PACIFIC COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

The season of college Commencement, with all its various pleasures and attractions, has again come and gone, and another year's history of Pacific College has been completed. The exercises of the week were fully up to the standard set by other years, and the friends and patrons of the institution are well pleased with the showing made. The excellent music furnished for the different exercises, contributed in no little degree to their success.

Y. M. & Y. W. C. A. RECEPTION. Commencement week opened with the annual reception given to the Senior class by the Christian associations of the college. It was held Friday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock, in the large church tent which had been pitched on the athletic field back of the college.

The tent was beautifully decorated with ferns and evergreens, lighted by Chinese lanterns, and presented a very pleasing appearance.

The first part of the evening was spent in conversation and music, both instrumental and vocal. The main feature of this part of the program was the "coon" quartet consisting of Marguerite Allen, Gertrude Cook, Carrie Bronillette and Erma O'Brian. As suddenly as if they had sprung up out of the ground there appeared on the scene four of as black pickaninnies as ever graced a Southern plantation and set up such a buzzing that it was difficult to tell whether they were pickaninnies or bumble bees. They sang the songs "The Honeycuckoo and the Bee" and "Coon, Coon, Coon," in a manner that would put most minstrel singers to shame. They were repeatedly encored.

After the musical program all took refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and strawberries. At this time Calvin Blair recited two of Riley's pieces, "A Day in June" and "I Chawed On," and Owen Maris spoke "St. Peter at the Gate." After the refreshments, some of the younger generation, (Seniors excepted) took advantage of the beautiful moonlight night and grassy campus to play that new and popular game drop the handkerchief.

The reception was well arranged and the committee deserves the thanks of all present for a very enjoyable evening. O. R. M.

GIRL'S GYMNASIIC DRILL

On Saturday evening the girls Physical Training Class, under the direction of Miss Jessie Britt, gave an excellent gymnastic drill on the tennis court. This was the first entertainment of the kind given by the girls and a large crowd of interested spectators was present.

The music for the evening was furnished by the C. M. A. band, and the college quartet, and Mrs. C. B. Wilson furnished the music for the drill.

First the advanced class of three ladies, Mrs. F. A. Elliott, and the Misses Sibly Woodward and Agnes Hammer gave an exhibition of club swinging which was a credit to themselves as well as to the instructor.

The quartet, Misses Gause and Turner and Messrs. Rosenberger and Newby then sang an appropriate song. After this came the class of twenty-eight girls with wands. They were grouped according to size and being dressed alike they presented a true military appearance. After marching around the court for ten minutes forming in from single file, to two, four and eight abreast and back to single file again, they entertained the spectators for some time with a graceful exhibition of the wands. Their work showed considerable skill and practice as the large class kept very good time, moving backward, forward, to either side in perfect unison. The band then gave two selections.

After a brief rest the class formed again and marched around the court, this time with their light Indian clubs. As it was growing dark the marching continued only a short time and the club swinging commenced. This showed more than ever the effect of three months persistent practice, for this exercise was more difficult than that with the wands and was performed fully as well. A class of twenty-seven swinging first one club then the other, then the two together, all keeping perfect time was a sight which interested and pleased the spectators, and was a source of pride to their instructor who has been so faithful in her efforts to have the girls ready for this entertainment.

After the club swinging which lasted but a short time on account of approaching darkness the class broke rank and the band played another selection. The college boys closed the exercises of the evening with three hearty cheers for the girls of Pacific College. O. R. M. THE BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS. The Friends church was well filled Sunday morning to hear the Baccalaureate address delivered by Pres. McGrew. The services were opened with a voluntary by Miss Mabel Edwards, which was followed by scripture reading by Jesse Edwards, prayer by Rev. Randall of Portland, and a vocal solo by Miss Sibly Woodward.

Taking for the text of his address, John 2:5, "Whatsoever He sayeth Unto You, Do It," Pres. McGrew delivered an earnest address full of inspiration to his hearers. In opening he said, "Not knowing what the future has for you, I come to repeat the words of the mother of Jesus. Respond to them though you know not what the command will be. Live in vital communion with the Master that you may understand His will. In that and that alone can you know the real power of the Man of Nazareth."

The speaker took three commands of Christ as the theme of his sermon. First, "Be ye therefore perfect." The real meaning of this command has been the study of the ages. Does it mean perfect physically, or mentally? This is desirable, but it means infinitely more—perfect in character. Second, "Love one another." The greater love of humanity is the need of the world. Holiness is goodness incarnate, but righteousness is goodness at work. You may say the rabble is vulgar. Yes, but the cleanest hands in history touched the leper to heal him, anointed the blind man's eyes with clay and lifted the beggar from the wayside. The power of love in the regeneration of lives is immeasurable. This is a world of conflict. Go out and help enthroned the King of kings in the hearts of men.

The third command, "Go and preach my gospel to every creature." We are indebted to the monk for the work he did in his seclusion but we must take up the burden in active service. Our efforts must bear fruit. "They will be done," said Savonarola, Luther, Wesley, Carey, and General Booth. Those should be the words of every Christian. We are making history. Would you help? "Whatsoever he sayeth unto you, do it."

"In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea, With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me. As He died to make men holy let us live to make men free, For God is marching on."

Don't be idle, don't move in a narrow groove, but go in the spirit of Christ. The world will look on to judge and criticize, but care not. Move on to duty's call. Look unto the Judge infinite, and see that He is pleased with the efforts of your hand. "Whatsoever He sayeth unto you, do it."

ADDRESS TO THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS. The officers of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. were very fortunate this year in the selection of Rev. Wm. Randall pastor of the second Baptist church of Portland, to deliver the annual address before the Christian associations. Rev. Randall is a man of depth and power and has a magnetic presence which puts his hearers in close touch with him. His address was excellent and highly appreciated. His introductory words were, "Your desire is for power and enlargement. What will you do with life? If I can make the question burn within you, and can bring the response 'I am a steward of God,' my visit here will not be in vain."

"We shall see what will become of his dreams," was the text for the evening discourse. After recounting some of the great achievements, which have come as a result of "dreams," the speaker gave a short picture of the career of Joseph, the dreamer.

In applying the text, he said in brief, "Dreams of worth and achievement are an incentive. Ambition is the waking echo of God's command, 'Let Him have dominion.' You have I trust experienced ambitious dreams! Visions have come. Dream. Dream of victory, and of the investment of a life, quickened by God. Real aspirations are not vagaries. They are not outside of possibility. God has made their consummation possible.

"He alone is great, who by life heroic conquers fate." Difficulties are the artificers of character. The elixir of life is found in high and holy ideals. Making the ideal real is the secret of the right life. What will become of your dreams? The poetry of Byron and Poe reveal beautiful and worthy dreams, which were never realized. Guard your soul as the very citadel of your dreams. Beware of gross ambition, envy, malice and hate. Take care of the body, the temple of the soul. Take care of your spiritual nature, to which God appeals. Only the pure heart sees God. Dream of usefulness to a needy world. The real battle in life is not for bread or glory, but for manhood and womanhood—for mastery of moods and ambitions. Carnegie says, "The man who dies rich is disgraced." The fact is, the man who lives, rich in opportunities and neglects them, is the disgraced man. Dream splendidly of God. Human thinking is turning from pendulous motions to an intelligent Christian faith. The tides of full-man thinking and activity are controlled by the Omnipotent. The grip of the Man of Nazareth upon human hearts is strong today. Put yourself in tune with the Infinite, and dream of a masterful life."

The music of the evening consisted of a trio by the Misses Sibly and Bernice and W. C. Woodward, and of a quartet by the Misses Lucy Gause and Carrie Turner, and Prof. H. G. Rosenberger and E. A. Newby. ADDRESS TO LITERARY SOCIETIES. On Monday evening in the Friends church, Prof. J. C. Hodson delivered the annual address before the literary societies of the college. The program was opened with an instrumental solo by Miss Jennie Crawford of McMinnville. Calvin Blair, president of the Crescent Society, then introduced the speaker. Prof. Hodson announced his subject the "Golden Fleece." He told the story as taken from the ancient Greek myth and compared it to modern life. "The Golden Fleece" to be sought for now, is a well rounded character and has become a reality of life after which every mortal is sent. It may be possessed by every bright, energetic young person. He named some of the requisites for its attainment. A strong body is necessary. We must be enthusiastic or the world will not know we mean anything. We must be beautiful. Man is a little lower than the angels and beauty must be seen springing from his immortal soul.

The last and probably the greatest force is education. It controls all others. It begins with life and continues through eternity. One may learn in a few years study what it has taken ages to dig out. This is a practical age and an education is necessary to do things right. The opportunities are splendid and every young man should seek them if he will have the "Golden Fleece."

The program was closed with a song by the quartet, Misses Gause and Turner and Messrs. Rosenberger and Newby. They responded to a hearty encore. O. R. M. CLASS DAY.

The Senior exercises of class day are among the most popular of Commencement week. While they are doubtless not as profitable as others, they are healthfully mirth-inspiring and place a class strictly upon its own resources in the fine art of entertaining.

The exercises as given in the college chapel Tuesday morning were fully up to the standard. The class labored under the difficulty of being small in numbers, but was equal to the occasion. The program opened up with an organ voluntary by Miss Rose Metcalf, as announced, though the action of the organ betrayed more of the "involuntary." Emmet Newby delivered the address of welcome, in which he set forth a little class history, and stated that the only remarkable thing about the class was that it had never done anything remarkable. A vocal and instrumental solo were well rendered by Miss Nerva Wright and Mr. Newby. Miss Wright delivered a lecture upon the class which was graphically illustrated with pencil sketches drawn to order. The class band called forth a shower of bouquets from the audience. The "theatrical" reproduction of an incident in college life, a literary "comedy of errors" was highly appreciated. The vocal solo by E. A. Newby adapted for the occasion from "Just Suppose" was accorded a hearty encore. The exercises closed with some interesting stereoscopic views illustrating various incidents and phases of college life at P. C.

ACADEMIC GRADUATION EXERCISES. The exercises of the graduating academic class, held Tuesday afternoon, were uncommonly good. The class was large, made up of the following named young people. Ernest W. Bales, Laura M. Blair, Sadie E. Bronillette, Lulu Jessie Christenson, Florence E. Coffin, Russell O. Comer, L. Belle Cook, Alverda H. Crozer, Myrtle E. Gause, Alfred E. George, W. Morris Heacock, Amy O. Heater, Leroy B. Mershon, Walter R. Miles, Mary A. Minthorn, Asa Curtis Morse, Lillian A. Nicholson, Mabel M. Newby, Lenora E. Parker, Nellie M. Paulsen, Jesse Ray Pemberton, Ralph W. Reese, Viola B. Robinson, Lewis L. Saunders, Anna M. Terrell, Albert E. Wilson.

The number of graduates made it impossible for all to speak, and the selection was made as indicated by the following program: Invocation.....Rev. F. C. Stander Instrumental Duet.....Miss Jessie Britt, Mrs. C. B. Wilson Oration....."Unknown Heroes," Alverda H. Crozer Oration....."The Growth of Nations," Ralph W. Reese Oration....."Our Ten Talents," Lillian A. Nicholson Vocal Solo.....Miss Sibly Woodward Oration....."Unconscious Influence," Mary A. Minthorn Oration....."Champions," Asa Curtis Morse Instrumental Solo.....Miss Jennie Crawford Oration....."The Uses of Adversity," L. Belle Cook Oration....."The Influence of Money," Walter R. Miles Vocal Solo.....Mrs. Grace L. Barrie Oration....."The Law of Kindness," Mabel M. Newby Oration....."Bail the War Drum be Silent," Lewis L. Saunders Instrumental Solo.....Miss Gertrude Brewer Class Address.....Prof. H. G. Rosenberger Presentation of Diplomas. Benediction.....Pres. H. Edwin McGrew

All the orations delivered were above the average for this grade of work, and some especially would have graced an upper class recital. The academic graduates constitute a banner class, and it is the wish of their many friends that they may continue their work in college, an unbroken phalanx. The address to the class by Prof. H. G. Rosenberger was brief, but contained some pointed and practical thoughts as to the desirability of a finished education.

ALUMNI PUBLIC. As usual, the alumni gave a high class entertainment, Tuesday evening, the program following. Instrumental Duet.....Miss Jessie Britt and Mrs. C. B. Wilson. President's Address.....O. K. Edwards, '96 Vocal Solo....."Forever Dear," Strelecki Miss M. Evelyn Hurley. Alumni History.....Miss Jessie Britt, '99 Male Quartette, Messrs. R. W. Kirk, H. G. Rosenberger, W. C. Woodward, L. E. Holt. Paper....."Ethics of Law," D. P. Price, '97. Vocal Solo....."A Red, Red Rose," Hastings Miss Hurley.

The paper presented by President Edwards was carefully prepared and deserved the close attention it received. A few points brought out were as follows: "It is not enough to know Greek, German or mathematics, but the purpose of education is to fit one to live a life that amounts to something. The time has passed when professional men only, need education. The past fifty years have been devoted to mechanical development and the next will give attention to political and social amelioration. The system laid down by Christ for right living is gradually gaining ascendancy. The speaker closed by tracing the tendency to combination in the commercial world. Instead of criticising it, be encouraged adapting it to the principle of government ownership as soon as conditions are favorable thereto. The alumni chronicles were handled in a vivacious style in which Miss Britt is master. While the truth was given uncompromisingly, some excellent hits were made and the audience kept on the qui vivi.

Mr. Price began his able production with a plea for the dignity and inviolability of law, which is the result of evolution, the best interests of society ever being its guide. The laws of a country are a standard of its morals. The review of the steps in the evolution of law, to the present standard was given, after which law was treated as adapted to different avenues of activity. Our laws are strong in that they are made by the people, "everybody being cleverer than anybody."

COMMENCEMENT. The church was beautifully decorated with maiden hair ferns Wednesday morning, and a good audience was present to see the Seniors take their degrees and embark upon life's voyage. The exercises went off without a hitch and were fully up to the standard set by precedents for such occasions.

Instrumental Duet.....Miss Jessie Britt, Mrs. C. B. Wilson Invocation.....Jesse Edwards Oration....."The Enduring Republic," Robert W. Jones Vocal Solo....."Burst ye Apple Buds," Mrs. Fletcher Linn. Address.....Dr. Edgar P. Hill Confering of Degrees. (a) Loves Eternity, Robert W. Jones. (b) The Madrigal, Mrs. Fletcher Linn. Benediction.....Prof. Edwin McGrew The oration by Mr. Jones was a credit to his class and college and was well delivered. He first gave in brief the status of different republics and showed phases of their strength. The latter have all been material however and as a result republics as a rule have been failures. There are grave fears upon the part of some that our republic cannot endure. It has some weaknesses, but also the following strong points which speak for its stability. First, the utter interdependence of our citizenship creates unity. Second, religious tolerance results in freedom of thought. Third, our uniform diffusion of education is the greatest defense any nation has ever had. Ignorance is the bane of democracy. The character of the American citizen is the nation's safeguard.

The Commencement address delivered by Dr. Edgar P. Hill of Portland was a masterpiece and no words of comment can do justice to it. To those who know Dr. Hill none is necessary to assure them of the high character of his words. The speaker began by paying a glowing tribute to Newberg as a town of schools and churches and no saloon. He stated that it was the kind of place where he would like his boys to be brought up. In his estimation the college adds immeasurably to a town—more than any factory or commercial enterprise. This brought him to the subject of his discourse, "adding values to things." After illustrating from a material standpoint, he devoted his attention to the question of adding values to manhood. Four values particularly were spoken of. First—the power to see. We see with brains rather than with eyes. Second—the enthronement of a purpose is the transforming power of one's life. There is a great virtue in concentration of one's activity. Third the power to persist. There are many good beginners but the people of power are good enders. Fourth—the chief thing in character. Man is the chief factor in our boasted civilization. To give the world a good life is more than anything else you may accomplish. In conferring the degrees, Pres. McGrew admonished the class to have great faith and great hope. Upon E. A. Newby was conferred the degree of A. B., while upon R. W. Jones, Miss Nerva Wright and Miss Rose Metcalf were conferred the degrees of B. S.

ALUMNI BANQUET. The exercises of Commencement week were closed with the annual alumni banquet which was held in the college library Wednesday night. A six course spread was served, covers being laid for forty. Toasts were responded to as follows, W. C. Woodward serving as toastmaster. "Raw Recruits"—Gertrude Lamb. "Looking Forward"—R. W. Jones. "The Faculty"—A. C. Martin. "Three Todd Tails"—H. M. Hoskins. "Our Ladies"—H. W. Kirk. "The Old Gold and Navy Blue Forever"—Ella Macy.
