C. B. Wilson invites the ladies of Newberg to call at Mount's hardware store and examine a fine line of Indian baskets, which are offered for sale.

Dr. Harry Littlefield has received word that his prospective partner, Dr. Romig of Michigan, has been unexpectedly delayed, and will not be here for some time yet.

Rev. and Mrs. B. F. Hinshaw of Marion, are visiting here this week with their daughter, Mrs. L. S. Hanson. They intend to leave the middle of the month for a trip to Southern California.

S. Hitchen, who bought the L. W. Harger West Chehalem farm, arrived with his family from Minnesota a few days ago, prepared to take possession. He brought a car through with him.

M. Ross, who purchased the J. C. Kirk place east of town in the spring, returned with his family from Minnesota a few days ago, prepared to locate. The family has been visiting for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Metcalf.

Mrs. Bertran Wilsey and daughter Ella, from North Yamhill, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Sykes and family Saturday and Sunday. Formerly they were neighbors in Michigan, but had not met for about eighteen years.

The local ministers' association has arranged for a union Thanksgiving service to be held at the Friends church on Thanksgiving day. The program will be published later. The sermon will be preached by Rev. Brouillette of the Presbyterian church.

W. R. Gregg, who has made his home here for a year or two, and who has been failing in health for some time, died Monday. He was an Oregon pioneer and an Indian War veteran. The remains were interred in the Pleasant Hill cemetery, Clackamas county, Tuesday.

The Rhoton brothers, who have had the J. S. Larkin farm northwest of town rented for the past year, advertise a public sale of their stock and general effects to take place next Monday, beginning at 10 o'clock a.m. The younger brother, Allen, is arranging to remove to northwestern Washington.

Howard Williams' house caught fire from a defective flue Saturday afternoon and a lively blaze was on the way when prompt attention and a little water squelched it. Chance Grame won the standing offer of one dollar for having the first team at the city hall, hooking on to the hose cart, and taking it to the fire. The alarm brought out a big crowd in short order.

Rev. M. Burlingame who recently traded his town property for a place in Clackamas county, concluded that Newberg was too good a place to leave. He accordingly traded a part of his farm to James Lewelling for the latter's two acre tract in the southern part of town, and the rest of it for L. S. Heacock's fruit dryer and small tract in the same part of town. He also bought a small piece of Mrs. Farquhar, thus securing a barn. He will proceed at once to build a cottage on his new property.

A. E. Moore and family left Tuesday morning for Chico, California, where they intend to reside for a year at least. If they are well suited with that location they will probably sell out here and remain.

A. R. Mills, A. T. Blair, S. C. Harnden and C. A. Cavell got home Monday from their hunting expedition in the Coast mountains, some one hundred and fifty miles southwest of here. They got three deer and caught a lot of fine fish.

Prof. W. W. Bristow, the Penn Mutual man and the best life insurance agent who ever hit Yamhill, was in town the first of the week. It's hard to realize how Bristow could feel at home in the good place beyond where he would find it bad form to talk life insurance.

At its regular meeting Tuesday evening the Hook and Ladder Company made a standing offer of one dollar to the first man to arrive, with a team and vehicle, at the town hall after a fire alarm is given, to pull the hook and ladder wagon to the scene of the fire. The boys find that after a long run with the heavy wagon they are of not much account for any further service.

A company of young people from the county seat, most of whom had been in J. F. Taylor's Sunday School class at the Cumberland Presbyterian church of McMinnville, drove down to Newberg Sunday afternoon, called by the sudden bereavement in the Taylor family. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jacobs, the Misses Cureton, Louise Maloney, Clara Walker, Sadie Gortner, Lou Perkins, Mr. Pennington and Hervey M. Hoskins.

Youngest Klondike Miners Save Money for Education.

Under this caption the Dawson Daily News of September 30th, reproduces a photograph and gives the following interesting little sketch of two new students of Pacific College:

Arthur and Leonard Heacock, the two bright juveniles shown in the accompanying illustration, left here yesterday to enter college on a way opened by their own energy and perseverance in the Klondike. The youngsters will put themselves through school. During the last three years they have earned $2,000 in the Klondike. While they have lived with their parents, they have individually gained that sum through their individual efforts, and will now turn their attention to the more important pursuit of knowledge, and leave the beckoning flame of wealth material for the meantime to others.

The oldest of the two lads is 16 years of age. The other is two years younger. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. C. Heacock, of Grand Forks. They will attend school at Newberg, Oregon.

The Heacock brothers made their money in the Klondike by various methods. In the summer they gathered berries, captured drift wood in the Yukon and did miscellaneous work for others. Last winter and this summer they mined on Skookum gulch. They sank holes through the frozen ground last winter and continued their work in the coldest of weather.

Before coming to Dawson the boys earned $700 more in Skagway by similar singular perseverance.
