The Graphic appeared a little late last week, the delay being caused by some substantial changes that have been made in the office machinery. A Hoe cylinder press has been put in to take the place of the hand press and a water motor will in the future furnish power, for both the newspaper and the job presses. With these changes all the old stuff that went to make up the office outfit a few years ago is now closed out and the Graphic is better prepared than ever before for newspaper and job work. Our friends are invited to call at the office when in town to say "howdy" and see how we are fixed for work. "No trouble to show goods."

Continued and acrimonious discussion has had a tendency to cause the troubled waters of Salem to smell as bad as they taste.

In Saturday's Oregonian Dr. Woods Hutchinson, secretary of the State Board of Health, gives a full and convincing answer to Banker J. H. Albert's bluff of "put up or shut up," anent the Salem water supply controversy. The doctor has the facts to show and knows how to use them. To an impartial observer it would seem that if Salem people would spend half the energy in setting bad conditions right, that they have exerted in wildly denying the statement of the State Board, they would have done their cause more good, and would not have given their fair city half the unwelcome advertising which they so deplore.

Prof. E. R. Lake of the Oregon Agricultural College, a man with a keen insight and a level head, takes issue with State Superintendent Ackerman on the question of introducing the study of agriculture in the public school curriculum. He maintains that the schools are already overloaded, and thinks that if the study of agriculture be introduced, so should the study of other great national industries such as mining, transportation, and manufacturing. He is right. The mission of the public schools is not that of primary technical institutions, which they would become, imperfectly, if such a precedent be adopted as that advocated by Mr. Ackerman.

Since the diverting incident of Monday morning, there has been more or less talk about town in favor of an all night electric light service. The audacious work of the safe wreckers shows how desirable is such a service. The night, dark and foggy, was just right for the deed planned, not only that it was suitable to the work of the burglars themselves, but also that the utter darkness and fog tended to make citizens uncertain and conservative about molesting them. As one who lives in the vicinity of the bank expressed it to the members of the crowd that gathered about him telling what they would have done, "I tell you boys, a little light makes a whole lot of difference in how a fellow feels about such business." Electric light might not have prevented the attempt made to burglarize the Bank of Newberg, but even if the arc light on that corner had been put out of business, other lights shining over town would have tended greatly to clarify the situation. Let there be light.

named Brown, and went on their way toward Portland. They were met by persons in the neighborhood who say there were three men in the party. The fellows turned the horses loose in a field a short ways out from the city. One of the Heaton boys says that one of the men has a remarkably large foot, which tallies well with the measurement which Marshal Joe Woods took of a boot track north of town early Monday morning. If the horse thieves and bank robbers are the same parties, they must have spent Monday in some canyon of Chehalem mountain.

The bank has carried heavy insurance for several years in the Bankers Mutual Casualty Co. of Des Moines, Iowa, which covers injuries to vault and safe as well as loss of money by night robbery or daylight holdup, and consequently the bank would not have been crippled if the robbers had succeeded in carrying off the cash. It is rather remarkable that so little damage was done to the building, for neither of the large plate glass windows was broken and the furniture was not materially injured.

A new vault door is already on the ground and will be put in place at once. The safe which stood the test was of the National make and when it was purchased was considered the best on the market. An order has been placed with the Diebold Safe & Lock Co. for an up-to-date safe to take the place of the old one. The First National Bank of Portland, which carries on deposit more cash than any other banking institution in Oregon, has a new safe of this make, which is a good recommendation for its staying qualities.

Teachers Annual Institute.

The annual teachers institute for Yamhill county will be held in McMinnville commencing on November 4th and continuing three days.

Prof. H. A. Adrian of Wisconsin, has been engaged as one of the instructors and President B. F. Mulkey of the Ashland Normal as the other instructor.

Regular work with several professional lectures will be given throughout the sessions and in the evenings lectures will be given by the instructors. Prof. Adrian will deliver a lecture on the subject of "A Day in Congress in War Time" and Prof. Mulkey will deliver a lecture on "The Wisdom of the Ancients."

Prof. C. H. Jones of the Oregon Teachers Monthly will lead the singing. All teachers of the county are expected to be present and all persons are invited to all the meetings.

SUICIDE COMMITTED.

Miss Millie Holst Takes Her Life on the Streets of Newberg by Drinking Carbolic Acid.

The people of Newberg were shocked last Saturday evening near the hour of eight o'clock by the report that Miss Millie Holst had attempted suicide, and again an hour or more later by the intelligence that her attempt had been successful.

When her actions first attracted attention she was walking back and fourth in front of Bal-siger Bros.' store, evidently in great distress. She was accosted by Mr. Zimmerman who asked her if she was in trouble. She replied that she had taken carbolic acid. "Accidentally?" he asked. "No," she replied, "I'm tired of life." Three or four other men hurried up and she was carried across the street to the hotel where she had formerly been employed. Doctors Clough and Littlefield were summoned who had her removed to her home adjoining the Advent church. All they could do for her availed nothing and she soon died.

It was never suspected that Miss Holst was a prey to despondency and her tragic end was the more a surprise. As is usual in such cases, inquiries as to the cause of the deed soon became frequent. The only clue to be found was in connection with her relations to one Sam Gaunt of McMinnville, with whom she had been on more or less intimate terms for some months past. She had just been down to the telephone office, when it is understood that she called the fellow up and asked him to come down to Newberg the following day, Sunday, he replying that he could not come.

About this time she stepped into the postoffice and inquired for their mail, and to all appearances was in her usual good spirits. She went on up the street and drank the three ounces of carbolic acid which she had purchased at the drugstore at six o'clock in the evening.

It will be remembered that the wife of the man Gaunt committed suicide in McMinnville over a year ago by taking arsenic, at the same time that Miss Nannie Ungerman, courted and won death by the same method. It is stated that at the time of that double tragedy, the general feeling was pretty strong against him, and though it is not just to charge anyone with being the cause of such a calamity without direct evidence, it is safe to say that the third tragedy will not render the reputation of the man any more savory.

The funeral services were held at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock and were conducted by Rev. F. C. Stanard, a large audience being present. The immediate relatives left by the deceased are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Holst, a sister, Miss Jennie, and her grandmother, Mrs. Marie Holst. The deceased was twenty-one years of age.

A Perfectly Painless Pill

is the one that will cleanse the system, set the liver to action, remove the bile, clear the complexion, cure headache and leave a good taste in the mouth. The famous little pills for doing such work pleasantly and effectually are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Bob Moore of La Fayette, Ind., says: "All other pills I have used gripe and sicken, while DeWitt's Little Early Risers are simply perfect." Sold by Caldwell & Co.
