Sometime along in the summer Uncle Koehler announced that an appropriation had been set aside for building a new depot at Newberg but it seems that it has gone glimmering.

A crowd of forty or fifty people huddled on the outside of the little coop at the railway station in a drizzling rain a few days ago waiting for a delayed train, while Uncle Koehler sat in a warm office in Portland, probably figuring the interest on that appropriation which he said had been set aside for a new depot at Newberg.

Voters should bear in mind that the city election will take place the first of the year. In municipal affairs, as well as in state and national, the best men available are none too good to place in power, and since it remains with the people to make the selection, they have themselves to blame if poorly qualified men hold the offices. With the present outlook for a very substantial growth in population during the next year many matters of interest will come before the city council for adjustment and men of good judgement should be selected to fill the offices.

True to His Convictions.

Under the glaring caption, "Dr. Drew Pulls Out," Monday's Oregonian has the following to say of Rev. Daniel Drew, a preacher of the Friends church, acting pastor of the Chehalem Center meeting north of Newberg, and who has many friends here, having preached often in the Newberg Friends church:

"Rev. D. Drew, chaplain of the department of Oregon, G. A. R., and member of Ben Butler Post, No. 57, Sunnyside, exploded a bombshell in that post at the meeting Saturday night by resigning from the Grand Army of the Republic, and giving his reasons to the effect that he did not approve of the methods of the organization. Inasmuch as Rev. Drew, who is a colored man and an ex-slave, had been honored probably more than any colored man in this department, the resignation was received with amazement and indignation. Rev. Drew had been renominated chaplain of the post at a former meeting and, with other officers, would have been re-elected at this meeting.

At the last meeting of the Grand Encampment in this state Rev. Drew was elected department chaplain. In his speeches on many public occasions and before the G. A. R. posts, he paid high tribute to the patriotism of the Grand Army of the Republic and he declared that but for the members of the organization the colored man might never have attained his freedom from slavery. While the text of his resignation from the G. A. R. is not known, it is understood that he said that it conflicts with his religion, for the reason that it tends to keep alive the conflict between the North and the South. Some very caustic remarks were made by members of Ben Butler Post when the full meaning of the resignation and the reasons set forth therein were understood. A member remarked yesterday that it was probably the only instance on record where a colored man had been so highly honored as Rev. Mr. Drew, and that the very things he disapproved of in his resignation he had commended in his addresses before the posts or wherever he had spoken. It is supposed that Rev. Drew has also forwarded his resignation to Department Commander Turner, of Newberg."

Whatever Daniel Drew is, he is conscientious, and when he once concludes that a course is right for him, he will pursue it at all costs. Though his action was unpopular, his friends give him credit for having the courage of his convictions.

Died—Florence Brown Rowe.

Last Friday the wires brought the sad news of the death at St. Johns, Washington, of Mrs. Florence Rowe, daughter of John Brown and sister of Mrs. Dr. Harry B. Clough of this place. The bereaved husband started as soon as possible for Newberg with the remains, it being the desire of the relatives that the deceased be laid at rest in the family burying ground beside her mother who died twenty years ago.

Very impressive funeral services were held in the Friends church Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. After the singing of the hymn, "Sometime We'll Understand," Rev. Stanard read the eighth chapter of Romans, it being announced as the chapter read in the last family devotions held by Mr. and Mrs. Rowe. An appropriate solo was very effectively sung by Mrs. W. L. Robertson.

A short sermon, full of hope and inspiration, was delivered by Prof. C. E. Lewis who was the favorite instructor of the deceased when she was in college here. It was with much feeling that he spoke of the sweet, strong Christian character of her who was once his pupil and schoolmate of many present, and of her life of faithful service. And as he talked of her abundant entrance into the "kingdom," the beautiful sunlight streamed in, lighting the cross in the east window, and flooding the room with the glad promise of hope as voiced by Prof. Lewis.

Florence Brown Rowe was born November 6, 1876, in Champaign County, Illinois, and was the third daughter of her parents. She came to Newberg with her parents when four years old where she grew to womanhood. She was united in marriage to Newton V. Rowe September 4, 1902, at Endicott, Washington, removing later with her husband to St. Johns where he engaged in business.

She was an earnest Christian, having been converted when a young girl and always lived a consistent Christian life. She had a birthright membership in the Friends church to which she belonged, until since her marriage, when living where there was no Friends church, she joined the Baptist church to which her husband belonged. She was possessed of a peculiarly sweet and gentle disposition, being always very thoughtful of others about her and anxious to serve her loved ones and was one who was best loved and appreciated by those in her own home or who knew her most intimately.

Collegiate League Basket Ball Schedule Arranged.

The executive committee of the Collegiate Athletic League of Oregon held a meeting in Newberg Friday morning and arranged the following schedule for the coming basket ball season:

January 29th—Pacific College vs. Albany College; Monmouth Normal vs. McMinnville College.

February 12th—Monmouth vs. Pacific College; McMinnville College vs. Albany College.

March 3rd—Pacific College vs. McMinnville College; Albany College vs. Monmouth.

The league games are thus arranged two weeks apart, giving a chance for games with outside teams on alternate Fridays. The place of holding the several games was not determined by the committee, but will be left to the teams playing. Indications point toward a very satisfactory and successful season.

The executive committee met with the following personnel: Orville Johnson, Pacific College, president; W. M. Wire, Albany College, secretary; F. B. Patty, McMinnville College, vice president; C. O. Murphy, Monmouth, treasurer.

Two Nights of the Knox-Kantner Company. One More Chance to Get Good Seats.

Owing to the many and repeated requests of many who did not get good seats for the night of December 18th and of several who could get no seats at all, the Knox-Kantner Co. will appear in Newberg a second time on the night of Tuesday Dec. 22. They will present an entire change of program on this night. The plats for the second night will be opened at the drug stores next Saturday morning, Dec. 12, and those who secured poor seats or none at all for the first engagement are invited to be the early birds next Saturday.

Someone started the report a few days ago that the plats were taken to the college last time before being opened to the general public. No such thing was done, nor will it be done this time. When the plats are opened next Saturday morning every seat will be for sale except a small number reserved by the management for those who are assisting in selling tickets, ushering, etc.

Rev. Joseph Hall of Newberg, Oregon, has virtually established a new fruit-growing industry for Oregon—that of producing dried raspberries. A few raspberries were dried in the state before he began the business, but not enough to amount to anything. He discovered that the valley land about Newberg produced the black-cap raspberries to perfection, and that he could readily dry the berries in the sun. The latter feature is an advantage over New York state where most of the dried raspberries are produced. It requires from three to four days to dry the berries in the sun. Mr. Hall this year, although he found a large demand for fresh black-caps, produced about 800 pounds of dried product, for which a Portland firm paid him 18 cents per pound delivered at his nearest railroad station. A number of Mr. Hall's neighbors who have been led into raspberry growing by his example, sold at the same price. There is great interest in raspberries in that section now, especially as a cannery is to be started at Springbrook which will can a large quantity of the berries fresh. Mr. Hall finds it very advantageous in the case of black-cap raspberries, to pinch back the new canes at about 30 inches from the ground.—Rural Northwest.

Rector of St. Luke's.

Ashburnham, Ont., April 18, 1903—I think it is only right that I should tell you what a wonderful effect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has produced. The day before Easter I was so distressed with a cold and cough that I did not think to be able to take any duties the next day, as my voice was almost choked by the cough. The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy. I at once procured a sample bottle and took about three doses of the medicine. To my great relief the cough and cold had completely disappeared and I was able to preach three times on Easter Day. I know that this rapid and effective cure was due to your Cough Remedy. I make this testimonial without solicitation, being thankful to have found such a God-sent remedy. Respectfully yours, E. A. Langfeldt, M. A., Rector of St. Luke's Church. To Chamberlain Medicine Co. This remedy is for sale by C. F. Moore & Co.

Final arrangements have been made to secure the foundry at this place and the building which will be located on B street, is nearing completion. W. H. Kingery succeeded in raising the necessary $200 among the citizens, which binds Mr. Adams to continue the foundry in operation for at least one year. This will be quite an addition to the business enterprise of the town.—Telephone Register.
