The Gobbler's Address.

Friends and fellow sufferers, I come not here to talk. You know too well. The story of our throbbles. We are slaves; The bright sun rises to his course and lights a face of slaves—up a tree! He sets, and his last beams fall on a slave—legislature heretofore has been the passing of real laws, and yet we have no goal reached worth mentioning. This is very much to the point, but too much responsibility must not be shifted to the shoulders of fallible state legislators.

It is no unusual thing to hear the remark made that Portland people make very little attempt at giving the glad hand to the multitude of people who are coming to Oregon, while on the other hand the people of Seattle are ever ready to drop business if necessary and talk for Seattle and the whole state of Washington and make the new comer feel that he is among friends and that he is really wanted as a home builder.

In a conversation held a few days ago when the Lewis and Clark fair was being discussed the statement was made that Oregon needs more manufacturers; that in order to create the demand for them we must have a greater population and that the fair would be the means of advertising the country and bringing in more people.

The Newberg Graphic last week completed its fourteenth year, twelve of which it has been under its present management. Few papers of the Willamette Valley are in all respects as reliable or come as near being all right all the time as the Graphic, and much of the high moral standing of Newberg may be traced directly to the little paper published by the Woodwards.—Reporter.

An Evening with the Puritans.

One of the successful social events of the season occurred Tuesday evening, when the ladies of the Wednesday club entertained their husbands and a few guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Turner.

The program of the evening consisted of songs, anecdotes of Puritan days, scenes from the "Courtship of Miles Standish," and before the curtain dropped for the evening, the ladies presented a climax of sandwiches, doughnuts and pumpkin pie.

The gentlemen pronounced the affair a grand success, and the ladies, well, it was just like the Wednesday club to make it a success.

Are Diseases Incurable?

Osteopathy cures outright eighty per cent of the disease abandoned as "incurable" by other systems of treatment. We are prepared to stand by this statement; it is true. The question then, of incurable disease needs a fresh discussion. The first step of the empirical practitioner is a poor guide. What is incurable with one doctor may be curable with another. This is very frequently the case between Medical and Osteopathic treatment.

"The way to build roads is to build them," says an exchange, "and to get at it with the understanding that it will take a long time and cost a great deal of money. If this fact could be impressed upon the Oregon legislators, to devote next winter, it would perhaps save a lot of useless tinkering with the road laws. The chief business of Oregon incurability, as a quality of disease, is, therefore, materially modified by Osteopathic theory and practice. Indeed, there is no disease incurable in the sense which the Osteopath would pronounce unconditionally, and from its nature, incurable. There is still a difference between an incurable disease and an incurable patient. An incurable patient is one in whose organism the disease has progressed too far for the organism to withstand the reaction to order.

Osteopathy seeks, first and last, to restore order by control of the action and reaction of the nerves. If the organism cannot stand this action and reaction, then a cure is not easy, though the disease itself may be easily controlled. The limits of cure are therefore not in the disease, but in the body. Thus, again, a patient may be incurable when excessive druging has depressed the vital force and prevents the expression of natural disease by producing drug symptoms in addition; and a patient may be incurable where the vitality is too low to react. Curability is always a question of vitality. It is never a question of medicine. Medicine has no vitality. It most frequently depletes vitality. It has no reactionary power; even this is in the nerves. Osteopathy builds on vitality. It seeks through diet and hygiene, and its own treatment to increase vitality, and then by the mastery of the nerves to control and distribute this vitality to the affected parts.

Along this line I would say—do not confuse Osteopathy with "Suggestion." They are two entirely different methods of treatment. I am always glad to give information in regard to the Science of Osteopathy and will be pleased to meet anyone who desires to learn further about this method of treatment. Consultation or a careful examination will cost you nothing.

A Thanking Dinner.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, exposes the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour regurgitation and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. Every business man should have an advertisement in the local paper, even if it is nothing more than a card stating his name and the business he is engaged in. It helps sustain the paper, and lets the people at a distance know that the town is full of business men. The paper finds its way into thousands of places where hand bills never reach. A card in a paper is a traveling sign board and can be seen by every reader. Think of this and let your light shine.—Ex.

A Runaway Bicycle. Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. E. Orin, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stabular ulcer, any leading to doctors and remedies for four years. An exchange tells of a rather bashful young woman who went into a store carrying three chickens. She inquired the price of chickens and at the same time put them out on the counter. The clerk didn't know the chickens' feet were tied and asked if they would lay there. She bit her handkerchief, blushed and ducked her head as she said: "N-no air, they are roosters."

W. I. Investigator. A remarkable case comes to light at Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there by name of G. W. Roberts had long suffered with incurable cancer. Everybody believed his case hopeless until he used Electric Bilets and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. The treatment cured him completely. Now everybody who knows it is investigating Electric Bilets. It exerts a mighty power to expel biliousness, kidney and liver troubles and it's a wonderful tonic for run down systems. Don't fail to try it. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Caldwell & Co. druggists.
