The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Pool was the scene of merry-making last Friday evening, when the ladies of the Wednesday Club entertained their husbands and a few friends. A prominent feature of the occasion was the representation in costume of the different holidays of the year. Had a prize been offered for the best sustained character, Father Time, in the person of C. F. Moore, with white, flowing locks and arrayed in sable garments, with scythe and hour glass in hand, would undoubtedly have won it. Other anniversaries well represented were forefathers' day, by Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Turner, dressed as Puritans; Washington's birthday, by Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Miles, in costume of ye olden time; July 4, by C. A. Hodson, attired as Uncle Sam and Mrs. Hodson as goddess of liberty; labor day, by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Butt, who gave evidence of bearing the white man's burden; February 14, by the host and hostess, who made very presentable valentines. "Flinch" and "pit" were played during the evening, the games being interspersed with selections on the graphophone. Readings were given by Mrs. F. A. Elliott, Mrs. F. A. Morris and Mrs. R. W. Kelsey. Substantial refreshments added a climax to the enjoyment of the evening.
