

THE NEWBERG GRAPHIC.

E. H. WOODWARD, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.
W. C. WOODWARD, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1902.

"Roosevelt and Beveridge"—that's the way some Eastern politicians are talking it for 1904. They are evidently of the opinion that young men for action are more to be desired than old men for counsel. The former are surer winners.

A democratic editor says that while the democrats now have no issues, they will continue to vote the ticket by "instinct." This he says is hard to say against his own people as their opponents could have uttered. It leaves nothing to be said.

Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, who manages to keep before the public by frequent expressions of erratic theories, is now advocating the old Malthusian theory that the world's population is increasing faster than the capacity to produce food and is thereby facing ultimate starvation. The doctor has certainly not received the estimates of the Kansas corn crop.

There has been much discussion as to the best method of rooting out anarchy, and for the most part we have looked across eyes at the foreigners while thus engaged. An Indiana preacher has brought the charge closer home however by the terse statement that anarchy is not born in Haymarket Square, Chicago, but in the homes in which boys are not taught to obey their parents.

A Frenchman, who has been weighing human brains says that he finds that the average weight of a woman's brain is considerably less than that of a man's. So far very good. He records the further discovery however that a man's brain begins to give away at forty-eight years, or over twenty years sooner than does a woman's. Some fellows never know when they have said enough.

The gain of the eleven religious denominations was 27.27 per cent during the last decade—considerably more than the gain in population—and there does not seem to be any reason for discouraging statements on the de-Christianizing of the United States says an exchange. There is doubtless loss of the Christian expressed by going to church twice on Sunday, but that practical Christianity which finds expression in contributions to religious and benevolent institutions of all kinds and in decent and sober living by the masses of the people was never stronger than to-day.

Against the contention that it is none of the employer's business how his clerks spend their money or their leisure time Secretary Shaw makes substantial protest. His order with respect to clerks in the Treasury Department who indulge in sports unbecoming to persons in their position, and more or less a menace to the public funds, is altogether commendable. It is neither judicious or reasonable to maintain in positions of trust men who engage in gambling at cards or who stake money upon the races. No doubt the clerks in the Treasury Department are, as a body, men of exemplary life and character. That in so large a body there are some whose habits are questionable is not strange. To eliminate these entirely may not be possible, but Secretary Shaw has shown a commendable spirit in an attempt looking to that end.—Oregonian.

The Newberg Graphic is one of the neatest and brightest Oregon weeklies that reaches out exchange table. It deserves better advertising patronage from the business men of Newberg than it gets.—Hood River Glacier.

Comment similar to the kind words expressed by the Glacier has often been made by our exchanges. It is also a fact that very few subscribers are ever lost after they once become readers of the Graphic. This is pretty conclusive evidence that the paper withstands the criticism of men who are in the business of making local newspapers, and it also meets the demands of the reading public in the field of its endeavor. The paper has a large circulation among the people who are tributary to Newberg, consequently the business man who cares to reach the eyes of the public can't have any kick on this score. It is generally conceded that the wise man who has something to sell does his best to let the public know about it, but there are several firms in town who at least don't believe in printer's ink. The Graphic would be glad to have them look at this question differently but since they seem to be pretty well satisfied to let things take their course in an easy going way, the only thing to do is to wait patiently for the coming of a class of men who believe in the liberal use of the advertising columns of the local paper.

Everest-Parrish Reunion.
A most enjoyable reunion of the Everest and Parrish families was held at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Everest east of town last Sunday, August 31. It was in the nature of a surprise party, being the sixty-seventh birthday of the host and it certainly came as a most pleasant celebration of the anniversary. The Union Cornet Band, the members of which are relatives of the above named families, furnished the music for the occasion in the good style for which these musicians are locally famous.

The guests began to assemble about 8:30 a. m. coming in all directions and distances with baskets filled with good things to eat, and spreading the table under the shade of the maple trees, a feast was provided that was sufficient to supply double the number and to tempt the appetite of the most fastidious epicure.

A splendid picture was secured of the entire company, with the beautiful surroundings of the Everest home, and the Chehalis mountains in the distance for a back ground.

Many choice presents were given Mr. Everest as tokens of regard, and as reminders of the old friendship of more than half a century.

Those present were Mr and Mrs. Robert Everest and two children, Mrs. David Everest, Mrs. Mary Brutscher, Mr and Mrs. Henry Parrett, Mr and Mrs. Richard Parrett and five children, Mr and Mrs. Luke McKern, Mr and Mrs. Michael McKern and daughter, Mr. Jas. Parrett, Mrs. Sam Parrett and two children, Mrs. Anne Gould and three children from Ballston, Mrs. Blaine Jones and three children, Mr Granville Everest and two children, Mrs. Geo. Ramsey and two children, Mr and Mrs. Mill Goum and three children, Mrs. Frank Hadley and two children, Mr and Mrs. Sam Parrett, Mr and Mrs. C. F. Mackie and daughter, Mr and Mrs. John Hask, Mrs. Bristow, Mr and Mrs. Alex. Acheson, Lillie McKern, Adelle Parrett, Richard Parrett, Jas. Parrett, Ellis Parrett, Herman Parrett, Freddie Parrett, Geo. Smith, Frank Jones, Chas. Bristow, Rufe Bristow, Mary Bristow, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Jack Smith, Henry Hagey, Mamie Grammes, Mrs. Emory Hodson, C. F. Moore. The guests left about 5 p. m., after wishing the entertainers the opportunity of doing the same way many more times in this life.
