

THE NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER. W. C. WOODWARD, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1922.

The Boers continue to aid the English in keeping the "situation well in hand" down in South Africa. Their latest move is to capture Methuen, one of England's able generals, which was the occasion for another "regretful" dispatch from Kitchener.

Congressman Tongue is receiving favorable mention for United States senator. There is only one thing to be said against Mr. Tongue assuming the toga. He has made himself of such value to the state in his present position that he can hardly be spared even for promotion to the senate.

The third change in President Roosevelt's cabinet has been made, occasioned by the resignation of Secretary of the Navy Long. The new secretary will be congressman Moody of Massachusetts. This leaves Secretary of Agriculture Wilson as the only remaining member of President McKinley's original cabinet.

The bill to classify the rural mail service and place the rural mail carriers under contract system was passed by congress Monday but after being amended in a way that changed completely the purpose of the framers. Instead of the rural carriers having to bid on routes, they are continued upon the salary basis, the salary being raised from five to six hundred dollars per year.

An anti-pigeon shooting bill has been passed by the New York legislature which scores a victory for the friends of harmless birds and dumb beasts. Aside from the direct end in view, the advocates of kind treatment to dumb animals are benefactors of their own race. When people learn to show gentleness to the brute creation they indulge more liberally in the milk of human kindness between themselves.

Mr. Bryan is out after the scalp of David B. Hill, in which he sees a possible democratic presidential candidate. He accuses him of being a deserter of democracy and a special representative of those who have so completely forgotten the story of the prodigal son that they would place the parental home-stead on wheels and start in hot pursuit of the wayward son, determined to compel the boy to eat fattened calf even if the hucks have destroyed his taste for wholesome food. And they talk about division in the republican ranks!

Gallant Fred Funston, the Kansas hero, exhibits the same spirit of dashing courage in calling things by their right names over here at home that he did in fighting the treacherous Tagals in the Philippines. In a speech at a recent banquet given in his honor, in speaking of a few American soldiers who had deserted and gone over to the Filipinos and were afterwards captured and executed as traitors, he said, "There are many men in the United States who did more with their mouths and minds to aid the insurgents than did those poor men with Krug-Jorgenson rifles. I would rather see those men hanged for treason than to see one of our soldiers dead on the field of battle."

The development of the small fruit industry in this locality will mean more to our land owners than would the establishment of the best sugar business. This statement wouldn't have been popular when the canvass for beet acreage was being made, but it is a fact nevertheless. The small fruit business attracts a more desirable class of citizens than would the sugar beet enterprise. Small fruits such as strawberries can be raised with less labor, and therefore less cost than sugar beets. More money can be realized on an acre of strawberries or raspberries than from an acre of beets. The market is sure and stable, there being no foreign competition. The beet sugar industry is much at the mercy of our fluctuating governmental policies, but high tariff, free trade or Cuban concessions cuts no figure in the culture of the luscious red strawberry. Still the beet sugar industry is a good thing which we would have liked to have had come this way. But if there is something better for us which we can have with one tenth the effort and expense, let's have it. There is always the danger of unlearned men hanged for treason than to see one of our soldiers dead on the field of battle."

It is not the business of the Graphic to dabble in Polk county politics, but it does wish to comment the Observer on the position it takes in an extended political write up of last issue. The editor reads the riot net to a Polk county man who is out for the nomination for state representative, because when in the legislature in 1895, against the wishes of his constituents, he refused to support Senator Dolph for re-election, caused his defeat and split the ranks of the republican party in Oregon. As the Observer says, this man's vote deprived Oregon of the services of both Dolph and Mitchell, two of the ablest and most active Senators that ever held seats in the halls of the congress of the United States—two men who were earnest and efficient workers, who were able to secure the legislation so greatly needed for a young and growing state like Oregon, and who were recognized as the equal in brains and statesmanship of any two men in that body. It must take a good brand of nerve for that representative to seek a second time the suffrage of the people.

HARD FORENSIC BATTLE.

Albany Wrests Decision From Newberg By One Vote.

No one who attended the debate between Albany and Pacific College last Friday evening in the hope of seeing a close contest went away disappointed. As expressed by a representative citizen it was a great intellectual battle, the issue of which was completely in doubt until the decision was announced which read, two votes for Albany and one for Newberg. The contest was so close, that while many failed to see it as two of the judges did, little or no complaint was heard.

The question at issue read, "Resolved that the United States should subsidize her merchant marine." Pacific College, represented by Robert Jones, Calvin Blair and Elwood Minchin, upheld the affirmative while Albany on the negative, was represented by Messrs. Pratt, McFarland and Stuart, who had considerable advantage in age over the Newberg boys. The judges were Professors Herdman and Johnson of Portland Academy and Prof. Thomas, principal of the Portland Clinton Kelly school.

Music for the evening was furnished by the Misses Lucy Gause and Shyl Woodward with vocal solos and by Miss Jessie Britt with an instrumental solo. J. C. Hodson acted as moderator, and in prefacing the debate spoke of the appropriateness of discussing public questions at issue, of such general and vital importance as that of the merchant marine.

In opening the question for the affirmative Elwood Minchin stated that no particular bill was under discussion but that the affirmative held that the U. S. merchant marine was in a deplorable condition, that we need a strong marine and that a subsidy is the best means of obtaining it. He gave a comprehensive and general presentation of the subject, presenting by chart the history of the rise and fall of our merchant marine which he showed to be governed by subsidy legislation. He held that a merchant marine is invaluable to a manufacturing country, and that it is economic folly to pay foreign countries to do our carrying for us, at the rate of some $200,000,000 a year. He also brought forth other advantages of a merchant marine. Mr. Pratt of Albany, replied by acknowledging the value of a marine, and granting its deplorable condition, but maintained that American shipbuilding is now on the increase, and will be built up without a subsidy, under the working of natural conditions. He declared that subsidizing has not and will not have the desired effect and read at length from President Arthur T. Hadley in defense of his ground.

Robert Jones began with the statement that natural conditions, coupled with legislation have built up the strongest industries of the world. To knock out the natural condition theory, he then presented a series of charts based on commissioners of navigation and consular reports to prove that cost of construction, operation and maintenance of ships is greater in this country than in foreign countries with which we have to compete; and that in addition to this inequality of conditions, the universal foreign subsidy must be reckoned with. We must meet foreign competition on its own ground by granting a subsidy for the encouragement of our ship owners. In reply Mr. McFarland said the negative favored legislation but not subsidy legislation which build up trusts and enrich the few. He stated that by the bill now under consideration, four corporations would receive nine tenths of the subsidy legislated. By the means of more graphic charts, which tended to make the Albany boys uneasy, Calvin Blair proceeded to show the rapid growth of all foreign marines under liberal subsidies, from which he drew the inference that subsidizing was the logical policy for this country to pursue. To various other plans of legislation he objected on the ground that as many as thirty inter-national commerce laws and treaties would thus be violated. Stuart, the youngest member of the Albany team, proved to be his star. He is a natural debater and at once made an impression. He claimed that the treaties referred to by the affirmative could easily be abrogated and legislation enacted. Both he and Mr. Pratt, who followed in rebuttal, held that with the exception of France, no foreign country paid a direct subsidy, except mail subsidies, which could not be classed with merchant marine, and that therefore Mr. Blair's charts were irrelevant. Mr. Jones closed the debate in rebuttal by reading authorities from both sides of the question to prove that a mail subsidy is considered a merchant marine subsidy. It was on this point that the result of the debate hinged, and though clear enough to most people, if Mr. Jones had taken the trouble to clinch his point a little harder, he would undoubtedly have won the debate, as one of the judges who didn't "quite understand" afterward admitted.

Another judge later in the evening confessed that the trouble with him was that he believed this protection business all rotten, and couldn't see it any other way. Prof. Herdman, a graduate of Columbia University, voted for Pacific College.

After the debate, a reception was given the visitors in the library room of the college, attended by the students, faculty and alumni. Pres. McGrew extended a "Quaker" welcome which was neatly responded to by Mr. Pratt, after which refreshments were served in Prof. Jones' recitation room. The Albany debaters are fine young gentlemen and a social hour made them many friends as a result of their short visit here.

SMALL FRUIT AGITATION. Editor Graphic:—As the subject of strawberry culture is now before us, I would like to call attention to another branch of small fruit culture that I believe can be followed with success in connection with strawberries, and that is blackcap raspberries. I shall do all I can for the successful accomplishment of our strawberry effort, but we can combine the two. The one will not interfere with the other and both will be a source of profit. The raspberry in its season follows the strawberry—strawberries in June and raspberries in July.

The raspberry is easily raised and is valuable as a dried product. They do not have to be gathered as often as strawberries, will not decay by remaining on the bushes a few days, and can be dried in the sun successfully if the weather is not wet with but little expense. I dried all of mine last year in the sun and the most of the crop the year before. Last year they were worth about one dollar per crate for drying, dried berries being 16¢ per pound. There is money in them at a much less figure. The raspberry must be cultivated the same as the strawberry and then they will pay. If I had set eight acres to raspberries four years ago I would have sold the crop two years ago for over $650 and paid for gathering the same about $150. The crop last year would have brought me $975 while I would have paid pickers over $200. This is my estimate from what I am already cultivating.

I am learning something by experience and am increasing my acreage of both strawberries and raspberries every year. We have the soil and climate and I am fully persuaded that there is money in the small fruit culture in this valley, and I am surprised that there is not more being done in this line about Newberg. People cry, "Over production!" Well, it seems that many here have been quietly waiting for over production for years back. Let us go to work, permit the land to produce what it is capable of doing; furnish employment for scores of the citizens of Newberg and bring lots of money into their pockets. We can thus give employment from the last of May to the first of August, then a rest till the prune crop is ready. Yours for a "Newberg Small Fruit Association." Jos. Hall.

McMINNVILLE CORRESPONDENCE.

With the tax paying, registering of voters etc., this week will probably be one of the busiest for the court house officials in the history of the county.

The sheriff and deputy have been kept busy night and day for some time receiving for tax. Almost $50,000 of the 1901 tax has been collected up to the middle of the week. After Saturday the three per cent discount will not be allowed.

The treasurer is contemplating making another call for county warrants in the near future if the tax continues to come in as it has in the last few days. It is hoped that before many weeks the county will be able to pay all outstanding warrants, and then it will be able to "pay as you go."

The judges and clerks of election in precincts in the east part of the county are as follows: North Newberg, J. H. Rees, F. H. Storey and Thos. Duncan judges, and A. P. Oliver, Jno. Larkin Jr. and J. G. Hadley clerks. South Newberg, Noah Heater, Joseph Wilson and Lee Jones judges, and W. O. Robertson, Frank Jones and W. S. Parker clerks. Dundee, R. R. Craven, F. T. Keys and F. Livengood judges, and E. E. Greer, S. L. Parrett and Arthur Heston clerks. West Chehalis, Amos Nelson, W. W. Walker and Fred Vinton judges, and A. P. Johnson, Claude Ferguson and C. C. Cady clerks. Those who have received notice of appointment recently, should fill out stub and return it to the county clerk at once.

County Court, March Term.

Contracts for furnishing lumber in the several road districts of the county were let. C. K. Spaulding was awarded contract for furnishing districts 6 7 8 9 at $8 and $8 50 per thousand.

Contracts for furnishing wood for the county were let as follows: To J. M. Harrington for 20 cord oak pole wood at $2.40 per cord and to M. F. Kirk for 15 cords second growth fir at $1.75 per cord.

Tax on several tracts for 1900 and 1901 remitted on account of double or incorrect assessment.

Vacancies in election boards filled. Joseph Wilson was appointed judge in South Newberg precinct and Arthur Heston clerk in Dundee precinct.

Bills to the amount $2229.65 were allowed as follows: Roads and bridges $214.47, indigent account $504.41, court expenses $10, stationary and printing $363.33, officers salaries $936.03, miscellaneous $200.81.

SPRINGBROOK ITEMS.

Miss Watson spent Friday in Portland.

Pres. McGrew and Prof. Jones, of Pacific College, attended the meeting here one evening last week.

J. A. Jones and family of Portland came up on Saturday evening's train. Mr. Jones will spend a few days looking after his ranch.

Mr. L. M. Metcalf is entertaining relatives from Ballston this week.

Mr. Caswell came up on the train from Portland Friday evening and spent Saturday and Sunday with his uncle Wm. Barker. Mr. Caswell is selling goods for a Chicago Hardware Co.

The Sunday School here report 84 members including officers and teachers.

There was a large crowd out at both morning and evening meetings to hear Rev. Danks preach Sunday.

Zim Mills drove up to McMinville Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Lee Winters has been quite sick the past few days.

Dr. Cornell of Newberg was out to see a sick colt at Grant Heaters last Tuesday.

CHEHALEM VALLEY MILLS Everybody has heard that a new broom sweeps clean, but does everybody know that a NEW MILL MAKES THE BEST FLOUR? Our mill makes the "Excellent" brand and our customers declare it well named. Thrifty housewives know that good bread makes happy husbands, and it takes good flour to make good bread. That is the kind you get when you call for the "C. V. M. EXCELLENT." Respectfully, CHEHALEM VALLEY MILLS, Newberg, Oregon.
