CENSUS OF NEWBERG.

(Concluded from First Page.)

for better school facilities.

A good sewerage system received a large number of votes as one of the vital needs of the town.

Better hotel facilities was an expression often met by the enumerators.

Other needs mentioned follow: cannery, woolen mill, new city reservoir, a good city hall, an opera house, city park, capitalists, more houses, better business buildings, extension of water system, more public spirit, business push, more harmony and co-operation, better wages, the enforcement of law, more electric lights, civic improvement, moral stamina, election of best city officials, economic city government, public ownership of light plant, the keeping up of town cows, etc.

One man struck a happy combination in the emphatic declaration that we need more salvation and more factories.

Another thinks there should be an ordinance against the erection of a wooden building on First street.

After all, however, it remained for a woman to strike the key note. Said she, "We need more employment for the men so the women won't have to work so hard." She speaks from observation, as she herself slaves for no man.

Yes, publish to the world that we're doing nicely, thank you, and that we expect to do better. We have a live, growing town, a clean moral town, a town of churches and schools, a town with lots of business and manufacturing industry, a town excellently located in the great Northwest, the land of plenty and promise. This has been said before, in substance, but it needs repeating and repeating widely. Ye benighted ones who are weary of cold winters and are sore distressed by blizzards and cyclones, hear ye! Remember that there is a haven of refuge where roses bloom in midwinter and where the weary may lie down in peace to slumber; a land of fruits and flowers, smiled upon by nature's richest bounties. Come thou with us and we will do thee good. And the Graphic is only one dollar a year, in advance. It will do you good, too.

Speaks Well for Newberg.

Newberg comes in for favorable mention in the New Year's edition of the Oregonian. This is what it says:

Probably the greatest progress made in the county, and possibly in the Willamette Valley, is in the rustling town of Newberg. There have been built during the past season and are now in course of construction more good homes in Newberg than in any two previous years of its history. The prune crop of that part of the county will amount to about 150 carloads; the two grist mills are rushed to their utmost, running night and day; the handle factory, which is doing a large business, has had to enlarge its plant in order to supply the demand for its output of all kinds of tool handles; the sash and door factory and creamery are doing well. The C. K. Spaulding Logging Company is arranging to put in a sawmill of 100,000 feet daily capacity. The Newberg Pressed Brick Company has been crowded to its utmost capacity to supply the demand for its ware, and is now enlarging its plant so as to treble its capacity. The city is building a railroad track to the river, two miles long, for the benefit of the manufacturing interests. The Newberg Furniture Company has been unable to supply the demands of the trade and is now building a large furniture factory, which will employ a large number of men. On the basis of the number of school children in school at the time of the last census and the number now, the population is estimated at not less than 1800, or nearly twice what it was four years ago.

Cow Question Discussed.

EDITOR GRAPHIC: In a few days the voting citizens of the town will be called upon to decide upon a subject which is of the utmost importance for the advancement of Newberg, and that is, whether or not the cows are to run at large.

The town has been to considerable expense repairing and building new sidewalks, until now the walks of the town are probably in better condition than they have ever been before. If the cows should be loose in our streets a month, the fact would be known by the condition of the sidewalks alone.

We think there is scarcely an observing person who has not seen the cows drinking from stagnant pools in the summer, enough of itself to cause impure milk and disease among the people who use such milk.

We will pass over the annoyance of the bells, for we have all experienced that so often; also the offensive condition our most shady streets and walks are kept in, which makes passing through them worse than passing through a filthy barnyard. There is no inducement to keep up lawns when cows open gates and go in and out at pleasure.

When Mr. McCusker addressed a public meeting here, he advised us not to call Newberg a city while the cows were running at large. The name city suggests push, energy, business and enterprise, and all of those things do not harmonize with cows roaming leisurely and idly through the business streets. If we are to have the cows in the streets, let us take the name of village or hamlet.

Dairy statistics show that the best results are obtained from cows that are kept up, and if that is the case, the people who own cows could better afford to keep them up than to let them make their own living in the streets.

Reception By Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Woods.

On Thursday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Woods was the scene of a very pleasant reception given in honor of their son Roy and wife, recently married at Gresham, Oregon. Besides the relatives of both families about thirty invited guests were present. The parlors were tastefully decorated with mistletoe and Oregon grape, while the hall was made attractive by a huge bunch of red carnations. Throughout the evening punch was served in the dining room which was beautifully decorated in red. At 11 o'clock delicious refreshments were served. After the New Year had been ushered in the guests took their departure after many expressions of best wishes to the popular young married couple. Mr. and Mrs. Woods left Saturday morning for Grants Pass where they will make their home. They were accompanied by Miss Ione Woods who expects to remain with them for some time.

Fred Jackson Elected to Position in Spokane High School.

The following, which is self-explanatory, is taken from the Spokane, Washington, Spokesman-Review, it being a part of a writeup of the election of teachers for the high school of that city.

"F. C. Jackson of Glenwood Springs, Colorado, and principal of the high school of that place, has been elected as assistant in the sciences. He has a degree of bachelor of science from Pacific college at Newberg, Oregon, and later took post graduate work at the University of Oregon. He has been teaching the past five years. Last Monday evening Mr. Jackson and Miss Maude Soper of Newberg were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. A. Chesley, at 1029 Jackson avenue. When school opens Mr. Jackson will go in as assistant in the physics department, and will conduct the physical geography classes. He will also assist in the commercial department and be a general assistant in the scientific departments. He is an athlete of ability and renown. He was captain and manager of the Newberg college track team the last two years of his course."

Notwithstanding the weather from year to year, the "present conditions" are always thought to be "the worst ever." Such is the cold, foggy weather of the last week or ten days. And this statement is about the correct idea, as statistics will bear out the thought. Rev. Joseph Hoberg, who has kept tab on the weather for years, finds by looking over his books that not in the past thirteen years has this section had such a period of Christmas weather.—Reporter.

A Prisoner in Her Own House.

Mrs. W. H. Layha of 1001 Agnes Ave., Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me part of a bottle of Chamberlain's cough remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured. This remedy is for sale by C. F. Moore & Co.
