The men should stay at home and keep the babies to-night and encourage their wives to attend the city park meeting at the Baptist church.

A valley paper says that perhaps hogs were never so scarce in Portland as they were last week. It would be hard to make the Capital Journal believe that the Portland hog is ever scarce.

A married editor soliloquizes thus of the gentler sex: "There is gladness in her gladness when she's glad, and there is sadness in her sadness when she's sad; but the gladness of her gladness and the sadness of her sadness is nothing to her madness when she's mad."

A Kansas editor says, "I will vote for Parker. Roosevelt will be elected. This is the only reference which will be made to politics during the campaign." The inference is that there is more corn and prosperity and less h— and politics in the sunflower state.

There is abundant promise that though Newberg suffered from a dearth of fuel last winter, we will have wood to burn this coming season. About every third man has gone into the wood business on larger or smaller scale, and there is enough cordwood piled in and around town to temper the atmosphere of the whole valley. And no Indian prophecies as to a cold winter have been reported either.

It was remarked here by a resident of another county the other day that Newberg is the only town in the Willamette Valley which isn't going wild just at present over electric line propositions. "No," was the rejoinder of a representative Newberger, "we are not going wild, but let me say that Newberg will be the first west side town to have an electric line service." The prediction may not prove absolutely true but the spirit remains the same. Other towns seem just to have arrived at the realization that trolley lines are a good thing, while the enterprise has been considered seriously here for three or four years. In the advocacy of this as of several other projected enterprises, Newberg has been something of a pioneer. And while we are not joining prominently in the general flourish of trumpets, we are nevertheless by no means asleep and will be prepared to gather in an electric line service some of these times. Newberg people have acquired the habit of doing things, and it's a good one to maintain. Not long ago a resident of another town exclaimed to a Newberg man, "You people down there do beat the d—! You get anything you go after." It's up to us to prove that his words were as true as they were expressive.

A Garden Party.

On last Friday evening thirty young people responded to invitations issued by the Misses Lenora Parker and Lucy Gause to attend a garden party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Parker. Chinese lanterns hanging from limbs of over-spreading trees gave the soft light in order for such occasions, and couches, rugs, hammocks and sofa pillows contributed to the easy comfort of the guests.

On arriving, each surrendered his own personality and took on that of some distinguished personage. Interesting introductions ensued, and in the social intercourse which followed, Roosevelt and Judge Parker chatted pleasantly of presidential prospects, Grover C. and Bryan forgot to make faces at each other, Carrie Nation and Mrs. Nation's husband were oblivious of family differences, and Booker T. and Mrs. Washington were courteously received on terms of social equality. A game of "black man" was even suggested without a word of protest from hot headed Southerners, such was the social felicity which reigned.

The sense of dignity was not so oppressive however but that some very pleasant games and diversions were indulged in. Refreshing drink was served throughout the evening—so above reproach that Carrie N. buried her hatchet and presided over the stein.

Partners for the dainty refreshments which followed were arranged by matching the names of popular songs, each couple to sing a verse. Such was the sense of modesty which prevailed however, that a season of painful embarrassment ensued, until all broke forth at once into a chorus which rivaled the "Dago" concert work with which Newberg has become very well acquainted for some weeks past.

The "gardeners" of the evening were the Misses Olive Stratton, Ione Hill, Anna Terrell, Jennie McGregor, Laura Blair, Bertha and Lillian Nicholson, Lida Wilson, Ethel Smith, Ruth and Katherine Romig, Emma Dorrance, Mabel Gardner, Cora Dunham, Sibyl and Bernice Woodward; Messrs. Herbert Coffin, Owen and Ralph Maris, D. D. Coulson, Jay Mitchell, W. S. and C. W. Parker, Herman Smith, N. J. Sykes, Calvin Blair, L. B. Clough, Asa Morse, W. C. Woodward, Maynard Redmond and C. J. Hoskins.

Brother of J. C. Colcord a Prominent West Virginia Politician.

A copy of the Wheeling, West Virginia, Daily Intelligencer is at hand, and in a writeup headed "Capital Gossip," the following is noted in regard to a brother of J. C. Colcord, cashier of the Bank of Newberg:

"In the senate E. C. Colcord, of St. Albans, Kanawha county, is one of the business senators of that august body. While his speeches are not noted for their frequency or length, no man in the legislature has better practical business knowledge of the subject at issue than Mr. Colcord. As a member of the important committee of taxation and finance in the senate, his close application to business, his thorough practical knowledge makes him one of the most influential members in the senate.

Senator Colcord was formerly a member of the house from Kanawha county. His record proved so eminently satisfactory that his constituency insisted on his becoming a senator. Mr. Colcord, while a native of Vermont, has lived in this state for many years. He is the general manager of the Bowman Lumber Company, of St. Albans, W. Va., one of the largest enterprises of its kind in the state.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Colera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung," writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed by F. H. Caldwell & Co.
