THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1904

Lets see, is this the year the presidential election comes off?

Yamhill for prohibition! Let this be the slogan from now on until election day settles the question.

The man who continues to drive a poor horse year after year may have a heart in him but it is evidently in the wrong place.

In politics General Apathy is in the lead in Oregon but the majority for Roosevelt will be big enough for all practical purposes just the same.

When you go to the polls to vote, remember that a local option law will knock out the business of the "gallon house" man who wants to hang around in the brush and work his nefarious business.

With the pace we have been setting during the past year Newberg will not remain the second town in population in the county very long, and we don't license saloons down in this end of the county either.

The ladies made a good start in an effort to work up interest to secure grounds for a public park some time ago but in an unguarded moment they asked the assistance of the "men folks" and they apparently got a "gold brick," as the park proposition seems to be sweetly slumbering.

The clothes don't make the man but they may be taken as an indication of the wearer's sense of propriety, and consequently every man should endeavor to wear such clothing as is suited to his occupation. A greasy "Wool Soap" cap may answer the purpose of a sheep herder very well but for a business man who is mingling with his fellows—well it may serve to cover a soft spot and that is all that can be said for it.

For the farmer, the fruit grower or the stockraiser the Oregon Agriculturist is by far the most ably edited paper published in the northwest. When H. M. Williamson, the editor, expresses an opinion on any matter of interest to his readers they may depend upon it he took the pains to inform himself before the article was written. He publishes a clean sheet and one that ought to be in the hands of every producer in Oregon.

Winter is approaching and two extremes are likely to meet on a good many ranches throughout the valley, much to the sorrow of stock owners. That is extremely poor stock will face empty feed boxes unless all signs fail. One cow well fed will produce more and better milk than three half starved ones. If the forage supply can't be brought up to correspond with the number that is to be fed it will be far more profitable to begin at once to cut down the number to the proper limit of supply.

Major Harry Rees, paymaster in the army has been suspended from the service and will probably be subjected to court martial. He is charged with embezzlement and passing worthless checks. Major Rees is related to the Wm. Hendershott family, former residents of Newberg, and is naturally a very smart fellow, but it is said he has been drinking heavily for the past three years, being sober "only at intervals," and this tells the tale. Of course at one time earlier in his career he could "drink or let it alone" as he liked, the same as all the other fellows, but he is now in disgrace and besides the stigma that he has fastened on himself he is out of a life position that was paying him about $300 a month. It pays to keep sober and the young man who lets drink alone is in no danger of being found in any other condition.

Big, Jolly, Ira L. Campbell, for twenty years editor of the Eugene Guard and a member of the state press association, died at his home in Eugene last Saturday. The writer, having known the deceased member of the association for several years and holding him in high esteem, the news of his death comes with more than the ordinary tinge of sadness. The last time we met was at the seaside and the lines from "Crossing the Bar," by Tennyson seem appropriate in connection with this announcement:

"Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar
When I put out to sea,

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark.
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark.

For though from out the bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar."

The vote cast at a general election is taken as a pretty fair indication of the total population of a state, and since Oregon shows up with a small population, considering its area and the long time the state has been settled, it behooves every voter to get out and register a ballot regardless of his party affiliations. Only a few years ago the state of Washington had a smaller population than Oregon but we have now dropped behind and in order to make the best showing possible a large vote ought to be polled at the coming election. Get out and vote and see to it that your neighbor does the same.

The automobile is not gaining in favor with the people at a very rapid rate and the day when it will supersede the noble horse seems to be far in the future. The American Farmer says: The notion that electric trolley lines and automobiles would promptly exterminate horses in cities has so far proven unfounded. Paris, which has more automobiles than any other city, still has over 90,000 horses, which is only about 1000 less than last year. The horse has been with man from the beginning of civilization and will remain to the end. The automobile is merely a craze and soon will follow that other craze, the bicycle, into oblivion.

County W. C. T. U. Convention.

Yamhill county convention of the W. C. T. U. was held in the Baptist church, Newberg, October 14 and 15, with Mrs. Helen D. Harford, state president, in the chair. After the reading of the 87th Psalm many prayers were vocalized. The usual committees were appointed, after which Mrs. Harford gave an interesting talk on the state work. Lunch was served in the parlors of the church.

Friday afternoon the convention was welcomed by Mr. N. C. Christenson for the city, Rev. F. C. Stanard for the churches, President H. E. McGrew for the college, Superintendent R. Kirk for the public schools and Mrs. Lydia Tallman for the W. C. T. U. All these addresses were hearty and full of good cheer. Responses were given by Mrs. Mary Laman of Dundee and Mrs. R. B. Webber of Dayton. Following this was a general discussion on the subject "What Next," and "Hop picking." Mrs. Glass of Dayton reported for Mothers' meetings and the convention adjourned. At 8 o'clock p. m. Mrs. Ada Wallace Unruh, a national lecturer, gave a splendid address, subject "The American Boy."

Saturday morning's devotionals were conducted by Mrs. Macy who read the 112th Psalm followed by prayer. County superintendents gave their annual reports, and officers were elected for the year. The afternoon services opened with a memorial service in honor of the late Jane H. Blair. A very interesting paper, "A call to young women," was read by Miss Gertrude Green, a La Fayette "Y." The committees on nominations, resolutions and finance reported and convention adjourned. PRESS COMMITTEE.
