the city marshal has been instructed to enforce the curfew ordinance. Now that the desired end has been reached a parents willing to co-operate with the city officials toward enforcement? They have a duty to perform as well as has the city marshal. It is well enough to say that the latter official should enforce the law but he is under no more obligation to do so than the citizen is to obey it.

Last Saturday's Capital Journal contains an editorial headed, "Strawberry Industry at Newberg," in which the writer states that this part of Western Oregon will yet feed the world on canned strawberries as the fruit can be grown here in the greatest perfection and cheaper than any other place in the world, and maintains that the location of Newberg is especially adapted to the strawberry industry.

Some of the prominent Eastern educational institutions have closed their doors to students addicted to the cigarette habit, holding that such students sooner or later make miserable failures in their work. This is well and good but such a common sense policy should begin lower down in our educational system. A boy who persists in using cigarettes should not be admitted to our public schools, for two reasons. In the first place his presence is offensive to those around him and his influence with other boys with whom he comes in contact is wholly bad.

Who sympathized with you when you were burned out, asks an exchange. Was it your home merchant or was it Sears & Roebuck? Who carried you last winter when you were out of a job and had no money? Was it Montgomery Ward & Co., or was it your home merchant? When you want to raise money for the church or for some noble person in town do you write to the Fair Store, Chicago, or do you go to your home merchant? How much does Siegel, Cooper & Co. give toward keeping up the sidewalks or paying the minister's salary? When you were sick how many nights did Hubbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co. sit up with you? When your loved one was buried was it your home merchant who dropped a tear of sympathy and uttered the cheering words or was it Marshal Field & Co.?

On top of the announcement recently made that congress was going to increase the salaries of rural mail carriers from five to six hundred dollars, comes the measure championed by Congressman Lund of California, the object of which is to run the rural mail routes under the contract system as are the star routes. For the good of the service it is sincerely to be hoped that the latter attempted legislation will fail. At the present salary of five hundred dollars it takes the practice of the closest economy for a carrier to come out ahead at the close of the year, after having fed two horses and kept a vehicle in repair. Out in all kinds of weather every day in the year, Sundays alone excepted, the carrier certainly earns the last cent of the money he receives. No capable man can afford to work for a dollar less than he is now receiving and should the government conclude to let the routes by contract the result will be that they will be taken charge of by irresponsible and inefficient men, the wells, and the efficiency of the service correspondingly decreased. It will certainly be a poor policy should the government which has gradually been putting the rural mail delivery system upon a permanent and efficient basis, reverse its attitude by the adoption of the contract system. If it must practice economy by cutting the wages of its servants let it begin on some of its salaried officials higher up in the service.

STRAWBERRY TALK.

Hon. E. Hofer of Salem, Interests Newberg in the strawberry industry.

Those most concerned in awakening interest in this vicinity in the small fruit industry were agreeably surprised at the number of people who attended the fruit growers' meeting at Craters' hall last Saturday forenoon, which was addressed by the veteran strawberry grower of Salem, Editor Hofer of the Capital Journal. The good attendance was no doubt due partly to the fact that many remembered the interesting address on strawberry culture which he delivered here last August before the state horticultural society.

As it has been said that he who makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before, is a benefactor, the founding of new industries, such as that of strawberry culture, is a great public benefaction. The interests of the railway and transportation companies and those of the producers of any locality are one, and the way in which the former are encouraging fruit unions by handling and distributing their products, finding distant markets etc., insures the success of the industry. For instance the railway companies take care of the Salem union's berries by shipping them in refrigerator cars at carload rates to eastern points and distributing them on the way by wire as the demand calls for. Many people who have lost in handling green fruits are discouraged, but the strawberry, light in weight, is shipped at medium freight rates and brings the largest returns. The market is absolutely unlimited, as our berries when shipped in the latest improved refrigerator cars can be put in good condition into Chicago or even Boston, Seattle, Spokane, Butte, Salt Lake, Fargo and Sacramento have proved good markets.

It was decided to hold another meeting on the afternoon of March 15, for the purpose of pushing the subject to a successful conclusion and in line with Mr. Armstrong's suggestion an efficient committee consisting of Rev. Jos. Hall, E. C. Armstrong, J. L. Haworth, G. C. Carl and Zim Mills, was appointed to canvass for strawberry acreage and to act as a general agitation committee. In the meantime, remember March 15, as the date of the next meeting, and prepare to attend and encourage the establishment of the new industry.

It must be remembered that the creamery check is not the only source of income, as the skimmed milk for calves and pigs and the building up of a herd of dairy cows and the growing of crops that will improve our farms, must also be taken into consideration. If you have a herd of good cows you are making money rain or shine and your calves and pigs are growing night and day. Dairy crops are not so liable to get frost bitten as some others and we can keep the cows in the barn so the cold rains of the winter and early spring don't injure them.

of cream. A demand is thus created for cream at good prices at a time of the year when the price of butter is lowest. In fact strawberry culture presents the most inviting field of labor for intelligent farmers. Business men should take hold of the enterprise. They are doing it in Salem and are making good money even when hiring all work done.

Mr. Hofer closed his talk with an appeal from a moral standpoint. He said that while preachers were preaching salvation for another world he felt that he was doing missionary work in preaching the industrial salvation of people in this. The proposition he had presented meant bread and butter and happiness to the poorer class of people which could otherwise barely exist.

From the general discussion which followed the address, it was evident that interest in the subject had been awakened. Several questions were asked and answered relative to technical points in strawberry culture. J. H. Rees suggested that the cultivation of other small fruits could be made very profitable. He observed that present growers would have great advantage over the pioneers in the business, and profiting by the latter's mistakes could proceed with greater success. He knew there was a market in large towns and cities to the east of us and thought the industry would be a very profitable one.

W. K. Allen said he had been in the far eastern states a few months ago and that there were not enough berries grown there by far to supply the demand. He stated too that he knew the Willamette valley like a book and would declare positively that it contained no better location than Newberg for the strawberry and canning industries. He emphasized the fact that we must work together and deal in quantities. Once raise something to can and the canner will soon be here.

G. C. Carl manifested the proper spirit of enterprise in declaring that as for himself he was going to begin raising strawberries. He encouraged those interested to stick to the proposition, hold more meetings, awaken more interest, and make the industry a reality. S. W. Newhouse thought the fact that land in this vicinity is held in small tracts would be favorable to strawberry culture. Individually, he wished to turn his attention to some such enterprise and was willing to try the one under discussion.

E. C. Armstrong expressed faith that plenty of people would be found to undertake the strawberry business when they understood more about it and suggested that a committee be appointed to continue the agitation. At this point Mr. Hofer was compelled to leave the meeting and was given an enthusiastic vote of thanks for his services in settling forth the benefits of the strawberry industry before Newberg people.

It was decided to hold another meeting on the afternoon of March 15, for the purpose of pushing the subject to a successful conclusion and in line with Mr. Armstrong's suggestion an efficient committee consisting of Rev. The Famous Shasta Route. In going over the famous "Shasta Route" of the Southern Pacific Co. the traveler ever finds something new to excite his admiration and interest. Starting at Portland, one traverses the whole length of the Willamette Valley, the gem of the Northwest. Mt. Hood, Mt. Jefferson and the Three Sisters and other snow-capped peaks are kept in sight for hours. The beautiful valleys of the Umpqua and Rogue rivers, with their orchards of peaches, apples and other fruits are a delight in themselves. The crossing of the great mountain barrier between Oregon and California reveals the grandest mountain scenery in the United States. The wonderful turnings, twistings and doublings of the railroad bring into view a grand array of towering mountains and profound gorges into which we gaze from dizzy heights; forest clad mountain slopes stretching up to the line of perpetual snow, and the foaming mountain streams dashing fiercely down deep canyons, now and then stopping for a short rest in some quiet pool. After a day's enjoyment of old Mt. Shasta, the finest peak on the continent, we drop rapidly down the canyon of the Sacramento Valley in California, and then through vineyards and orchards to San Francisco. For maps and descriptive literature address R. B. MILLER, G. P. A., S. P. Co., Portland, Oregon.

Drink a steeping of Noki Tea at night before retiring, and see how soundly you will sleep, and how joyously you will awake in the morning.
