Newberg—And Something of Its Business Men and Interests.

Newberg is known far and near as a town of thrift and industry. It has always been known as a busy town, and what there has been a rattling of bones...

Back of the various enterprises which have been fostered here have always been the business men of Newberg. As a rule they have been liberal and open handed when the best interests of the town and vicinity have been concerned.

With our appreciation, one not directly connected with the Graphic has written up something in regard to a number of Newberg's business men, and his contribution follows:

C. B. Wilson, Grocerman.

That an intelligent public is quick to see, and responds readily to the merchant that identifies himself with its best interests, is well told in the favor and patronage tendered C. B. Wilson the grocerman and live purveyor of the town. The exceptionally neat and inviting premises are ever, replete with a full, varied and toothsome assortment of groceries provisions and table delicacies, where maid or patron get the same courteous and prompt attention.

The Chehalum Valley Mills.

A manufacturer of flour and grain products, the Chehalum Valley Mills occupies substantially the business and commercial center of Newberg. It has a capacity for grinding 150,000 bushels annually. The commodious plant is well arranged for four story building and is equipped with the best machinery and appliances needed to turn out high grade articles of food supplies.

C. F. Moore, Druggist.

The intelligent public will quickly concede the importance of being in close touch with a well appointed drug store, that is under careful and painstaking management. Such a drug establishment is the one under the ownership of our well known druggist C. F. Moore, who has been fulfilling his mission to the satisfaction of an appreciative clientele since 1886, being the oldest druggist in town, carrying complete lines of drugs, chemicals, medicines, cosmetics and druggists' sundries, school and office supplies, kydaks etc. The prescription department of the house is under especially vigilant management, and C. F. Moore has the confidence of the people as a retail druggist he is amply prepared to meet the wants of the trade in every way.

Mrs. and Miss Horton, Milliners.

It is not only a source of convenience but also of pleasure for the fair sex to be in reach of talented milliners like Mrs. Horton of Portland and Miss Horton of Minnetonka, who have recently established as milliners in Newberg under the firm name of Mrs. and Miss Horton, Millinery. They are both accomplished milliners and will soon exhibit the season's most artistic effects in their artistic branch.

The Bank of Newberg.

It is doubtful if the average person is cognizant of, and fully appreciates the great service given to the merchant, farmer, manufacturer and to commerce in general, by the solvent, well organized and efficiently managed banking institutions of to-day, each acting with the part in its respective city, town or community. In Newberg we have the Bank of Newberg, which is performing well its function, affording its patrons every service compatible with sound banking. It is a source of gratification to the community that the bank's capital stock and surplus of $31,800. It is officered by conservative and alert men with B. C. Miles as president, E. H. Woodward, vice president and secretary, and J. C. Wood, cashier. The bank and its officers have the confidence of the public.

C. C. Smith, Photographer.

Possibly it may appear that a vivacious photographer uses the same general methods in operating that all are alike. But this is no more true than that pen, ink and paper make the same author. The artistic egotism shown by photographer C. C. Smith at his inviting gallery and studio illustrates his tact and knowledge of photography. Of course equipment and experience are vital ingredients success requires. More than these is the worth of perception, a knack for posing that distinguishes the artist from the ordinary camera snapper. It is these faculties for likeness making that have brought "Smith" into good repute as a gifted photographer.

A. N. Pressnell, Laundryman.

Among the business men that are acting well the "role" they have taken up in the business arena of Newberg is A. N. Pressnell, proprietor and business manager of the Newberg Steam Laundry. He has a roomy and well arranged plant and is equipped for giving good service to the appreciative public of Newberg, with agencies at near by points. The busy delivery wagon is seen early and late scaling corners at a double quick gait, gathering up and then returning lines and family washing faultlessly laundered. That Mr. Pressnell's efforts to please the public in catering to its needs in affording a good laundry service are appreciated is best told in the run of business patronage that he has acquired.

Hodson Bros., Gents' Clothers and Furnishers.

A well regulated and complete establishment that contributes to the exigencies of the purchasing public of Newberg is the clothing and gents' furnishing house, that exists as the consummation of the thrift and business tact of the Hodson Bros., Newberg's leading dealers in men's, boys' and gents' clothing, hats, furnishings and shoes, making it a truly complete house where the masculine sex can be made comfortable or presentable for society from head to foot; where any of the several lines always comprise "honest values" and reasonable and serviceable wares. These facts together with the business principles that have ever characterized the career of Hodson Bros. toward their fellowmen, have given this old establishment prestige with the trade.

R. B. Linville, Racket Store.

Among the well ordered mercantile houses of Newberg that are active and in close touch with the consuming public is the Racket Store. R. B. Linville, the owner, is a well posted merchant who handles a complete assortment of goods, including "everything" for "everybody" and where the mistress of the home finds a manifold list of articles, wares and stencils that can not be had elsewhere. The varied stock of merchandise is ever clean and seasonable and kept up to a good standard. Mr. Linville is favorably known to the trade and is tendered a goodly portion of the patronage both in and out of town.

M. H. Pinney, Lumber Yard.

Identified with his chosen branch in the business field of Newberg, supplying the local trade, is M. H. Pinney with a yard on the railroad near the depot, where is handled rough and dressed lumber of all dimensions suitable to meet promptly the needs of the building trade in a general way. And since Mr. Pinney commenced to look after this end of the business here, his conservative and vigilant endeavor to treat people right and to fill orders promptly both in and out of town, has secured for him a run of patronage and the esteem of those whom it has been his privilege to supply.

A. E. Moomaw & Son, General Hardware.

The above named gentlemen are associated with the trade of hardware here as live and staunch representatives of a neat, substantial and very suitable building, that is stocked with merchantable and cosmopolitan lines of general hardware, mechanics' tools, stoves, ranges and house furnishings, harness, saddlery, paints, oils as well as implements and vehicles. A. E. Moomaw & Son are successors to W. C. Kruger who established the house in 1887. Messrs. Moomaw & Son are abreast with the times, as the splendid stock and the general tone of the house at once suggests, and of course are the recipients of an enviable share of the retail trade of this part of the county.

Elliott & Leavitt, Tinners and Plumbers.

The above firm have just launched out for business patronage in Newberg, as successors to F. H. Storey, though Mr. Van Leavitt has been associated with the house for the past five years. Being experienced artisans and practical men, those who entrust any business to their charge may feel sure of honest workmanship and a square deal. They have a well fitted shop and will carry a good stock of fixtures and supplies necessary for the execution of any contract tendered the firm as tanners, roofers and plumbers. And beside the firm trade they will go to any convenient point outside for business. The members of the firm individually are Van Leavitt and F. A. Elliott.

Ehret Bros., Druggists.

Of the mercantile houses of Newberg that are being successfully conducted, we assume to remark that none enjoy a more appreciative constituency than do Ehret Bros. now in business here two years, who have by polite and attentive treatment, some positive, with trade as retail dealers in dry goods, notions and shoes, for all conditions of people. The commodious store room is bright and inviting, where the Ehret Bros. invariably show a reasonable and wholesome stock of the staple and the most fashionable effects and the finer and better grades of goods. The stock of shoes is especially attractive to women and children and is perhaps the largest and best selected assortment of foot wear carried in town, which includes the "6 Star" brand that is universally popular. Messrs. Ehret are natives of South Dakota.

F. A. Morris, Newberg Land Company.

The growth and development of any town, city or community is due, in a large measure to the knowledge and activities of its real estate men. In Newberg, associated with the real estate interests, we find the Newberg Land Co., doing a general real estate, land and insurance business, in which a number of our well known and reliable citizens are officiating. Mr. F. A. Morris being the active agent or business manager in charge of details. The company has listed at its pleasant office, the best town and country properties hereabout and has been successful in securing ready to advise with them in consultation, whether you wish to buy, sell or exchange. The company does as well a general insurance business.

A. B. Cooper—Meat Market.

To be accessible to a well conducted market, in all respects, is a source of much satisfaction to the housewife and is all the more worthy of a liberal patronage. The Meat Market that's run by A. B. Cooper is run on just such a basis. At the neat and clean market is always to be found the choicest and most toothsome fresh and cured meats, and kindred supplies. A. B. Cooper has been swinging the cleaver and saw in the interests of town folk for the past two years, ever assiduous and civil in handling his daily business as butcher and dealer in live stock and fresh and cured meats with ample facilities at hand.

The Newberg Bakery is also operated by him with a continuous oven, and is offering the trade bread, cakes, pies and pastries of the most tempting and dainty kinds.

T. B. Duncan & Son.

The bicycle dealer like the bicycle is a product of modern times, and like all modern vocations it takes men of a higher order of enterprise and business sagacity to win. The sale of bicycles, guns, the arms and ammunition are rightly looked after here by our well versed and energetic firm T. B. Duncan & Son who pride themselves each year on showing the latest and best makes and effects, in wheels and guns, rifles and sporting goods. The firm's roomy saleroom is always replete with a good stock and the latest models. Hence T. B. Duncan & Son have in both departments of the house a liberal and complete line of goods.

H. J. Austin, Newberg Meat Market.

To visit the Newberg Meat Market is but simple proof of the tact and fitness of H. J. Austin the proprietor to cater in this line of food supplies. The cleanly Market is always inviting, where is found the best dressed and smoked meats that money and experience can obtain. This together with the civility and promptness that invariably attends the business dealings of H. J. Austin towards all—has been an incentive to make friends and customers for the Newberg Market right along, since he assumed charge of the business in Newberg one year ago.

Commercial Estates.

It is doubtful if any one branch of business is more indispensable, or of more importance to a city or town from either a business or pleasure standpoint than a well ordered Livery Stable. A Livery, Sale and Feed Stable of this calibre is doing business in Newberg at the old stand under the direction of its owners Grames Bros., meeting the demands of the public in a creditable way, with a good barn and well arranged for "man's best friend."

The Newberg Pressed Brick Factory.

The above plant is operated by an incorporated stock company, with Jesse Edwards at its head as president, and O. K. Edwards, superintendent. The company owns many acres of the finest red, white and buff clay lands in the state, and with an up-to-date plant with a daily press capacity of 20,000 bricks, is making and marketing building and ornamental dry pressed brick of a superior quality and finish, that finds ready sale over the state. It comprises the standard and Roman shapes and four distinct colors, red, white, buff and chocolate, and has been used exclusively in many of Portland's larger and more pretentious public and private buildings. Hence, with an abundance of material and all round good facilities, the Newberg Pressed Brick Factory is transacting annually a volume of business that is a credit to its management and at the same time enhances materially the general welfare of our town, both from a manufacturing and commercial point of view.

Newberg Creamery.

The business project that appears under the above caption had its inception here three years ago, for which the town is indebted to Atkinson Bros., for its contributions in an appreciative way to Newberg's business welfare. Messrs. Atkinson Bros. have their own dairy farm where is kept from 30 to 40 head of cows, besides buying the surplus milk of the dairymen and ranchers of the adjacent country. At the creamery here they are equipped with the necessary appliances for separating and producing pure creamery butter that finds a ready sale in the Portland market, beside much older brands than their popular "Imperial Brand." Atkinson Bros. are agents for the De Laval separator.

T. B. Cummings & Co., Furniture and Undertaking.

Pleasantly located in neat and well lighted quarters in the business center, T. B. Cummings & Co. pose as exponents of furniture and house furnishings, well paper, paints and oils, as well as being general directors, undertakers and embalmers. They carry a good standard of goods, with all the requisites necessary to fit out a cottage or mansion complete. They are accorded a volume of business that only comes to the man or firm whose efforts are energetic and whose dealings with the trade are straightforward. The firm is doubling its floor space with a new addition, as its capable undertakers they are confident of the strict sense of duty that devolves upon them.

D. C. Fletcher, Blacksmith.

The business public of Newberg and country about, find in the general blacksmithing shop that is run by D. C. Fletcher a place where they get good workmanship, fair dealings, and prompt service along the lines of general blacksmithing, horse shoeing, wagon and carriage work and repairing. D. C. Fletcher is occupying a well fitted shop where he has good facilities at hand for meeting the demands of the business in his several departments. He controls more particularly a larger share of horse shoeing at this point, from a class of trade that responds to the man that "does things right."

Chehalum Valley Bank.

What is a bank? A bank may be public or private. The former is a corporation organized under the national and state laws. The latter is private partnership. In either case the bank receives your money, makes loans, discounts, buys and sells exchange, makes collections, transmits money from one side of the world to the other, and in fact engages itself in every kind of monetary transactions. The Chehalum Valley Bank is a creditably managed bank subserving the better interests of the general public, doing a general banking arranged bank building is well situated, convenient to the shopping and trading center. Its officers are: A. H. Mills, president; J. C. McCrea, vice president; S. M. Calkins, cashier.

Eugene Field's

Views on Ambition and Dyspepsia.

"Dyspepsia," wrote Eugene Field, "often incapacitates a man for endeavor and sometimes extinguishes the fire of ambition." Though great despite his complaint Field suffered from indigestion all his life. A weak, tired stomach can't digest your food. It needs rest. You can only get it by the use of a preparation like Kodak, which relieves it of work by digesting your food. Rest soon restores it to its normal tone. Strengthening. Satisfying. Invigorating. Prepared only by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. Each bottle contains 24 single dose tablets. For Sale by F. H. Caldwell & Co.

Now Is The Time. Bring in the old watch and have it fixed up while you are not needing it and I have plenty of time to do it in—we will both be busier later. How is the old case on it? Doesn't it let in lots of dirt? I'll clean your watch and put on a new dust proof nickel case for $2.00 during the next 30 days. Glenn Winslow, Jeweler-Optician.
