

THE NEWBERG GRAPHIC.
E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.
W. C. WOODWARD, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.
 Entered as second class matter at the postoffice at Newberg, Oregon.
 PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.
FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1902.

An Illinois woman shot and killed her husband, supposing him to be a burglar, when he came home late at night intoxicated and tried to batter down the door. It is suggested that a fence rail is not a safe substitute for a night key.

The school board of Newport, Rhode Island, has elected a colored woman as teacher in the public schools, who is said to be the first negroess thus honored in the New England states. It is presumed that Tillman at will cite this as another excuse for burning the negroes down South. They must be taught to keep their place—under the heel of the poor white trash.

With a view for facilitating the delivery of mails, the Swedish postal authorities suggest that all school children be instructed in the correct method of directing letters. A single day's experience in one of our own postoffices would lead one to the conclusion that such a course would not be out of order in Uncle Sam's domain. And the lesson would not be restricted to the children either.

Having come to the conclusion that his readers are so fully ignorant of the Bible, the editor of a country paper in Illinois is going to publish the good book in weekly installments. His paper is not a large one and judging by the length of each installment it is estimated that it will take him fifty years to get from Genesis to Revelations. Exceeding great should be the reward laid up for him.

Southern statesmen whose hands are yet held up in righteous horror because of an occasional administration of the water cure in the Philippines, make no protest against the common practice of burning negroes in all in the South. While accusing the administration of abrogating the Declaration of Independence they are revising the old proverb to read, "Charity beginneth in the Philippines."

An editor who is evidently going to be deprived of an outing this summer, solaces himself with the egotistic reflection that those who must stay at home to look after affairs and keep the wheels of business and industry turning have the consolation that they are essential characters in the world's work, while those who can be absent months—those of whom they read in the novels and magazines—are of little consequence in the affairs of men. However the average man will be willing to be counted among the characters of little consequence for the sake of sniffling the sea breeze a few days.

A new feature of juvenile reform work known as the probation system, has been inaugurated in several large Eastern cities, with excellent results. The system is unique and is a modification of the parole system. When a boy is brought into court for misdemeanor, instead of being sent at once to a house of correction, or being confined behind prison walls, the sentence is suspended on probation, and the youth allowed to return home, there to remain under the oversight of a probation officer, and subject to further court proceedings in case of misconduct. The probation officer is expected to keep informed of the child's conduct, to aid him, if necessary, in securing and keeping employment and to act in general as adviser, friend and protector. Probation thus combines the giving of "one more chance" to the boy who has faced the prospect of being deprived of his liberty, the holding over him of the continuing possibility of punishment for deeds already done if his conduct fails to be exemplary, and the advice, encouragement and assistance of a competent friend. Statistics in some cities show that this system is so successful that less than two per cent of the juvenile delinquents were returned to the court for further proceedings during the year. The procedure is certainly based upon the correct theory—that of prevention of criminality rather than the punishment of criminals.

The Oregonian, in its leading editorial Tuesday, headed "Church and State at Eugene," gave publicity to the fact that the divinity school of the Christian church located at Eugene, has engrated itself to a greater or less degree upon the state university. The editorial has raised much discussion, which will doubtless prove beneficial. In contradiction to the position taken by the Oregonian, some claim that anybody is entitled to attend the university, whether or not he belongs to a church school. From an individual standpoint this is correct, but it is an entirely different question when a private school goes to the extent of allying itself with a state institution in a parasitical relation and such would seem to be the relation of the divinity school at Eugene which advertises as a chief drawing card its close connection with the university. The Oregonian is correct in its position and should be supported in it. It's the wonder that the taxpayers of Oregon suffer themselves to be taxed to support so many one horse educational institutions over the state, and the abuse should be corrected rather than encouraged.

An innovation will be made in the fall political campaign in that the cabinet officers, at the request of their chief, will get out and make political speeches. National interest will center in these speeches for more than one reason. In the first place the speakers are men who have achieved success and a wide reputation and are worthy of a careful hearing. In the second, they constitute the president's political family. The administration is always forced to make a campaign more or less on the defensive, and the utterances of the secretaries will have special significance as supporting the policies of their party. For instance, Attorney-General Knox will talk about the all-absorbing question, the trusts, and will be given a special hearing in view of President Roosevelt's position relative to the aggregation of wealth. Secretary Root will speak for the army and Secretary Hay upon the position of the United States from a diplomatic standpoint, etc. In making this innovation, the President takes the view that the country has a right to know from its highest officials just what is being done by the various departments, and he thinks the heads of these departments are better qualified to impart the information than the ordinary campaign orator.

THE GREATEST AGRICULTURAL STATE.
 The Chicago Tribune says that figures contained in the agricultural bulletin of the census bureau, just published, stagger the imagination of the average man, long versed with the statistics of colossal industrial combinations. The total value of farm products for the year in which the census was taken was $4,739,118,000, the average income for each farm was $655; and the average farm composed 146 acres. Iowa heads the list of the states with products for the year 1899 valued at $365,411,523, and Illinois comes second with $345,649,611. Iowa has over 86 per cent of improved farm lands, 9 per cent more than Illinois, which is again second on the list. The value of the products and of the lands of the north Atlantic states has fallen off during the last ten years but the loss has been more than offset by the development of the northwest and the southwest.

Pessimists who have seen evidence of the decay of agriculture and the doom of the country in the number of men employed in the various industries of the country should read the bulletin and take comfort. The development of the magnificent state of Iowa is the work of the last generation and has been synchronous with the industrial development of the country. Without that industrial advance Iowa could not have been what it is. It is the railroads which gave Iowa access to the markets and the agricultural machinery which makes it possible for the population of the state to plant and harvest the great crop. Neither the character of the soil nor the quality of the population, fine as they both are, alone could have made the territory of Iowa the state that it is today.

The state is unique. With almost no resources but those of agriculture it has built up one of the most efficient systems of state education and one of the best state governments in the entire union. When the pessimists have grown weary contemplating the agricultural decline of New England, let them look at Iowa and take heart. It may be that the state of Texas, with its boundless areas, may some day lead in value of agricultural products, but it can never present the picture of unbroken prosperity, of successive fertile fields, and the equable distribution of population that gives Iowa its enviable position at the head of the agricultural states of the greatest agricultural nation in the world.

Yamhill's Livestock Resources.
 Ex-Sheriff Frazier of Multnomah county was buying horses in the city last week, and on Saturday shipped a carload to Portland. He purchased of Messrs. Bewley, Fox and McKinley of Sheridan, R. W. Lancefield of Amity, and Dick Johnson, Frank Jones and Nels Anderson of McMinnville. The horses weighed from 1,100 to 1,600 pounds, and sold for from $100 to $150 each.

Holcomb, the horse buyer from Seattle, shipped ten big horses from this county yesterday. One weighed 1800 pounds. The horses were purchased at Sheridan, Ballston, Williams and one from Mr. Burdett. One would suppose that the supply of good horses would be thinned out, but John Newell says it is like buying calves in Tillamook, if you scour around a little bit in the nooks and corners you can easily find a hundred more.

Mr. Snodgrass of North Yakima, shipped a carload of 26 cows from this county on Tuesday, for which he paid the average price of $38. In loading the car one of cows jumped over the top of the chute and landed on her head and back, so far disabling her that she was left for repairs. Another cow proved herself particularly vicious, and took great delight in vehemently jamming her head into the fence and every other available object. Mr. Snodgrass said he left about $2000 in this county this trip. The banks of North Yakima pay out to farmers and dairymen $15,000 every month for butter fat.—Reporter

 SPRINGBROOK ITEMS.

Mr. P. N. Skinner arrived home from Lyle, Washington, last Friday where he has been for the past three months. Miss Maude McMuller came up on the train Saturday and will visit with her aunt Mrs. C. T. Whittlesey for some time.

Dr. Lyman and family arrived here from Portland last Friday.

Miss Sadie Skinner entertained a lady friend from Portland over Sunday. Grant Heater is running a new binder this season.

Albert Heater and family, Miss Elsie Winters, Wm. Kincaid and family, Mrs. Grant Heater and children and Oris and Perry Macy started for the coast Wednesday morning.

Mr. Harnden, who bought the A. L. Watson place, is building an addition to the house before moving into it.

Mrs. Haworth, who has been visiting at J. H. Rees' for the past week, went down to Portland Monday to see her husband who is under treatment at a hospital. She returned Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Skinner left Tuesday morning for Hood River. They expect to return in a few days.

Look Pleasant, Please.
 Photographer C. C. Harlan, of Eaton, O., can do so now, though for years he couldn't because he suffered untold agony from the worst form of indigestion. All physicians and medicines failed to help him till he tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for him that he declares they are a godsend to sufferers from dyspepsia and stomach troubles. Unrivalled for diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys, they build up and give new life to the whole system. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by F. H. Caldwell & Co., druggists.

LAFAYETTE ITEMS.
 Morris Fletcher is very sick at his home south of town.

Mrs. Ella Metzger of Dallas is visiting friends and relatives here.

The city marshal is putting in new crossings and fixing up the sidewalks.

Hops are looking fine and growers are jubilant over the prospect of good prices.

August Best started his hay baler Monday morning in D. V. Olds' clover field.

D. V. Olds has had his residence neatly painted which improves its appearance very much.

Some of the boys about town went out to the mountains last week and got three fine deer.

Rev. C. C. Poling of Dallas preached in the Evangelical church Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. Nellie Winter of Dallas came down on the train Tuesday morning for a visit at her old home.

Harvest is in full blast and crops are generally good. The hay crop is especially good, and farmers are very busy people.

Dr. H. R. Littlefield of Portland, was in town Saturday. His familiar hello, and cordial handshake, are in themselves a good prescription for the worst case of the blues.

George Maty arrived home on last Friday evening, his term in the U. S. Navy having expired. He has been nearly all over the world.

Miss Eva Fletcher gave an ice cream social at her home south of town Saturday evening. Quite a number of young people from town were in attendance and report a splendid time.

L. B. Ferguson was here on business a day or two last week. He does not look as though he had been confined to half rations since his residence in Newberg if avoidpoids counts for anything. Come again, Lynn. Posny.

All Were Saved.
 "For years I suffered with untold misery from bronchitis," writes J. H. Johnson, Broughton, Ga., "that often I was unable to work. Then, when everything else failed, I was wholly cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. My wife suffered intensely from asthma, till it cured her, and all our experience goes to show it is the best cough medicine in the world." A trial will convince you its unrivalled for throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and 41. Trial bottles free at F. H. Caldwell & Co.

Shatters All Records.
 Twice in a hospital, F. A. Gullidge, Verbena, Ala., paid a vast sum of money to doctors to cure a severe case of piles, causing 24 tumors. When all failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve soon cured him. Sudden inflammation, conquers aches, kills pains. Best salve in the world. 25c at F. H. Caldwell & Co.'s drugstore.
