THIRD STREET FRIDAY MORNING.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1902.

In a recent address upon arid land irrigation, J. J. Hill the railroad magnate gave expression to the terse epigram: "Land without population is a wilderness, and population without land, a mob." There is more truth here than would appear on first thought and much argument in favor of developing the great desert wastes of the West.

A Colorado scientist has figured out that the prevalence of forest fires in that state is due to falling meteors that strike the earth, explode, and start the fire. The Eugene Register remarks that here in Western Oregon it is believed that the "fallen" meteors have been and that they have not the kind of explosion which they set the fire that belongs to many localities.

The Saturday Evening Journal, Volume 1, Number 1, hails us from Beaverton, Washington county. It gives promise of being new and energetic. The editor says that above all he is going to make it a home paper, and makes a good start by strongly encouraging his readers to make the village attractive in appearance by setting out more shade trees. Good advice anywhere.

The political storm which Speaker Henderson has drawn about his head by declining a re-nomination to congress indicates the hard lines in the career of a congressman who has attained more or less prominence. He is not vouchsafed the boon of retiring gracefully in the face of fire but must hang on till he goes down in defeat. Some men have a hard time getting fed into the congressional mill, and some evidently have a harder time getting out without being ground out.

It is said that representatives of the Smith family have applied for space for exhibiting at the World's Fair, to be held in the city of the members of that great family when visiting the exposition. Some genuine statistics has figured out that there are 14,000,000 Smiths in the world, but of course the number who may visit the fair is undetermined. Here is an idea for the directors of the Lewis & Clark Centennial. Let them arrange for a Smith reunion and the success of the big fair is assured.

On certain days Oregon is humiliated by the lynching of the negro down in Coos county last week. The fend deserved all he received and the punishment was administered in a comparatively orderly manner, but the fact remains that it was at the same time administered after the manner of the half civilized state of society rather than after that of much boasted twentieth century civilization. The unfortunate incident will give the Southern fire eaters a good opportunity to rejoice "First cast out the beam that is in thine own eye."

The Springfield Republican says we have had no president in a generation who talked to the people with such unaffected freedom as does President Roosevelt. At times he verges on slang and it is evident that if the nation would not be shocked—kneecapped off its pins, so to speak—he would enjoy using it. It is difficult to imagine Presidents Cleveland, Harrison or McKinley, in public address, using even such colloquial expressions as "There is no earthly use" "I don't think you are built that way," and so on. As for George Washington—I bet Mr. Roosevelt used them and survives in the hearts of his countrymen.

In searching the records to discover the time it took to pass each of the fifteen amendments to the constitution, the New York Sun finds that the first ten, which were proposed in a bunch, took twenty-six months, the eleventh took forty months, the twelfth took nine months, the thirteenth took ten months, the fourteenth took twenty-five months, and the fifteenth took twelve months, or an average of twenty months and fifteen days for each. It says: "Supposing that the resolution of congress was adopted on March 1, 1906, and that average speed was made by the states in the ratification of the sixteenth or anti-trust amendment, that momentous change in the fundamental law and in the genius of our American institutions would be consummated, at the earliest, on November 16, 1908."

Two eminent scientists of the world are now in a battle royal to prove a theory. They are Dr. Garnault, of Paris, and Prof. Koch, of Berlin. Prof. Koch declares that consumption cannot be transmitted from an animal to a man, that the milk or meat of consumptive cattle are harmless. Dr. Garnault claims the contrary is true and is making a test of the matter by offering up his own life, if need be, to prove his theory. Last June he had himself inoculated with the tubercle bacillus of a consumptive cow and at this time claims he has consumption. The Pasteur Institute of Paris says he has a clear case of consumption, while Dr. Koch says he has no faith in the experiment. The French doctor has great courage to subject himself to the dreaded disease in the interests of science, but he says that if humanity is to be benefited thereby he is willing to give up his life.

Additional Local.

The familiar face of J. R. Smith has been seen about town during the past week.

Mrs. S. C. Johnson advertises a special opening of fall millinery for Saturday.

A. M. Hoskins contemplates returning to the Rogue river country for the winter.

T. H. Gardner and daughters drove down to Portland last Saturday for a short visit with relatives.

Wm. Pickering, brother of Mrs. Allen Smith, visited the Smith children in Portland this week.

H. H. Wiseloff and family got home Sunday evening from Sheridan where he had been overseeing taking care of the hop crop on his old place.

We have the finest line of box stationary this year ever brought to Newberg and at prices never heard of here before. C. F. Moore & Co.

Dr. H. B. Clough writes that his father-in-law, John Brown and wife will arrive here in a few weeks to make their home with us during the winter.

Wesley Boyce of Gervais, son-in-law of Rev. T. Brouillette, has rented the Walter Kirk house opposite Joseph Wilson's.

Late word from W. K. Allen at Boise, Idaho indicates an immense crop of prunes and that the driers will start up in a few days with a full force of workers.

Hazel and Beryl Hobson of Sumpter left Wednesday morning after a visit with relatives in this vicinity. Their sister Edna will study music in Portland this winter.

Lewis Hiett who was a resident of Newberg some ten years ago but who has been living at Watcom, Washington, for some years is in town and will probably remain for some time.

Earl Hanson who recently brought a band of horses down from Arlington to Sherwood for sale, came up on the train Wednesday evening and visited with relatives over night.

Strayed—From my place in Newberg a large cream colored Jersey cow, with white spot in forehead and white on her breast, 2 years old. Suitable reward will be given for information that leads to recovery. A. N. Pressman.

A McMinville youth while engaged in jumping on and off the train Monday morning got his foot caught under a car wheel and so badly mashed that it may have to be amputated. A few Newberg lads should take warning.

One of the greatest treats of the season will be given on the evening of October 10th when the lawyers, doctors, bankers and preachers will contest for a medal at Craters hall. Some of the best musical talent the town affords will assist in making this the best contest held in the city. Come and hear it.

McMinville, Sheridan and Dallas are all contemplating putting in new water systems. The system now in use in the county seat, whereby water is pumped over town from the Yamhill river, is unsatisfactory, the annual expense for wood alone being over three thousand dollars, to say nothing of salaries. The council is now figuring on the feasibility of securing the city's future water supply from Baker Creek, a mountain stream a few miles west of town. A good mountain spring of water near at hand such as Newberg has, is a blessing which can hardly be over estimated.

Ed Lamson, who figured extensively in politics at Williams last June, was in town Wednesday and made the Sun office a call. Ed has been out in the mountains fighting fires the past two weeks. Mr. Lamson has several head of cattle, and says the fire has ruined the pasture for this year, but he is pretty well fixed for feed as he put up 600 tons of hay for winter feeding. Mr. Lamson is trying to get the stockmen in this vicinity to go in with him and seed the burned range to grass this fall. He says he will sell one hundred sacks of grass seed himself, or more if necessary. In one of two instances where people could not afford to buy the seed, Mr. Lamson offered to buy the seed if they would help him sow it.—Sheridan Sun.

Miss Mendenhall makes the following church announcement: During the winter months the Sunday night services in the Friends church will be directed along a definite line. The subject and teachings of Christ will be the subject of thought. The work will be directed so as to afford opportunity for systematic home Bible study for those who care for it. Topics and references for home study will be announced a week ahead so that those who wish may engage in definite reading during the week. It is by no means the intention to organize a formal class nor will the services take the nature of a recitation. It continues to be a church service of devotional character, the thought of the evening being presented in the form of a sermon or of a Bible lesson with occasional blackboard use. Explanation of purpose and method will be given at the opening of the services on the night of Oct. 5. All are cordially invited to attend regularly or as opportunity offers and to participate helpfully in these services.

Harry Gardner has rented the Webber cottage across the street from Henry Ehret's house, and will occupy it this winter with his sister Miss Mabel who will attend college.

Tablets are the best and larger this year than ever before. We bought a large sample line and have a lot of ten cent tablets we sell for five cents. C. F. Moore & Co.

Oscar Allen says that while the prune crop is much shorter than usual the quality of the fruit is good and with an advance of 50 per cent in price over last year the shortage will be about equalized.

A good share of the Newberg passengers on the local train have got in the habit of getting off in the evening back of the public school where the train stops to uncouple. This is merely a pointer on where a new depot building should be built.

And That Was Irish Too.

The Oregon City Enterprise is authority for the following:

People will sometimes do things upon an occasion of dire extremity that are attested by circumstances which excite one's humorous nature. Out at Spring-wash last week, at a time when the wife of every body should have been at their knees in order to save property from destruction by fire, a lady, whose home was being reduced to ashes, was noticed wandering aimlessly about the premises with a small object wrapped in her apron. She was heard often to remark that "the poor thing should not perish." After the work was over her friends induced her to reveal the secret of the carefully wrapped object, which proved to be a six-week-old pig. Never attempting once to save an article from her home, so crazed was she from excitement, that her thoughts extended to nothing more than saving the life of an innocent pig. Intent upon accomplishing some good, her energies, unaware to herself, were directed to that one mission. This story is told by one whose reputation for veracity is unquestioned in the neighborhood.

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

To Buy an Organ for Nothing

Now, you may consider that an absurd statement, but it is nevertheless a true one. This is the proposition: We have some fifty organs that have been used but slightly. Nevertheless, they have been thoroughly renovated by us as to be in all intents and purposes new instruments.

You can secure one of these organs at these greatly reduced prices by paying only $5 or $10 down and $3 or $4 monthly until paid for, and

After you have had your organ for two years, and have learned to play, you can return it to us as part payment on any piano in our house you wish to purchase, and receive full credit for every cent that you have paid on it.

Now, isn't that a little bit more than fair?

Here is a partial list of our organs: Ithica $38; Storey & Clark $54; New England $29; Smith American Chapel $36; Ferrand & Votey $40; Genuine Starr $12; A. B. Chase $22; Smith American $33; Kimball $39; Kimball, good as new $36; Chicago Cottage, good as new $28; Chicago Cottage used six months, $36. Order one today.
