Ed. Parish has sold his farm three miles East of Newberg to a German Methodist preacher from Seattle. He has until next June to give possession but will probably move before that time.

W. F. Bell advertises a public sale of his personal effects, including stock and farming implements, to take place on the Frank place four miles east of Newberg, on Saturday, November 23, at 10 o'clock. George Bell, the old gentleman, will go to Seattle to live with one of his daughters.

E. W. Hall has posters out announcing a public sale of his personal property, to take place at his farm one mile west of Newberg, on Tuesday, December 2nd, beginning at 12 o'clock. He will make a clean sweep, which includes horses, cattle, hogs, goats, vehicles, farming implements, household and kitchen furniture.

Mrs. Melissa Butler, aged forty-five years, wife of Charles F. Butler, died at her home in Newberg, Sunday evening, November 23, after an illness of a little more than two days. On Friday afternoon while dressing to go to the photographer's, with a view of having a picture taken of the family, she was taken suddenly ill and died as stated above. A post-mortem examination revealed the fact that a clot of blood on the brain was the seat of the trouble. The deceased leaves a husband, two daughters and a little son, besides a father and several brothers and sisters to mourn her loss. The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held at the Friends church, of which she was a member, on Tuesday afternoon, the services being conducted by Miss Alice A. Mandenhall, the pastor.

Hallstones as large as medium sized marbles fell at this place Sunday afternoon accompanied by a moderate electric display and thunder shower. Hallstones of this size are indeed a rarity in Oregon. No damage resulted as far as we have learned.—North Yamhill Record.

Will E. Wright, who has been in Alaska seeking for the yellow metal for two years, arrived home about midnight Monday night. He arrived in Portland too late for the evening train and being too impatient to get home to his family to wait for the morning boat, he started out on foot and made the trip in five and a half hours.

On Tuesday evening, December 2, at the Friends church will be given the third and last number of the course of entertainments arranged by the ladies of the church. The entertainment will be both musical and elocutionary, the reader, Miss Matlock, and the musician, Miss Lytle, being Portland young ladies highly accomplished in their line of work.

The inmates of the College boarding hall have displayed commendable enterprise in co-operating and overhauling and refurbishing the hall parlor. In honor of the change, Miss Ella Macy, matron, entertained the friends and "patrons" of the hall on Saturday evening and again on Monday evening. The first event was participated in largely by the college students, while the young people from the town made merry Monday evening, both occasions being the source of much enjoyment. The guests added to the parlor furnishings by the donation of an elegant wall mirror, a fine wicker rocking chair, music stand, pictures and sundry sofa pillows of various designs.

Colton, International College secretary, E. W. Peck, Minnesota state secretary, A. S. Allen, general secretary, Seattle, Washington, E. L. House, pastor of First Congregational Church, Portland, and Wallace H. Lee, president of Albany College. E. T. Colton and E. W. Peck are men of wide reputation in association work. The other speakers are also men of power.

During the summer when the water was low and power was short for the mills at Oregon City, a dam, some six feet in height, was built on the solid rock circling round just above the falls and so nearly all the water was turned from its natural course that a man could walk around the falls below the dam, and a tourist would be led to believe that he had been deceived by the magnificent pictures of the falls he had seen in the magazines. But with the coming of the early and the latter rains all is changed. The mad rush of water goes rolling and tumbling over the falls, no dam of human construction is to be seen and no picture does justice to the great falls of the Willamette as they are viewed from the deck of a passing steamer.

A Portland man who is pretty well acquainted with the conditions existing in Newberg said to the writer recently, "Don't you think Newberg would grow more rapidly if you would license saloons in the town?" The answer was that there were four or five towns in Yamhill county that were old towns before Newberg was "born" and that while no man ever went dry in any of these towns on account of a lack of saloons, they had grown but little in twenty years, while Newberg, without the help(?) of saloons had forged ahead and outstripped all of them so far they were completely distanced. All the answer the Portland man gave was a broad grin. "Some people are no doubt honest in the belief that saloons help make business lively in a town but they are mistaken. Saloons don't help any legitimate business. Saloon men are always ready and anxious to get in and do business in every nook and corner of the universe, and more especially in towns where a spirit of thrift and push is manifested, but no man can show where groggeries "make business" except for the police and criminal courts. The theory is all bosh and while some may be honest in the belief, just touch the man who advocates it and nine times out of ten you will touch a man who likes to tip a beer mug himself.
