Reminiscences of Newberg.

At the public school entertainment held recently, there was read a story in verse on "Reminiscences of Newberg," prepared by the seventh grade pupils of Mrs. Martin's room. Naturally it was listened to with much interest, and a part of it is here reproduced—not so much on account of literary excellence as for the subject matter. Students should always be encouraged to take interest in and to preserve the traditions and history of their own immediate neighborhood.

They called this place the "grubby end"
Of the Chehalis Vale;
All covered o'er with forests,
With here and there a swail.

With the rugged mountains all around
And a river thru the land;
The called the great Willamette
So broad, so deep, so grand.

This county is the Yamhill
Where roamed the Indian brave;
Our here was called a rendezvous
For every kind of knave.

But the Indians soon were settled
On reservations near;
Wild animals were afraid of men,
So nothing was to fear.

With here and there a settler
On a big donation claim;
Dog gold in California,
Or feasted on home game.

There were Everests, Jones and Hagley
The Ramsays and a Hess,
The Deskinnes and Nelsons
The neighbors, d to bless.

We can't begin to name them all
Who followed in the line;
Sacred reverence to each one
Who came in '49.

There were no strangers in these parts
Each one as good as any.
The latch-string out to passers by;
The charges—not a penny.

The mail was sure to come sometime;
This truth needs no excuse;
Dropped off at Roger's landing,
Or the back of a cayuse.

All o'er the vale 'twas sweet content;
With nothing to molest
The "Eden of America."
Not "Wild and wooly West."

The young folks tripped fantastic toe
And promenaded all;
O'er fire-place hung the fiddle bow
And eon skin on the wall.

The stories of adventures,
And crossing o'er the plains
Were amusement for the older folks,
At socials and the games.

Few schools were in the valley,
And these were far between.
Three months a year; as you can see,
The learning scant and lean.

With health and plenty every where
Life jogged along so merry,
'Tis said they borrowed a corpse or two
To start a cemetery.

New comers were welcomed now and then—
Came on "Ox Engine" train;
With a section of land to each family,
Their coming was not in vain.

They soon were known as "web-foots"
And took kindly to the name;
If some one called them "moose-backs"
To them 'twas all the same.

Among the number was a man
Of character and fame;
Quite plain in dress and address,
William Hobson was his name.

He made a tour, the length and breadth
Of this far famed northwest,
On old Bald Hill he firmly said
"Chehalis is the best!"

He settled on a farm out north
Owned now by Alphens Blair;
The valley proved not only great
But wonderfully good and fair.

He wrote nice letters to his friends,
Of the things out on this coast;
He told the truth, the simple truth,
But never made a boast.

He used his ax and cut down trees.
Started a church and school;
Was revered by every one,
For he heeded the Golden Rule.

Now another man of note appeared,
A hustling financier;
To lay out the town of Newberg
Seemed visionary, queer.

Pat the corner stone on righteousness,
This news went all around;
And a better class of people
Nowhere can be found.

In the race to win and build a town
He proved that he was equal.
A man who works and wears as well,
Now he's mayor, is the sequel.

We skip across a few brief years
And thank God for His bounty,
For Newberg's now the leading town
In this same Yamhill county.

And we're the country to back our town,
For this is what it takes:
With plenty of rain and sunshine
No chance on losing stakes.

With big red apples, prunes and hops
For cattle, goats and sheep—
With grain and fruit and rural mail,
And mines and mountains steep.

We have connection with the world
With the R. R. at our door;
A river piled with many boats
And blessings by the score.

With water works and electric lights,
And a cart to carry the hose
A band to play its music—
But we haven't to a close.

We thank you for your 15 cents
You know of its disposition—
To enter N. P. S. exhibit
At the Portland exposition.

Mohair Notice.

The Yamhill County Livestock Association will sell the mohair pool this season on April 1st. All parties in the vicinity of Newberg, wishing to enter the pool, should report their number of fleeces to Christenson & Seeley who will take care of the pool in their locality. They are provided with regular mohair sacks which the Association requires the mohair sacked in. These sacks will be sold at 25 cents each and the money refunded when the pool is sold.
